Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The employment-based preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center. The director's decision to deny the petition was affirmed by the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The matter is now before the AAO on a motion to reopen. The motion will be granted. The petition will be denied.

The petitioner is a restaurant. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a specialty cook. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition. The AAO affirmed this determination on appeal.

On motion, counsel submits new documentation. Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(A)(2), a motion to reopen must: "state the new facts to be provided in the reopened proceeding and be supported by affidavits or other documentary evidence."

Counsel's new evidence is a letter from the petitioner's certified public accountant which states that the shareholders of the petitioning entity have financed the loss in net income by investing in the business. Counsel has met the regulatory requirements for reopening based on the submission of new evidence. Thus, the motion is granted.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

Eligibility in this matter hinges on the petitioner's ability to pay the wage offered as of the petition's priority date, which is the date the request for labor certification was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the Department of Labor, and continuing. Here, the petition's priority date is January 9, 2001. The beneficiary's salary as stated on the labor certification is $18.89 per hour or $39,291.20 per annum.

The AAO affirmed the director's decision to deny the petition, noting that the petitioner had not submitted evidence of its ability to pay the proffered wage as of the filing date of the petition.

Counsel's new evidence on motion to reopen is a letter from the petitioner's accountant, Eric K. Waller, who states that "[t]he 2000 loss of $221,000 and the 2001 loss of $125,000 were completely funded by investments from the owners of the company in an amount approximating $1,235,000 and a third party loan in the amount of $80,000." Mr. Waller goes on to state that the owners of the company will continue to fund losses as necessary until the company is self-sufficient.

Counsel's reliance upon the accountant's statements to prove the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is not persuasive. Counsel does not cite legal authority. As noted in the AAO's prior decision, the petitioning entity in this case is a corporation. Consequently, any assets of the individual stockholders including ownership of shares in other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of M, 8 I&N Dec. 24 (BIA 1958; AG 1958); Matter of Aphrodite Investments Limited, 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm. 1980); and Matter of Tessel, 17 I&N Dec. 631 (Act. Assoc. Comm. 1980). Thus, a statement by an accountant, and not even the petitioning restaurant's owners or shareholders themselves, that financial obligations will be subsidized by individuals and not the corporation, is insufficient evidence of the petitioner's ability to pay.

The tax return for calendar year 2000 shows an ordinary income of -$221,369. The petitioner could not pay a salary of $39,291.20 a year from this income.

The petitioner must show that it has the ability to pay the proffered wage at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Based on the evidence submitted, it cannot be found that the petitioner had sufficient funds available to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage at the time of filing the application for alien employment certification as required by 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). Therefore, the petition may not be approved.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not sustained that burden.

ORDER: The motion to reopen is granted, and the AAO's decision of November 7, 2002, is affirmed. The petition is denied.
