INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

If you believe the law was inappropriately applied or the analysis used in reaching the decision was inconsistent with the information provided or with precedent decisions, you may file a motion to reconsider. Such a motion must state the reasons for reconsideration and be supported by any pertinent precedent decisions. Any motion to reconsider must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider, as required under 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i).

If you have new or additional information that you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reopen. Such a motion must state the new facts to be proved at the reopened proceeding and be supported by affidavits or other documentary evidence. Any motion to reopen must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reopen, except that failure to file before this period expires may be excused in the discretion of the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services (Bureau) where it is demonstrated that the delay was reasonable and beyond the control of the applicant or petitioner. Id.

Any motion must be filed with the office that originally decided your case along with a fee of $110 as required under 8 C.F.R. § 103.7.

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be sustained.

The petitioner is a women's clothing fashion design company with 12 employees and a gross annual income of $1.6 million. It seeks to employ the beneficiary as a fashion designer for a period of three years. The director determined the petitioner had not established that the offered position is a specialty occupation.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief and additional documentation.

The term "specialty occupation" is defined at section 214(i)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (The Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1), as an occupation that requires:

- (A) theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and
- (B) attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

The term "specialty occupation" is further defined at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(ii) defines the term "specialty occupation" as:

an occupation which requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge in fields of human endeavor including, but not limited to, architecture, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business specialties, accounting, law, theology, and the arts, and which requires the attainment of a bachelor's degree or higher in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

The director denied the petition because the petitioner had not demonstrated that a baccalaureate degree in fashion design is the normal minimum requirement for entry into the occupation.

On appeal, counsel asserts that the petitioner has shown that a baccalaureate degree in a specific specialty is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the occupation, that the degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations, and that the petitioner requires a bachelor's degree in fashion design for the proffered position.

When determining whether a particular job qualifies as a specialty occupation, the Bureau considers the specific duties of the offered position combined with the nature of the petitioning entity's business operations. In the initial I-129 petition, the petitioner described the duties of the offered position as follows:

[The beneficiary] will be responsible for originating, creating and designing women's dresses, utilizing knowledge of fashion art, color, fabrics, design theory and fashion trends. He will consult with technical and merchandising staff, research and assess consumer preference and acceptance of new designs, and formulate designs based upon their effect in the marketplace. He will prepare fashion designs and illustrations, and will prepare written instructions to specify details, such as finish, color and construction of clothing. Furthermore, he will be responsible for examining and assessing fabricated samples and modifying the design as required. In addition, he will coordinate production and merchandising of new clothing lines.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), to qualify as a specialty occupation, the position must meet one of the following criteria:

1. A baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position;
2. The degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations or, in the alternative, an employer may show that its particular position is so complex or unique that it can be performed only by an individual with a degree;
3. The employer normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position; or

4. The nature of the specific duties is so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

The proffered position is that of a fashion designer. A review of the Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Handbook, 2002-2003 edition, at page 122 finds that a bachelor's degree is required for most entry-level fashion design positions. In view of the foregoing, it is concluded that the proffered position of fashion designer is a specialty occupation within the meaning of the regulations.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has sustained that burden. Accordingly, the appeal will be sustained and the petition will be approved.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained. The director's order is withdrawn and the petition is approved.
