FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the director and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a sub-acute and long term rehabilitation facility. It seeks to employ the beneficiary as a quality assurance coordinator for a period of two years. The director determined the petitioner had not established that the proffered position is a specialty occupation.

On appeal, counsel argues that the proffered position is a specialty occupation and the beneficiary is qualified to perform the duties of a specialty occupation.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b), provides in part for nonimmigrant classification to qualified aliens who are coming temporarily to the United States to perform services in a specialty occupation. Section 214(i)(1) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1184(i)(1), defines a "specialty occupation" as an occupation that requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to section 214(i)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1184(i)(2), to qualify as an alien coming to perform services in a specialty occupation the beneficiary must hold full state licensure to practice in the occupation, if such licensure is required to practice in the occupation. In addition, the beneficiary must have completed the degree required for the occupation, or have experience in the specialty equivalent to the completion of such degree and recognition of expertise in the specialty through progressively responsible positions relating to the specialty.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(B), the petitioner shall submit the following with an H-1B petition involving a specialty occupation:

1. A certification from the Secretary of Labor that the petitioner has filed a labor condition application with the Secretary,
2. A statement that it will comply with the terms of the labor condition application for the duration of the alien's authorized period of stay, and
3. Evidence that the alien qualifies to perform services in the specialty occupation.

The petitioner has provided a certified labor condition application and a statement that it will comply with the terms of the labor condition application.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(C), to qualify to perform services in a specialty occupation, the alien must meet one of the following criteria:

1. Hold a United States baccalaureate or higher degree required by the specialty occupation from an accredited college or university;
2. Hold a foreign degree determined to be equivalent to a United States baccalaureate or higher degree required by the specialty occupation from an accredited college or university;
3. Hold an unrestricted State license, registration, or certification which authorizes him or her to fully practice the specialty occupation and be immediately engaged in that specialty in the state of intended employment; or
4. Have education, specialized training, and/or progressively responsible experience that is equivalent to completion of a United States baccalaureate or higher degree in the specialty occupation and have recognition of expertise in the specialty through progressively responsible positions directly related to the specialty.

The beneficiary's foreign education and experience have been found by a credentials evaluation service to be equivalent to a baccalaureate degree in nursing with a specialty in quality assurance conferred by an institution in the United States. Accordingly, it is concluded that the petitioner has shown that the beneficiary qualifies to perform the duties of the proffered position.

The term "specialty occupation" is defined at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(4)(ii) as:

an occupation which requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge in fields of human endeavor including, but not limited to, architecture, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business specialties, accounting, law, theology, and the arts, and which requires the attainment of a bachelor's degree or higher in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), to qualify as a specialty occupation, the position must meet one of the following criteria:

1. A baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position;
2. The degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations or, in the alternative, an employer may show that its particular position is so complex or unique that it can be performed only by an individual with a degree;
3. The employer normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position; or
4. The nature of the specific duties is so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

The duties of the proffered position are described in pertinent part as follows:

Plans, supervises and coordinates quality assurance activities in all units of the facility; works with facility's director of nursing and assures that all departmental procedures are followed in accordance with established policies on quality assurance standards; interprets and implements quality assurance standards in all units of the facility to ensure quality care to patients; reviews quality assurance standards, studies existing hospital policies and procedures, and interviews facility personnel and patients to evaluate effectiveness of quality assurance program in their respective units; writes quality assurance policies and procedures; reviews and evaluates patients' medical records, applying quality assurance criteria ...; compiles statistical data and writes narrative reports summarizing quality assurance findings

The petitioner has failed to establish that any of the four factors enumerated above are present in this proceeding. The petitioner has not shown that it has, in the past, required the services of individuals with baccalaureate or higher degrees in a specialized area for the proffered position. In addition, the petitioner has not shown that similar firms require the services of such individuals in parallel positions.

Counsel asserts that the proposed position is considered a specialty occupation in view of the court ruling in Hong Kong T.V.

