INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision in your case. All documents have been returned to the office which originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

If you believe the law was inappropriately applied or the analysis used in reaching the decision was inconsistent with the information provided or with precedent decisions, you may file a motion to reconsider. Such a motion must state the reasons for reconsideration and be supported by any pertinent precedent decisions. Any motion to reconsider must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider, as required under 8 C.F.R. 103.5(a)(1)(i).

If you have new or additional information which you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reopen. Such a motion must state the new facts to be proved at the reopened proceeding and be supported by affidavits or other documentary evidence. Any motion to reopen must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reopen, except that failure to file before this period expires may be excused in the discretion of the Service where it is demonstrated that the delay was reasonable and beyond the control of the applicant or petitioner. Id.

Any motion must be filed with the office which originally decided your case along with a fee of $110 as required under 8 C.F.R. 103.7.

FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER, EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann
Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as an assistant manager. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the filing date of the visa petition.

On appeal, the petitioner submits a brief and additional evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's filing date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's filing date is April 1, 1998. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $12.50 per hour or $26,000 per annum.

Counsel initially submitted a copy of the petitioner's 1998 Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return which reflected gross receipts of $571,299; gross profit of $398,427; compensation of officers of $49,386; salaries and wages paid of $143,623; depreciation of $3,626; and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of $12,962. Schedule L reflected total current assets of $8,280 with $250 in cash and total current liabilities of $14,839.

The director concluded that the evidence submitted did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the filing date of the petition. On October 18, 1999, the director requested additional evidence to establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage as of April 1, 1998.

In response, counsel submitted another copy of the petitioner's 1998 income tax return and a letter which stated that the officers of the petitioning entity could pay the proffered wage.

The director determined that the additional evidence did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel submits a letter from the petitioner's accountant, W-2 Wage and Tax Statements for another employee of the petitioning entity, employer's quarterly tax returns for 1998 and 1999, and a copy of the petitioner's 1999 Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return. Counsel states:

New evidence shows that Ms. [REDACTED] the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [REDACTED] the company's owners, is leaving for college and will not be available for part-time employment. Her W-2 for 1998 shows a salary of $3856 and that of 1999 shows a salary of $7860. If we take the employee's salary of 1998, which is $3856, and subtract it from $2912, which is the difference remaining to show the company's financial ability to remunerate the alien, then we would have a positive balance of $944 available for the company to further spend that money.

Counsel's argument is not persuasive. A review of the federal tax return for 1998 shows that when one adds the depreciation and the taxable income, the result is $16,588, an amount less than the proffered wage.

In addition, the 1999 federal tax return continues to show that the petitioner lacked the ability to pay the proffered wage.

Accordingly, after a review of the petitioner's federal tax returns, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered at the time of filing of the petition and continuing to present.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
