Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a general building contractor. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a plasterer. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief and additional evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the petition's priority date is August 9, 2000. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $9.57 per hour which equates to $19,905.60 per annum.

Counsel submitted a copy of the petitioner's 2000 Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Form 1040 which showed an adjusted gross income of $19,738.00.

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, CIS will examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well-established by both CIS and judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F.Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F.Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F.Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F.Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983).

The director determined that the evidence submitted did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly. The director noted that:

The Service (now CIS) has reviewed the submitted evidence and found that the petitioner has asserted that the total number of employees at the company is 10 and it appears that the company has paid the salary of these 10 employees. However, according to the documents submitted the net profit of the petitioner is $21,239 and therefore without a notable increase in profits it does not appear that the petitioner has the ability to pay the additional employees.

On appeal, counsel submits a copy of the petitioner's 2001 IRS Form 1040 which shows an adjusted gross income of $22,063.00.

Counsel argues that "[t]he examiner's denial is based on negative speculation as to the future earnings and costs of petitioner. The examiner assumes costs will go up but that earnings will not."

The petitioner's IRS Form 1040 for calendar year 2000 shows an adjusted gross income of $19,738.00. The petitioner could pay a proffered wage of $19,905.60 a year out of this income.

As noted by the director, however, the petitioner has filed five additional Forms I-140 for five more workers. Therefore, the petitioner must show that it had sufficient income to pay all wages at the time of filing of the petitions.

Accordingly, after a review of the record, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of the petition and continuing.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
