Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the director and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is an engineering consulting firm with one employee and an estimated gross annual income of $100,000. It seeks to employ the beneficiary as a programmer analyst for a period of three years. The director determined the petitioner had not submitted contracts or an itinerary indicating where the beneficiary would work. The director further determined that without such contracts and itinerary, the petitioner had not established that it is the beneficiary's employer, or that it had complied with the terms of the labor condition application.

On appeal, the petitioner's administration manager submits additional information.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b), provides in part for nonimmigrant classification to qualified aliens who are coming temporarily to the United States to perform services in a specialty occupation. Section 214(i)(1) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1), defines a "specialty occupation" as an occupation that requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

The director denied the petition because the petitioner had not submitted valid contracts demonstrating that the beneficiary would be involved in computer programmer services. The director further found that the petitioner had not submitted a labor condition application listing the locations where the beneficiary would be employed and other details of his employment such as his wage rate. On appeal, the petitioner's administration manager submits various contracts.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(2)(i)(F), Agents as petitioners:

A United States agent may file a petition in cases involving workers who are traditionally self-employed or workers who use agents to arrange short-term employment on their behalf with numerous employers, and in cases where a foreign employer authorizes the agent to act on its behalf. A United States agent may be: the actual employer of the beneficiary, the representative of both the employer and the beneficiary, or, a person or entity authorized by the employer to act for, in place of, the employer as its agent. A petition filed by a United States agent is subject to the following conditions;

(1) An agent performing the function of an employer must guarantee the wages and other terms and conditions of employment by contractual agreement with the beneficiary or beneficiaries of the petition. The agent/employer must also provide an itinerary of definite employment and information on any other services planned for the period of time requested.

(2) A person or company in business as an agent may file the H petition involving multiple employers as the representative of both the employers and the beneficiary or beneficiaries if the supporting documentation includes a complete itinerary of services or engagements. The itinerary shall specify the dates of each service or engagement, the names and addresses of the actual employers, and the names and addresses of the establishment, venues, or locations where the services will be performed. In questionable cases, a contract between the employers and the beneficiary or beneficiaries may be required. The burden is on the agent to explain the terms and conditions of the employment and to provide any required documentation.

(3) A foreign employer, who, through a United States agent, files a petition for an H nonimmigrant alien is responsible for complying with all of the employer sanctions provisions of section 274A of the Act and 8 C.F.R. part 274a.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(ii):

United States employer means a person, firm, corporation, contractor, or other association, or organization in the United States which:

- (1) Engages a person to work within the United States;
- (2) Has an employer-employee relationship with respect to employees under this part, as indicated by the fact that it may hire, pay, fire, supervise, or otherwise control the work of any such employee; and

(3) Has an Internal Revenue Service Tax identification number.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(2)(i)(B):

A petition which requires services to be performed or training to be received in more than one location must include an itinerary with the dates and locations of the services or training

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iv)(B), an H-1B petition involving a specialty occupation shall be accompanied by:

Copies of any written contracts between the petitioner and beneficiary, or a summary of the terms of the oral agreement under which the beneficiary will be employed, if there is no written contract.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(9)(i), the director shall consider all the evidence submitted and such other evidence as he or she may independently require to assist his or her adjudication. (Emphasis added.)

Further, in a Bureau memorandum entitled "Supporting Documentation for H-1B Petitions," dated November 13, 1995, it states as follows:

Requests for contracts should be made only in those cases where the officer can articulate a specific need for such documentation.

In a letter dated September 7, 2001, the petitioner's human resources administrator states, in part, as follows:

In general, our firm assists mid-sized and large businesses in implementing and using information technology. Our services include desktop application support and support custom application programming and general systems strategy.

The record contains the following:

- Contract Agreement dated November 26, 2001, between the petitioner and the beneficiary, stating, in part, that the beneficiary will be performing "computer programming related assignment as a Programmer Analyst . . . at the client location";

- Professional Services Agreement dated October 19, 2001, between the petitioner and Enterprise Solutions, Inc. (unsigned by the representative of Enterprise Solutions, Inc.), stating that the petitioner will provide its staff to perform professional services;
- Non Solicitation and Non Hiring Agreement dated September 26, 2001, between the petitioner and Allied Informatics, Inc. (unsigned by the representative of Allied Informatics, Inc.), for the petitioner to provide a consultant named [REDACTED]
- Subcontractor Agreement dated December 1, 2000, between the petitioner and Corporate Computer Services, Inc., stating that the petitioner will provide professional services as an agent of Corporate Computer Services, Inc., and that a work order with a list of services to be provided will be issued under the said agreement.

The record contains a summary of the terms of employment indicating that the petitioner has hired the beneficiary and will pay the beneficiary's salary. Although the record may demonstrate that the petitioner and beneficiary share an employer-employee relationship, as with employment agencies as petitioners, the Bureau must examine the ultimate employment of the alien, and determine whether the position qualifies as a specialty occupation. Cf. Defensor v. Meissner, 201 F.3d 384 (5th Cir. 2000). The critical element is not whether the petitioner is an employer or an agent, but whether the position actually requires the theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and the attainment of a bachelor's degree in the specific specialty as the minimum for entry into the occupation as required by the Act.¹ To interpret the regulations any other way would lead to absurd results: if the Bureau was limited to reviewing a petitioner's self-imposed employment requirements, then any alien with a bachelor's degree could be brought into the United States to perform a menial, non-professional, or an otherwise non-specialty occupation, so long as the employer required all such employees to have bachelor's degrees. See id. at 388.

In this case, although the record contains a few contracts between the petitioner and its clients, nowhere in the record does the ¹ The court in Defensor v. Meissner observed that the four criteria at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A) present certain ambiguities when compared to the statutory definition, and "might also be read as merely an additional requirement that a position must meet, in addition to the statutory and regulatory definition." Supra at 387.

petitioner indicate which client location is the site of the beneficiary's intended employment. Furthermore, nowhere in the record is there a comprehensive description of the beneficiary's proposed duties from an authorized representative of the client for which the beneficiary will perform work. Without such information, the petitioner has not demonstrated that the proffered position meets the statutory definition of specialty occupation. In view of the foregoing, the petition may not be approved.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(B), the petitioner shall submit the following with an H-1B petition involving a specialty occupation:

1. A certification from the Secretary of Labor that the petitioner has filed a labor condition application with the Secretary,
2. A statement that it will comply with the terms of the labor condition application for the duration of the alien's authorized period of stay,
3. Evidence that the alien qualifies to perform services in the specialty occupation

The petitioner has provided a certified labor condition application and a statement that it will comply with the terms of the labor condition application. Although the contracts in the record indicate that the beneficiary could be employed at a variety of locations, the labor condition application indicates that the beneficiary will be employed solely in Los Angeles, CA. As such, the petitioner has not demonstrated that it has complied with the terms of the labor condition application. For this additional reason, the petition may not be approved.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not sustained that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
