FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER, EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be sustained.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a cook. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the filing date of the visa petition.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief and previously submitted evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's filing date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's filing date is July 24, 2000. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $10.98 per hour or $22,838.40 per annum.

Counsel initially submitted a copy of the petitioner's unaudited financial statement for the period ended August 31, 2000, and a copy of the petitioner's 1998 Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return. The federal tax return for 1998 reflected gross receipts of [REDACTED] gross profit of [REDACTED] compensation of officers of $0; salaries and wages paid of [REDACTED] depreciation of [REDACTED] and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of [REDACTED]. Schedule L reflected total current assets of [REDACTED] of which [REDACTED] was in cash and total current liabilities of $0.

The director concluded that the evidence submitted did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the filing date of the petition. On March 3, 2001, the director requested additional evidence to establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage as of July 24, 2000.

In response, counsel submitted a copy of the petitioner's 1999 Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return which reflected gross receipts of [REDACTED] gross profit of [REDACTED] compensation of officers of $0; salaries and wages paid of [REDACTED] depreciation of [REDACTED] and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of [REDACTED]. Schedule L reflected total current assets of [REDACTED]; with [REDACTED] in cash and total current liabilities of $0.

The director determined that the additional evidence did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel argues that:

The tax returns shows operating income for the year of [REDACTED]. The operating loss carryforward was related to prior years. When depreciation is taken into consideration, the net income would be [REDACTED]. This should be sufficient to pay the offered wage.

In addition, the tax return also indicates subcontract expense of [REDACTED]. This represents temporary labor that the company has procured to temporarily fill the position that the petitioned employee would replace.

A review of the 1999 federal tax return for fiscal year December 1, 1999 through November 30, 2000 shows that when one adds the depreciation, the ordinary income, and the cash on hand at year end (to the extent that total current assets exceed total current liabilities), the result is [REDACTED] more than the proffered wage.

Accordingly, after a review of the federal tax returns, it is concluded that the petitioner has established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered at the time of filing of the petition and continuing to present.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. The petitioner has met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained.
