IN RE: Petitioner: [REDACTED]
Beneficiary: [REDACTED]

PETITION: Immigrant Petition for Special Immigrant Religious Worker Pursuant to Section 203(b)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(4), as described at Section 101(a)(27)(C) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(27)(C)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Director, California Service Center, denied the employment-based immigrant visa petition. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be sustained and the petition will be approved.

The petitioner is the mother church of the Church of Scientology. It seeks to classify the beneficiary as a special immigrant religious worker pursuant to section 203(b)(4) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(4), to perform services as a member of the Sea Organization (Sea Org), a religious order of the Church of Scientology. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that the beneficiary's position qualifies as either a religious occupation or a religious vocation.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(m)(2) offers the following pertinent definitions:

Religious occupation means an activity which relates to a traditional religious function. Examples of individuals in religious occupations include, but are not limited to, liturgical workers, religious instructors, religious counselors, cantors, catechists, workers in religious hospitals or religious health care facilities, missionaries, religious translators, or religious broadcasters. This group does not include janitors, maintenance workers, clerks, fund raisers, or persons solely involved in the solicitation of donations.

Religious vocation means a calling to religious life evidenced by the demonstration of commitment practiced in the religious denomination, such as the taking of vows. Examples of individuals with a religious vocation include, but are not limited to, nuns, monks, and religious brothers and sisters.

The regulation reflects that positions whose duties are primarily administrative or secular in nature do not qualify as religious occupations. Citizenship and Immigration Services therefore interprets the term "traditional religious function" to require a demonstration that the duties of the position are directly related to the religious creed of the denomination, that the position is defined and recognized by the governing body of the denomination, and that the position is traditionally a permanent, full-time, salaried occupation within the denomination.

In a letter dated September 6, 2003, Hilary Royce, the petitioner's legal officer, describes the beneficiary's work:

In August 1995, [the beneficiary] joined the Sea Organization and began his religious vocation at the Church of Scientology's continental office in Sydney, Australia. [The beneficiary] was responsible for forming parishioners into groups so that they may deliver pastoral counseling to each other and also introduce new persons to the religious services of Scientology, throughout all of Australia.

In September 2001, [the beneficiary] . . . entered the United States to continue his religious vocation of increasing the number of pastoral counselors and pastoral counseling groups in all communities, towns and cities across the world by getting them active in delivering basic Scientology services to those most in need on an International basis. . . .

[The petitioner] has staff qualifications requiring Sea Organization membership. . . .

Sea Organization members devote their lives to their religion; they live in community with other Sea Organization members and wear specific uniforms. Their meals, housing, clothes, medical and dental care are provided by the Church. Each member additionally receives a small weekly allowance, currently $50.00 per week and occasional small bonuses.

The director concluded that the petitioner did not adequately describe the beneficiary's duties, and that the petitioner has failed "to show that the Sea Organization has a governing structure, a formal legal organizing instrument, set theological education standards, or operates with its own budget and assets." The director did not explain the source of these requirements. The director acknowledged the members' "life-long commitment to their faith," but determined that there is insufficient evidence to conclude that the Sea Org is a religious order, whose members qualify as workers in a religious vocation.

The Church of Scientology has provided various documents and affidavits discussing the Sea Org. Upon careful consideration of these materials, the AAO is satisfied that the Sea Org qualifies as a religious order, and that its members practice a religious vocation. Because a discussion of specific duties is germane to religious occupations, but not religious vocations, we need not analyze the beneficiary's exact duties in any detail.

Having concluded that the Sea Org is a religious order, we must now determine whether or not the beneficiary has been a full member of that order since at least two years prior to the petition's September 18, 2003 filing date, as required by section 101(a)(27)(C)(iii) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(27)(C)(iii), and 8 C.F.R. §§ 204.5(m)(1) and (3)(ii)(A).

The record contains copies of several certificates, including a "Sea Organization Contract of Employment," which reads, in part, "I contract myself to the Sea Organization for the next billion years," signed by the beneficiary and dated August 26, 1995.

The director, in denying the petition, observed that the Sea Org "Contract of Employment" is not a decisive instrument of membership in the Sea Org, and that "[t]he petitioner submitted no documentary evidence to show that the beneficiary is in fact a full member" of the Sea Org.

On appeal, the petitioner submits materials concerning the various steps required to join the Sea Org, such as completion of the Estates Project Force (EPF) and review by a Fitness Board. From materials made available to us, we have concluded that an individual who has successfully passed review by the Fitness Board can be considered a member of the Sea Org (as opposed to a recruit, who is not a full member). Therefore, the petitioner can establish that the beneficiary possesses the relevant experience by submitting church records showing that the beneficiary passed the Fitness Board at least two years before September 18, 2003 and continuously engaged in the vocation during that time.

In a supplement to the appeal, the petitioner submits copies of church documents, indicating that the petitioner became a full Sea Org member in August 1995 (there appears to be some confusion about the exact date). This indicates that the beneficiary was a full member of the Sea Org for more than eight years prior to the petition's September 2003 filing date. The director has cited no contradictory evidence that would cast doubt on the information shown on the documents submitted on appeal, or show that the beneficiary engaged in disqualifying outside employment during the relevant two-year period.

Pursuant to the above discussion, the petitioner has overcome the stated grounds for denial. Upon review of the record, we see no readily apparent obstacle to the approval of the petition. The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has sustained that burden. Accordingly, the decision of the director denying the petition will be withdrawn and the petition will be approved.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained and the petition is approved.
