FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann
Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the District Director, New Orleans, Louisiana, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a native and citizen of India who is seeking classification as a special immigrant pursuant to section 204(a)(1)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1154(a)(1)(A)(iii), as the battered spouse of a United States citizen.

The district director determined that the petitioner failed to establish that he has been battered by, or has been the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by, the citizen or lawful permanent resident during the marriage; or is the parent of a child who has been battered by, or has been the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by, the citizen or lawful permanent resident during the marriage. The district director, therefore, denied the petition.

On appeal, counsel asserts that the district director erred in determining that the evidence submitted was insufficient to prove that the petitioner was the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by his ex-wife during their marriage, and erred in failing to interview the petitioner incident to the allegations contained in the I-360 petition.

8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(1), in effect at the time the self-petition was filed, states, in pertinent part, that:

(i) A spouse may file a self-petition under section 204(a)(1)(A)(iii) or 204(a)(1)(B)(ii) of the Act for his or her classification as an immigrant relative or as a preference immigrant if he or she:

(A) Is the spouse of a citizen or lawful permanent resident of the United States;

(B) Is eligible for immigrant classification under section 201(b)(2)(A)(i) or 203(a)(2)(A) of the Act based on that relationship;

(C) Is residing in the United States;

(D) Has resided in the United States with the citizen or lawful permanent resident spouse;

(E) Has been battered by, or has been the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by, the citizen or lawful permanent resident during the marriage; or is the parent of a child who has been battered by, or has been the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by, the citizen or lawful permanent resident during the marriage;

(F) Is a person of good moral character;

(G) Is a person whose deportation (removal) would result in extreme hardship to himself, herself, or his or her child; and

(H) Entered into the marriage to the citizen or lawful permanent resident in good faith.

The petition, Form I-360, shows that the petitioner last entered the United States as a parolee on January 13, 1997. The petitioner married his United States citizen spouse on April 9, 1998 at Nicholasville, Kentucky. On December 18, 1998, a self-petition was filed by the petitioner claiming eligibility as a special immigrant alien who has been battered by, or has been the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by, his U.S. citizen spouse during their marriage.

8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(1)(i)(E) requires the petitioner to establish that he has been battered by, or has been the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by, the citizen or lawful permanent resident during the marriage; or is the parent of a child who has been battered by, or has been the subject of extreme cruelty perpetrated by, the citizen or lawful permanent resident during the marriage.

The qualifying abuse must have been sufficiently aggravated to have reached the level of "battery or extreme cruelty." 8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(1)(vi) provides:

[T]he phrase, "was battered by or was the subject of extreme cruelty" includes, but is not limited to, being the victim of any act or threatened act of violence, including any forceful detention, which results or threatens to result in physical or mental injury. Psychological or sexual abuse or exploitation, including rape, molestation, incest (if the victim is a minor), or forced prostitution shall be considered acts of violence. Other abusive actions may also be acts of violence under certain circumstances, including acts that, in and of themselves, may not initially appear violent but that are a part of an overall pattern of violence. The qualifying abuse must have been committed by the citizen or lawful permanent resident spouse, must have been perpetrated against the self-petitioner or the self-petitioner's child, and must have taken place during the self-petitioner's marriage to the abuser.

8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(2) provides, in part:

(i) Self-petitioners are encouraged to submit primary evidence whenever possible. The Service will consider, however, any credible evidence relevant to the petition. The determination of what evidence is credible and the weight to be given that evidence shall be within the sole discretion of the Service.

(iv) Evidence of abuse may include, but is not limited to, reports and affidavits from police, judges and other court officials, medical personnel, school officials, clergy, social workers, and other social service agency personnel. Persons who have obtained an order of protection against the abuser or have taken other legal steps to end the abuse are strongly encouraged to submit copies of the relating legal documents. Evidence that the abuse victim sought safe-haven in a battered women's shelter or similar refuge may be relevant, as may a combination of documents such as a photograph of the visibly injured self-petitioner supported by affidavits. Other forms of credible relevant evidence will also be considered. Documentary proof of non-qualifying abuse may only be used to establish a pattern of abuse and violence and to support a claim that qualifying abuse also occurred.

In a notice of intent to deny the petition dated June 6, 2000, the district director advised the petitioner that the majority of statements made in his affidavit have been refuted by his ex-spouse and declared as untruthful. The petitioner was, therefore, granted 12 weeks from the date of the notice to submit additional evidence to support his claim that he had been abused by his spouse. In response, the petitioner submits another self-affidavit and affidavits from three other individuals. The district director reviewed this evidence and determined that the affidavits, without corroborating evidence of the claimed abuse, were insufficient to establish that he was an abused spouse or had been the subject of extreme cruelty. She, therefore, denied the petition on June 12, 2001.

On appeal, counsel submits copies of library records, telephone bills, credit card bills, school transcript and speeding ticket relating to the petitioner and/or his spouse. These documents, however, are not evidence of extreme cruelty. Further, counsel's claim that the district director erred in failing to interview the petitioner is without merit. There is no requirement that the petitioner must be interviewed prior to the denial of the self-petition. Rather, 8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(2) provides that the Service will consider any credible evidence relevant to the petition, and that the determination of what evidence is credible and the weight to be given that evidence shall be within the sole discretion of the Service. Further, 8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(3) provides that if the preliminary decision on a properly filed self-petition is adverse to the self-petitioner, the self-petitioner will be provided with written notice of this fact and offered an opportunity to present additional information or arguments before a final decision is rendered. The record reflects that on June 6, 2000, the petitioner was accorded an opportunity, within 12 weeks, to refute this finding of the director or to submit additional evidence.

Counsel further asserts, on appeal, that the petitioner was devastated when he discovered his wife in bed with another man in June 1998, and that his wife's acts clearly constitute psychological or sexual abuse or exploitation. This incident, however, was refuted as untrue by the petitioner's spouse. She claimed that she left the marital home in June 1996, two years after the claimed incident, and that she and the petitioner had parted friends once the petitioner accepted the fact that she had a change of heart and found someone else. Further, while the petitioner alleges that his secretive witnessing of the incident is extreme cruelty, the petitioner, however, does not claim that his spouse intentionally had sex with another man in view of the petitioner in an effort to abuse or harm the petitioner. According to the petitioner's spouse, she had no knowledge of the petitioner secretly watching her in her apartment. The incident described by the petitioner is in no way similar to the types of behavior described in the regulations as "extreme cruelty. Furthermore, infidelity or unfaithfulness to a moral obligation, and abandonment are not included in, nor do they meet, the definition of qualifying abuse as provided in 8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(1)(vi).

The determination of what evidence is credible and the weight to be given that evidence shall be within the sole discretion of the Service. 8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(2)(i). Further, as provided in 8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(1)(vi), the qualifying abuse must have been sufficiently aggravated to have reached the level of "battery or extreme cruelty." The evidence furnished is insufficient to establish that the claimed abuse perpetrated toward the petitioner by his spouse was "extreme." The petitioner has failed to establish that he was battered by or was the subject of "extreme cruelty" as contemplated by Congress, and to overcome the district director's finding pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 204.2(c)(1)(i)(E).

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
