Beneficiary:

PETITION: Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker Pursuant to Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

Robert P. Wiemann, Chief
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The director of the service center denied the nonimmigrant visa petition and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed. The petition will be denied.

The petitioner, a dental office with one employee and stated gross annual income of $250,000, seeks to continue its employment of the beneficiary as an accountant. The petitioner, therefore, endeavors to extend the beneficiary's classification as a nonimmigrant worker in a specialty occupation pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b).

The director denied the petition on the basis of his determination that the petitioner had failed to establish that the proposed position qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation under the criteria set forth at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A). On appeal, counsel contends that the director erred in denying the petition, and that the proposed position is in fact a specialty occupation.

The record of proceeding before the AAO contains (1) the Form I-129 and supporting documentation; (2) the director's notice of intent to deny the petition (NOID); (3) the petitioner's response to the director's NOID; (4) the director's denial letter; and (5) the Form I-290B and supporting documentation. The AAO reviewed the record in its entirety before issuing its decision.

Section 214(i)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1), defines the term "specialty occupation" as an occupation that requires:

- (A) theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and
- (B) attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

The term "specialty occupation" is further defined at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(ii) as:

[A]n occupation which requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge in fields of human endeavor including, but not limited to, architecture, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business specialties, accounting, law, theology, and the arts, and which requires the attainment of a bachelor's degree or higher in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), to qualify as a specialty occupation, the position must meet one of the following criteria:

- (1) A baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position;
- (2) The degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations or, in the alternative, an employer may show that its particular position is so complex or unique that it can be performed only by an individual with a degree;

- (3) The employer normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position; or
- (4) The nature of the specific duties is so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS) interprets the term “degree” in the criteria at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A) to mean not just any baccalaureate or higher degree, but one in a specific specialty that is directly related to the proposed position.

To determine whether a particular position qualifies as a specialty occupation, CIS does not simply rely on the position’s title. The specific duties of the proposed position, combined with the nature of the petitioning entity’s business operations, are factors to be considered. CIS must examine the ultimate employment of the alien and determine whether the position qualifies as a specialty occupation. Cf. Defensor v. Meissner, 201 F. 3d 384 (5th Cir. 2000). The critical element is not the title of the proposed position nor an employer’s self-imposed standards, but whether the position actually requires the theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree in the specific specialty as the minimum for entry into the occupation, as required by the Act.

The petitioner, a dental office with one employee and stated gross annual income of $250,000, was established in 1991. It proposes to continue its employment of the beneficiary as an accountant. As noted by the director in his NOID, the petitioner provided no description of the duties of the proposed position in its July 22, 2004 letter of support. In its October 27, 2004 response to the director’s NOID, the petitioner stated that the duties of the proposed position would include compiling and analyzing financial information in order to document business transactions for preparation of the budget plan; analyzing present and past spending patterns of the company; preparing a budget plan to allocate funds according to spending priorities; evaluating spending priorities and eliminating unnecessary or excessive spending items; analyzing accounting records to determine financial resources required to implement program and submit recommendation for budget allocations; recommending approval or disapproval of requests for funds for purchasing new equipment or new products; providing advice and technical assistance to the petitioner in the preparation of the budget plan; performing break-even analysis, profitability studies, and financial projections for the company; evaluating the adequacy and detecting deficiencies in the company’s internal control system; preparing and submitting preliminary budgets to the petitioner with comments and supporting statements that justify or deny allocation of funds; analyzing proposed plans and devising possible alternatives if the projected financial results are unsatisfactory; monitoring budget implementation by reviewing reports and accounting records to determine if allocated funds have been spent as specified; and writing reports explaining deviations between approved budget and actual performance with recommendations for new or revised budget procedures.

The director denied the petition, finding that the petitioner had satisfied none of the criteria set forth at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), and therefore had not established that the proposed position qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation.

On appeal, counsel contends that the director erred in denying the petition, and that the proposed position in fact qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation under all four criteria set forth at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A).

In deciding whether a proposed position qualifies as a specialty occupation, CIS looks beyond the title of the position. It determines, from a review of the duties of the position and any supporting evidence, whether the position actually requires the theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and the minimum of a baccalaureate degree in a specific specialty for entry into the occupation, as required by the Act. The AAO routinely consults the Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Handbook (the Handbook) for its information about the duties and educational requirements of particular occupations.