Video Program, Inc. v. Ilchert, 685 F. Supp. 712 (N.D. Cal. 1988), which found a company president position professional based on the complexity of its duties alone even though a degree is not required. The Service does not consider itself bound by this decision outside the Northern District of California. In addition, Hong Kong is inapplicable here because it dealt narrowly with a company president with both extensive experience and significant authority over individuals.

In the court case, the beneficiary was the president of the largest Asian-language video distribution company in the United States, which under the beneficiary's guidance had achieved a gross annual income of approximately $10 million within seven years of the company's founding. In addition, he had direct oversight over 70 employees and over 700 sublicensees, and his salary was $140,000 per year. He was a corporate executive who made decisions at the senior management level of an extensive business operation. He was responsible for corporate strategy, budgeting, financial planning, marketing and promotional strategy, transportation and distribution of goods, product and inventory control, contractual negotiation and determination, and legal involvement with "pirate" firms involved in illegally duplicating and selling the company's products.

Unlike here, the beneficiary supervised managers who, in turn, had supervisors and assistants reporting to them. The supervisors and assistants, in turn, had employees such as foremen, blue-collar workers, secretaries, receptionists, clerks, and sales assistants reporting to them. The beneficiary will not work as a company president. The petitioner has not demonstrated that the duties of the proffered position are as complex as the duties of the beneficiary in Hong Kong.

Counsel has also cited several other decisions of the Service and of the federal courts. These decisions dealt narrowly with membership in the professions, not membership in a specialty occupation. While these terms are similar, they are not synonymous. The term "specialty occupation" is specifically defined in section 214(i) of the Act. That statutory language effectively supersedes the aforementioned decisions.

Counsel argues that the Department of Labor (DOL) has determined that the proffered position is a specialty occupation. Nevertheless, a reference in the Department of Labor's Dictionary of Occupational Titles (DOT), Fourth Edition, 1977, standing alone, is not enough to establish that an occupation is a specialty occupation. The DOT classification system and its categorization of an occupation as "professional and kindred" are not directly related to membership in a profession or specialty occupation as defined in immigration law. In the DOT listing of occupations, any given subject area within the professions contains nonprofessional work, as well as work within the professions.

The latest edition of the DOT does not give information about the educational and other requirements for the different occupations. This type of information is currently furnished by the Department of Labor in the various editions of the Occupational Outlook Handbook (Handbook). The latter publication is given considerable weight (certainly much more than the DOT) in determining whether an occupation is within the professions. This is because it provides specific and detailed information regarding the educational and other requirements for occupations.

In these proceedings, the duties of the position are dispositive and not the job title. The proffered position appears to combine the duties of a health services manager with those of a registered nurse. A review of the Handbook at page 54 finds no requirement of a baccalaureate degree in a specialized area for employment as a health services manager. The Handbook states:

Health services managers must be familiar with management principles and practices. A master's degree in health service administration, long-term care administration, health sciences, public health, public administration or business administration is the standard credential for most generalist positions in this field. However, a bachelor's degree is adequate for some entry-level positions in smaller facilities Physician's offices and some other facilities may substitute on-the-job experience for formal education.

The proffered position appears to be similar to an entry-level position or a position in a physician's office. Although the beneficiary holds the equivalent of a United States baccalaureate degree in nursing, a bachelor's degree in one of several unrelated fields of study appears sufficient to qualify an individual for positions such as the proffered position. One of these fields of study, business administration may not be considered sufficiently specialized. See Matter of Ling, 13 I&N Dec. 35 (Reg. Comm. 1968). In addition, on-the-job experience of unspecified length may be sufficient to qualify an individual to perform duties such as those of the proffered position.

Similarly, a review of the Handbook at page 226 finds no requirement of a baccalaureate degree in a specialized area for employment as a registered nurse. Some registered nurses hold baccalaureate degrees while others hold diplomas or associate (two-year) degrees. Additionally, the Handbook indicates that attempts to raise the educational requirements for a registered nursing license to a baccalaureate degree in nursing have not been successful. In view of the foregoing, it is concluded that the petitioner has not demonstrated that the proffered position is a specialty occupation within the meaning of the regulations.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. The petitioner has not sustained that burden. Accordingly, the decision of the director will not be disturbed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
