Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, who certified her decision to the Administrative Appeals Office for review. The director's decision will be withdrawn, and the application will be approved.

The applicant is a native of Cuba and citizen of France who filed this application for adjustment of status to that of a lawful permanent resident under section 1 of the Cuban Adjustment Act (CAA) of November 2, 1966. This Act provides, in pertinent part:

[T]he status of any alien who is a native or citizen of Cuba and who has been inspected and admitted or paroled into the United States subsequent to January 1, 1959 and has been physically present in the United States for at least one year, may be adjusted by the Attorney General, in his discretion and under such regulations as he may prescribe, to that of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence if the alien makes an application for such adjustment, and the alien is eligible to receive an immigrant visa and is admissible to the United States for permanent residence.

The director determined that the applicant was not eligible for adjustment of status, pursuant to section 1 of the CAA, because her claim of citizenship at the time of entry into the United States was French. The director stated that the Board, in Matter of Ognibene, 18 I&N Dec. 425 (BIA 1983), came to the conclusion that although an alien may hold the phenomenon of dual nationality, an alien may only claim one citizenship at a time for purposes of immigration matters within the United States. The director concluded that the Service considers the applicant a national of France for immigration matters; therefore, she is not able to adjust status under section 1 of the Act of November 2, 1966.

In response to the notice of certification, counsel asserts that the applicant was born in Cuba; therefore, she is a native of Cuba. Citing Webster's New World Dictionary, he states that the definition of "native" is "a person born in the place indicated." Counsel further asserts that the language in the Act is clear and precise, and that Congress explicitly stated that any person who is a native or citizen of Cuba and met the other requirements in the Act could apply under the Cuban Adjustment Act. In this case, the applicant met both requirements.

The record reflects that the applicant was born in Cuba on December 31, 1971, to a Cuban mother and a Cuban father. She resided in France from June 1992 to April 2001. The applicant entered the United States as a visitor on April 18, 2001, with a French passport.

The applicant in this case is applying for adjustment of her status to permanent residence under section 1 of the CAA. To be eligible for adjustment of status under section 1 of the CAA, an alien must show only that she is a native or citizen of Cuba, she was inspected and admitted or paroled into the United States, she has been physically present in the United States for at least one year, and that she is admissible to the United States for permanent residence. See Matter of Masson, 12 I&N Dec. 699 (BIA 1968).

The applicant, in this case, was born in Cuba. She is, therefore, a native of Cuba, she was inspected and admitted into the United States subsequent to January 1, 1959, and she has been physically present in the United States for at least one year. She is, therefore, not precluded from adjustment of status under section 1 of the Cuban Adjustment Act of November 2, 1966. The director did not raise any other basis for denial, nor are there known grounds of inadmissibility.

Accordingly, the director's decision will be withdrawn, and the application will be approved.

ORDER: The director's decision is withdrawn. The application is approved.
