Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a furniture sales and repair company. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as an upholsterer. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief and additional evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's priority date is January 12, 1998. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $9.91 per hour or $20,612.80 per annum.

Counsel submitted copies of the first two pages of the petitioner's

1998, 1999, and 2000 Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return. The tax return for 1998 reflected gross receipts of $90,832; gross profit of $50,183; compensation of officers of $12,300; salaries and wages paid of $8,456; and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of $0. The tax return for 1999 reflected gross receipts of $105,869; gross profit of $48,896; compensation of officers of $21,795; salaries and wages paid of $0; and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of $0.

The tax return for 2000 reflected gross receipts of $91,053; gross profit of $53,417; compensation of officers of $19,898; salaries and wages paid of $1,440; and a taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions of $4,288.

The director determined that the evidence did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel submits copies of the petitioner's Form 941 Employer's Quarterly Federal Tax Return for 1999, 2000, and 2001, and bank statements for the petitioning entity and argues that:

As the attached bank statements demonstrate, Petitioner consistently maintains a positive balance, even after several thousands of dollars in daily withdrawals. In maintaining their accounts over the fifteen years in which Petitioner has been in business, it is clear that the Petitioner has been a viable and profitable company since its inception.

Even though the petitioner submitted its commercial bank statements as evidence that it had sufficient cash flow to pay the wage, there is no evidence that the bank statements somehow reflect additional available funds that were not reflected on the tax return. Simply going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. See Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972).

Counsel argues that the petitioner has been doing business continuously for fifteen years and therefore is consistent with Matter of Sonogawa.

Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967) relates to petitions filed during uncharacteristically unprofitable or difficult years but only within a framework of profitable or successful years. The petitioning entity in Sonogawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000.00. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations, and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. The Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. The petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonegawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere.

Counsel has provided no evidence which establishes that unusual circumstances existed in this case which parallel those in Sonegawa, nor has it been established that 1998 was an uncharacteristically unprofitable year for the petitioner.

The petitioner's Form 1120 for the calendar year 1998 shows an taxable income of $0. The petitioner could not pay a proffered salary of $20,612.80 out of this income. In addition, without Schedule L, the Bureau is unable to determine if the petitioner's net current assets were sufficient to pay the wage.

In addition, the tax returns for 1999 and 2000 continue to show an inability to pay the wage offered.

Accordingly, after a review of the federal tax returns, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of the petition and continuing to present.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
