Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a chef. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief and additional evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's priority date is February 21, 1997. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $17.10 per hour or $35,568.00 per annum.

Counsel submitted copies of the petitioner's 1998, 1999, and 2000 Form 1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return including Schedule C, Profit and Loss from Business Statement. The petitioner's 1998 Form 1040 reflected an adjusted gross income of $593. Schedule C reflected gross receipts of $212,316; gross profit of $137,583; wages of $5,000; and a net profit of $24,857. The petitioner's 1999 Form 1040 reflected an adjusted gross income of $43,639. Schedule C reflected gross receipts of $237,777; gross profit of $129,916; wages of $0; and a net profit of $14,248.

The petitioner's 2000 Form 1040 reflected an adjusted gross income of $97,210. Schedule C reflected gross receipts of $303,895; gross profit of $156,388; wages of $17,287; and a net profit of $14,901.

The director determined that the evidence did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel states that:

1997 Tax Returns for the India Restaurant, inadvertently omitted are submitted. This return, in addition to the ones submitted earlier, evidence that the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage. Inadvertence regarding submission should not be construed as a lack of evidence.

Beneficiary's W-2's for 1997 and 2000 are also being submitted. These are from other employers. Only the 2001 was issued by petitioner, which is why only that one was submitted. Since 1993, beneficiary has been volunteering his services as petitioner felt he could not employ him since he was petitioning for him. Petitioner is not versed in the law, and was acting on that belief, in good faith.

The petitioner's Form 1040 for calendar year 1997 shows an adjusted gross income of -$12,357. The petitioner could not pay a proffered salary of $35,568.00 a year out of this income.

In addition, the petitioner's 1998 federal tax return continues to show an inability to pay the wage offered.

Accordingly, after a review of the federal tax returns, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of the petition and continuing to present.

While the petitioner has submitted evidence that it could pay the beneficiary's salary in 1999 and 2000, the petitioner must show that it had the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date of the petition and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent resident status. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2).

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
