ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

[Redacted]

INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be sustained. The petition will be approved.

The petitioner is restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a Thai food specialty cook. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification, the Application for Alien Employment Certification (Form ETA 750), approved by the Department of Labor.

The director determined that the petitioner had failed to establish its ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition.

On appeal, counsel submitted a brief and additional evidence.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

Regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) state in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor. 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petition's priority date in this instance is April 30, 2001. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $10.50 per hour or $21,840 per year.

With the initial petition, counsel submitted the petitioner's 1999, 2000 and 2001 Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Returns. The federal tax returns for 1999, 2000 and 2001 reflected taxable income before the net operating loss (NOL) deduction of $83, $139 and $29 respectively.

The director determined that the evidence did not establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage and denied the petition.

On appeal, counsel states that the president of the petitioner, as the sole shareholder, is akin to a sole proprietor and, therefore, Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS) should consider his personal assets in determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. Counsel submits significant evidence of the petitioner's president's personal assets and other business holdings.

Counsel further states that the factors established in Matter of Sonogawa 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967) should apply to the petitioner as there are reasonable expectations that the restaurant will be profitable in the future and therefore have the ability to pay the proffered wage. Counsel submits the petitioners 1999, 2000, and 2001 Form 1120 income tax returns with Schedule L. Counsel also submits the petitioner's president's 2001 Form 1040 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return.

The AAO notes that the priority date in this matter is April 30, 2001. Therefore, the tax returns for 1999 and 2000 are of limited probative value in the adjudication of this case.

On appeal, counsel claims that the petitioner's president is a sole proprietor and therefore all his assets should be considered in establishing the ability to pay the proffered wage. However, the evidence of record, the Form 1120 U.S. Corporation Income Tax Returns and the registry document submitted from the State of Washington establishing the petitioner as a limited liability company, refute counsel's claim.

Contrary to counsel's primary assertion, Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS), formerly the Service or CIS may not "pierce the corporate veil" and look to the assets of the corporation's owner to satisfy the corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage even if there is only one shareholder. It is an elementary rule that a corporation is a separate and distinct legal entity from its owners and shareholders. See Matter of M, 8 I&N Dec. 24 (BIA 1958), Matter of Aphrodite Investments, Ltd., 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm. 1980), and Matter of Tessel, 17 I&N Dec. 631 (Act. Assoc. Comm. 1980). Consequently, assets of its shareholders or of other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage. CIS will not consider the financial resources of individuals or entities who have no legal obligation to pay the wage. See Sitar Restaurant v. Ashcroft, 2003 WL 22203713, *3 (D. Mass. Sept. 18, 2003).

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, CIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed the beneficiary at the time the priority date was established. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, this evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. In the present matter, the petitioner did not establish that it had previously employed the beneficiary.

As an alternative means of determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, the AAO will next examine the petitioner's net income figure as reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Tex. 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F.Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd., 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc., the court held that CIS had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. 623 F.Supp at 1084. The court specifically rejected the argument that CIS should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income. Finally, there is no precedent that would allow the petitioner to "add back to net cash the depreciation expense charged for the year." See also Elatos Restaurant Corp., 632 F. Supp. at 1054.

While the petitioner's net income in 2001 was less than the proffered wage, the petitioner's net income is not the only statistic that can be used to demonstrate a petitioner's ability to pay a proffered wage. If the net income the petitioner demonstrates it had available during that period, if any, added to the wages paid to the beneficiary during the period, if any, do not equal the amount of the proffered wage or more, CIS will review the petitioner's assets. We reject, however, any argument that the petitioner's total assets should be considered in the determination of the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner's total assets include depreciable assets that the petitioner uses in its business. Those depreciable assets will not be converted to cash during the ordinary course of business and will not, therefore, become funds available to pay the proffered wage. Further, the petitioner's total assets must be balanced by the petitioner's liabilities. Otherwise, they cannot properly be considered in the determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. Rather, CIS will consider net current assets as an alternative method of demonstrating the ability to pay the proffered wage.

Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.¹ A corporation's year-end current assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1(d) through 5(d). Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 15(d) through 17(d). If a corporation's end-of-year net current assets are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage out of those net current assets.

The petitioner is a limited liability corporation. The petitioner's Form 1120 corporate tax return for 2001, Schedule L, reflects current assets of $68,440; current liabilities of $0; and net current assets of $68,440. The petitioner could pay the proffered wage of $21,840 out of this amount. As the petitioner's net current assets in 2001 establish its ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date, we need not consider counsel's less persuasive arguments.

After a review of the evidence at hand it is concluded that the petitioner has established that it had sufficient available funds to pay the salary offered as of the priority date of the petition and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained.
