DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a florist. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a floral designer. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's priority date is January 14, 1998. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $20.25 per hour which equates to $42,120.00 per annum.

Counsel submitted copies of the petitioner's Internal Revenue

Service (IRS) Forms 1040 for the years 1998 through 2000. The IRS Forms showed adjusted gross incomes of -$113,124, -$98,947, and -$84,530 respectively.

The director determined that the evidence submitted did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, the petitioner states that the reason for her negative adjusted gross income is because "I co-signed a loan for my sister's store in Irvine, so both SBA loans were payable and I paid the loans off, but incurred sizable net operating losses in the process. These losses have gradually been reduced."

The petitioner further argues that the beneficiary's employment will result in more income for the business. The petitioner does not explain, however, the basis for such a conclusion. For example, the petitioner has not demonstrated that the beneficiary will replace less productive workers, transform the nature of the petitioner's operation, or increase the number of customers on the strength of his reputation. Absent evidence of these savings, this statement can only be taken as the petitioner's personal opinion. Consequently, CIS is unable to take the potential earnings to be generated by the beneficiary's employment into consideration.

The petitioner's IRS Form 1040 for calendar year 1998 shows an adjusted gross income of -$113,124. The petitioner could not pay a proffered wage of $42,120.00 a year out of this income.

In addition, the petitioner's adjusted gross income figures for 1999 and 2000 continue to show an inability to pay the wage offered.

Accordingly, after a review of the record, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of the petition and continuing.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
