DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be summarily dismissed.

The petitioner is an automobile sales and repair company. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as an automobile body repairer. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by an individual labor certification approved by the Department of Labor. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the financial ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date of the visa petition.

The petitioner submitted a Form I-290B appeal in this matter. In the section reserved for the basis of the appeal, the petitioner stated, "Additional evidence to support ability to pay wage will be submitted." The petitioner indicated that the additional evidence would be submitted within 30 days. However, more than a year later, no further information, argument or documentation has been received from the petitioner or from anyone acting on the petitioner's behalf.

The regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(a)(1)(v) state, in pertinent part:

An officer to whom an appeal is taken shall summarily dismiss any appeal when the party concerned fails to identify specifically any erroneous conclusion of law or statement of fact for the appeal.

Inasmuch as the petitioner has failed to identify specifically an erroneous conclusion of law or a statement of fact as a basis for the appeal, the appeal must be summarily dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is summarily dismissed.
