FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER, EXAMINATIONS

for Myra L. Rosenly
Robert G. Wiemann, Acting Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The immigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a church. It seeks classification of the beneficiary as a special immigrant religious worker pursuant to section 203(b)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the "Act"), 8 U.S.C. 1153(b)(4), in order to employ him as a "music minister" at an annual salary of $15,000.

The director denied the petition finding that the petitioner failed to establish that the beneficiary had had the requisite two years of experience in a religious occupation. The director noted that the Service does not recognize voluntary activities as satisfying the prior experience requirement in cases of lay persons in religious occupations.

On appeal, counsel for the petitioner argued that neither the statute nor the regulations prohibit volunteer work from satisfying the prior experience requirement.

Section 203(b)(4) of the Act provides classification to qualified special immigrant religious workers as described in section 101(a)(27)(C) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(27)(C), which pertains to an immigrant who:

(i) for at least 2 years immediately preceding the time of application for admission, has been a member of a religious denomination having a bona fide nonprofit, religious organization in the United States;

(ii) seeks to enter the United States--

(I) solely for the purpose of carrying on the vocation of a minister of that religious denomination,

(II) before October 1, 2003, in order to work for the organization at the request of the organization in a professional capacity in a religious vocation or occupation, or

(III) before October 1, 2003, in order to work for the organization (or for a bona fide organization which is affiliated with the religious denomination and is exempt from taxation as an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Code of 1986) at the request of the organization in a religious vocation or occupation; and

(iii) has been carrying on such vocation, professional work, or other work continuously for at least the 2-year period described in clause (i).

The petitioner in this matter is affiliated with the United States Catholic Conference and is recognized as a qualifying tax exempt organization. The beneficiary is a native and citizen of Poland who was last admitted to the United States on August 7, 1997, as a B-2 visitor for pleasure. His current immigration status is unknown.

At issue in this proceeding is whether the petitioner has established that the beneficiary had had the requisite two years of continuous work experience in a religious occupation.

8 C.F.R. 204.5(m) (3) states, in pertinent part, that each petition for a religious worker must be accompanied by:

(ii) A letter from an authorized official of the religious organization in the United States which (as applicable to the particular alien) establishes:

(A) That, immediately prior to the filing of the petition, the alien has the required two years of membership in the denomination and the required two years of experience in the religious vocation, professional religious work, or other religious work.

(D) That, if the alien is to work in another religious vocation or occupation, he or she is qualified in the religious vocation or occupation. Evidence of such qualifications may include, but need not be limited to, evidence establishing that the alien is a nun, monk, or religious brother, or that the type of work to be done relates to a traditional religious function.

8 C.F.R. 204.5(m) (1) states, in pertinent part, that:

All three types of religious workers must have been performing the vocation, professional work, or other work continuously (either abroad or in the United States) for at least the two year period immediately preceding the filing of the petition.

The petition was filed on October 7, 1999. Therefore, the petitioner must establish that the beneficiary had been continuously engaged in a qualifying religious occupation since at least October 7, 1997.

In support of the petition, the petitioner submitted a letter dated August 12, 1998 attesting to the beneficiary's qualifications. It states, in pertinent part:

Mr. Stachowski comes to us highly qualified. He has been a baptized catholic since infancy and he has sung as a tenor in a most famous chamber music ensemble called "Cappella Cracoviensis", for the past 20 years.

In response to a request for additional evidence, the petitioner furnished, inter alia, the beneficiary's 1998 U.S. federal tax return reflecting his income as owner/operator of a construction company.

On review, having sung in a secular musical group, whether professional or amateur, cannot be considered having been engaged in a religious occupation. The record indicates that the beneficiary's actual occupation has been in the secular field of construction. There is no indication that the beneficiary has engaged in any religious work in the United States, either voluntarily or as an occupation. Clearly, the petitioner failed to submit any evidence that the beneficiary had been continuously carrying on a religious occupation since at least October 1997.

Even had the petitioner advanced a claim that the beneficiary had performed voluntary services for his church, in addition to operating his business, such activities are not considered engagement in a religious occupation. Counsel's argument to the contrary is not persuasive.

The pertinent regulations were drafted in recognition of the special circumstances of some religious workers, specifically those engaged in a religious vocation, in that they may not be salaried in the conventional sense and may not follow a conventional work schedule. The regulations distinguish religious vocations from lay religious occupations. 8 C.F.R. 204.5(m)(2) defines a religious vocation, in part, as a calling to religious life evidenced by the taking of vows. While such persons are not employed per se in the conventional sense of salaried employment, they are fully financially supported and maintained by their religious institution and are answerable to that institution. The regulation defines lay religious occupations, in contrast, in general terms as an activity related to a "traditional religious function." Id. Such lay persons are employed in the conventional sense of salaried employment. The regulations recognize this distinction by requiring that in order to qualify for special immigrant classification in a religious occupation, the job offer for a lay employee of a religious organization must show that he or she will be employed in the conventional sense of salaried employment and will not be dependent on supplemental employment. See 8 C.F.R. 204.5(m)(4). Because the statute requires two years of continuous experience in the same position for which special immigrant classification is sought, the Service interprets its own regulations to require that, in cases of lay persons seeking to engage in a religious occupation, the prior experience must have been full-time salaried employment in order to qualify as well.

In evaluating a claim of prior work experience, the Service must distinguish between common participation in the religious life of a denomination and engaging continuously in a religious occupation. It is traditional in many religious organizations for members to volunteer a great deal of their time serving on committees, visiting the sick, serving in the choir, teaching children's religion classes, and assisting the ordained ministry without being considered to be carrying on a religious occupation. It is not reasonable to assume that the petitioning religious organization, or any employer, could place the same responsibilities, the same control of time, and the same delegation of duties on an unpaid volunteer as it could on a salaried employee. For all these reasons, the Service holds that lay persons who perform volunteer activities, especially while also engaged in a secular occupation, are not engaged in a religious occupation and that the voluntary activities do not constitute qualifying work experience for the purpose of an employment-based special immigrant visa petition.

The petition is deficient on additional grounds. A petitioner must demonstrate that the beneficiary will not be dependent on supplemental employment. 8 C.F.R. 204.5(m)(4). The petitioner offered no evidence of the beneficiary's ability to subsist on the proffered salary without resort to supplemental employment specifically in relation to his past earnings.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