The petitioner has stated that the proposed position is that of an accountant. To determine whether the duties of the proposed position support the petitioner's characterization of its employment, the AAO turns to the 2006-2007 edition of the Handbook for its discussion of management accountants, the category of accounting most closely aligned to the duties described by the petitioner. As stated by the Handbook, management accountants:

[r]ecord and analyze the financial information of the companies for which they work. Among their other responsibilities are budgeting, performance evaluation, cost management, and asset management . . . . They analyze and interpret the financial information that corporate executives need in order to make sound business decisions. They also prepare financial reports for other groups, including stockholders, creditors, regulatory agencies, and tax authorities. Within accounting departments, management accountants may work in various areas, including financial analysis, planning and budgeting, and cost accounting.<sup>1</sup>

The AAO finds the above discussion to be generally reflected in the petitioner's description of the duties of the proposed position and agrees that the petitioner's employment would require the beneficiary to have an understanding of accounting principles. However, not all accounting employment is performed by degreed accountants. Therefore, the performance of duties requiring accounting knowledge does not establish that the proffered position would impose a degree requirement on the beneficiary. The question is not whether the position requires a knowledge of accounting principles, which it does, but rather whether it is one that normally requires the level of accounting knowledge that is signified by at least a bachelor's degree, or its equivalent, in accounting.

The Handbook's discussion of the occupation of accountants clearly indicates that accounting positions may be filled by individuals holding associate degrees or certificates, or who have acquired their accounting expertise through experience:

Capable accountants and auditors may advance rapidly; those having inadequate academic preparation may be assigned routine jobs and find promotion difficult. Many graduates of junior colleges or business or correspondence schools, as well as bookkeepers and accounting clerks who meet the education and experience requirements set by their employers, can obtain junior accounting positions and advance to positions with more responsibilities by demonstrating their accounting skills on the job.

It also notes in its description of the work performed by bookkeeping, accounting and auditing clerks that:

Demand for full-charge bookkeepers is expected to increase, because they are called upon to do much of the work of accountants, as well as perform a wider variety of financial transactions, from payroll to billing. Those with several years of accounting or bookkeeper certification will have the best job prospects.<sup>2</sup>

Further proof of the range of academic backgrounds that may prepare an individual for accounting employment is provided by the credentialing practices of the American Council for Accountancy and Taxation (ACAT), an independent accrediting and monitoring organization affiliated with the National Society of Accountants. The ACAT does not require a degree in accounting or a related specialty to issue a credential as an Accredited Business Accountant® /Accredited Business Advisor® (ABA). Eligibility for the eight-hour comprehensive examination for the ABA credential requires only three years of “verifiable experience in accounting, taxation, financial services, or other fields requiring a practical and theoretical knowledge of the subject matter covered on the ACAT Comprehensive Examination.” Up to two of the required years of work experience may be satisfied through college credit.<sup>3</sup>

To determine whether the accounting knowledge required by the proffered position rises above that which may be acquired through experience or an associate’s degree in accounting,<sup>4</sup> the AAO turns to the record for information regarding the nature of the petitioner’s business operations. In cases where a petitioner’s business is relatively small, like that in the instant case, the AAO reviews the record for evidence that its operations, are, nevertheless, of sufficient scope and/or complexity to indicate that it would employ the beneficiary in an accounting position requiring a level of financial knowledge that may be obtained only through a baccalaureate degree in accounting or its equivalent.

According to the Form I-129, the petitioner has a gross annual income of $250,000 and employs one person. As evidence of the complexity of the proposed position, the petitioner has submitted unaudited financial statements and a valuation statement, both of which were prepared by the beneficiary.

The record fails to offer evidence of the specific financial requirements associated with the petitioner’s company, such as unique accounting systems or financial requirements that would add complexity to the beneficiary’s duties. Neither does it indicate that the petitioner is currently required to manage outstanding business loans or other debt, or to deal with complex financial agreements or other issues that might complicate its financial situation. Therefore, the petitioner has not demonstrated that its business, <sup>3</sup> Information provided by the ACAT website (<http://www.acatcredentials.org/index.html>). The Handbook identifies the ACAT website as one of several “Sources of Additional Information” at the end of its discussion of the occupation of accountants.

<sup>4</sup>According to the website of Skyline College, a community college located in San Mateo, California (<http://www.skylinecollege.net>), an associate’s degree in business or accounting would involve learning the fundamentals about financial accounting principles and concepts, balance sheets, income statements, cash flow statements, the GAAP, forecasting, budgeting, cost accounting, break even analysis, developing and operating a computerized accounting system. Thus, an associate’s degree would provide knowledge about the GAAP and accounting techniques that serve the needs of management and facilitate decision-making.

despite its relatively limited income, has the complexity of financial operations to require a degree in accounting.

Accordingly, the duties of the proposed position are not established as those of a degreed accountant. Instead, they appear more closely aligned to accounting responsibilities that may be performed by junior accountants, employment that does not impose a baccalaureate degree requirement on those seeking entry-level employment. As a result, the petitioner has not established the proposed position as a specialty occupation under the first criterion at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(A) – that a baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position.

Nor does the proposed position qualify as a specialty occupation under either prong of 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(2). The first prong of this regulation requires a showing that a specific degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations.

The AAO has reviewed the job postings submitted by counsel in response to the director's NOID. Counsel, however, has failed to consider the specific requirements at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(2) for establishing a baccalaureate or higher degree as an industry norm. To meet the burden of proof imposed by the regulatory language, a petitioner must establish that its degree requirement exists in parallel positions among similar organizations.

There is no information in the record to demonstrate that any of these companies are similar in size or scope of operations to the petitioner. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972)). Without documentary evidence to support the claim, the assertions of counsel will not satisfy the petitioner's burden of proof. The unsupported assertions of counsel do not constitute evidence. Matter of Obaigbena, 19 I&N Dec. 533, 534 (BIA 1988); Matter of Laureano, 19 I&N Dec. 1 (BIA 1983); Matter of Ramirez-Sanchez, 17 I&N Dec. 503, 506 (BIA 1980).

Discus Dental develops and markets professional tooth whitening systems, Jewish Family Services of Los Angeles is a social services organization, Accounting Principals appears to be an accounting firm, Stivers Staffing Services is a staffing firm, and Sundance Spas, Inc. is a manufacturing firm that specializes in the spa and hydrotherapy industry.

Counsel submits three letters on appeal: one from [REDACTED] dated January 15, 2005, one from [REDACTED], dated January 24, 2005, and one from [REDACTED], dated January 25, 2005. Each author states that he or she owns a dental practice with two staff members, and that they require the services of an accountant with a bachelor's degree. As such, these letters appear to come from companies that are similar in size and scope of operations to the petitioner.

However, the petitioner must also demonstrate that this evidence pertains to "parallel positions," and no such showing was attempted. The authors of these letters provide no information regarding the responsibilities of their degreed accountants. Thus, the AAO cannot analyze whether the positions described by the authors of these letters are in fact parallel to the proposed position.

Moreover, the AAO notes that three letters are too few to establish an industry-wide standard. Moreover, the authors of these letters offered no documentary evidence to support their assertions. See Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. at 165.

Accordingly, the proposed position does not qualify as a specialty occupation under the first prong of 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(2).

The second prong of this regulation requires that the petitioner prove that the duties of the proposed position are so complex or unique that only an individual with a degree can perform them. For reasons already set forth in this decision, the nature of the duties of the proposed position as set forth in this petition does not support such a finding.

Therefore, counsel has not established that the proposed position qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation under either prong of 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(2).

The proposed position does not qualify as a specialty occupation under 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(3), which requires a showing that the petitioner normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position. To determine a petitioner's ability to meet this criterion, the AAO normally reviews the petitioner's past employment practices, as well as the histories, including names and dates of employment, of those employees with degrees who previously held the position, and copies of those employees' diplomas.

No such evidence has been submitted. On appeal, counsel contends that because the petitioner requires the beneficiary of this petition to possess a degree, the position qualifies as a specialty occupation under this criterion. However, the AAO does not agree. One previous hire cannot establish a hiring pattern, as required by the regulation.

Accordingly, the proposed position does not qualify as a specialty occupation under 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(3).

The fourth criterion requires the petitioner to establish that the nature of the specific duties of its position is so specialized and complex that the knowledge required to perform them is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree. The AAO, however, finds no evidence in the record to indicate that the beneficiary's duties would require greater knowledge or skill than that normally possessed by junior accountants. Neither does the position, as described, represent a combination of jobs that would require the beneficiary to have a unique set of skills beyond those of a junior accountant. As a result, the record also fails to establish that the proffered position meets the specialized and complex threshold at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(4).

The petitioner has failed to establish that the proposed position qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation under any of the criteria set forth at 8 C.F.R. §§ 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(1), (2), (3), and (4). As the proposed position is not a specialty occupation, the beneficiary's qualifications to perform its duties are immaterial. Accordingly, the AAO will not disturb the director's denial of the petition.

Finally, the AAO notes that this petition is an application for an extension of previously granted status. However, each nonimmigrant petition is a separate proceeding with a separate record. See 8 C.F.R. § 103.8(d). In making a determination of statutory eligibility, CIS is limited to the information contained in the record of proceeding. See 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(16)(ii). Although the AAO may attempt to hypothesize as to whether the prior petitioner was similar to the position proposed here or was approved in error, no such determination may be made without review of the original record in its entirety. If the prior petition was approved based on evidence substantially similar to the evidence contained in this record of proceeding, however, the approval would constitute material and gross error on the part of the director. CIS is not required to approve petitions where eligibility has not been demonstrated, merely because of prior approvals that may have been erroneous. See, e.g., Matter of Church Scientology International, 19 I&N Dec. 593, 597 (Comm. 1988). Neither CIS nor any other agency must treat acknowledged errors as binding precedent. Sussex Engg. Ltd. v. Montgomery 825 F.2d 1084, 1090 (6th Cir. 1987), cert denied, 485 U.S. 1008 (1988).

Furthermore, the AAO's authority over the service centers is comparable to the relationship between a court of appeals and a district court. Even if a service center director had approved the nonimmigrant petitions on behalf of the beneficiary, the AAO would not be bound to follow the contradictory decision of a service center. Louisiana Philharmonic Orchestra v. INS, 2000 WL 282785 (E.D. La.), aff'd, 248 F.3d 1139 (5th Cir. 2001), cert. denied, 122 S.Ct. 51 (2001).

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not sustained that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. The petition is denied.
