Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the director and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be sustained.

The petitioner is a church founded in 1748. It has three employees and seeks to employ the beneficiary as a part-time choir director and music teacher for a period of three years. The director determined the petitioner had not established that the proffered position is a specialty occupation.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b), provides, in part, for nonimmigrant classification to qualified aliens who are coming temporarily to the United States to perform services in a specialty occupation. Section 214(i)(1) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1), defines a "specialty occupation" as an occupation that requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to section 214(i)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(2), to qualify as an alien coming to perform services in a specialty occupation the beneficiary must hold full state licensure to practice in the occupation, if such licensure is required to practice in the occupation. In addition, the beneficiary must have completed the degree required for the occupation, or have experience in the specialty equivalent to the completion of such degree and recognition of expertise in the specialty through progressively responsible positions relating to the specialty.

The director denied the petition because the petitioner had not demonstrated that a baccalaureate degree is required for the proffered position. On appeal, counsel submits additional evidence to demonstrate that the proffered position requires a baccalaureate degree in music, or an equivalent thereof, including expert opinions and job listings.

In the initial I-129 petition, the petitioner described the duties of the offered position as follows:

[The beneficiary] is being offered part-time temporary employment in the professional position of Choral Director. [The beneficiary] will be teaching Sunday school children as well as the regular choir. [The beneficiary] will conduct choir and select music to suit the performance requirements and accommodate the talent and ability of the group as a whole. She will direct the choir at rehearsals and during performances to achieve desired effects, such as tonal and harmonic balance, dynamics, rhythm, and tempo, utilizing her knowledge of conducting techniques and music theory. She may also be required to conduct group [sic] with instrumental accompaniment. This position requires theoretical and practical application of specialized knowledge of Music and the teaching thereof.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), to qualify as a specialty occupation, the position must meet one of the following criteria:

1. A baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position;
2. The degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations or, in the alternative, an employer may show that its particular position is so complex or unique that it can be performed only by an individual with a degree;
3. The employer normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position; or
4. The nature of the specific duties is so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

The proffered position is that of a musician/music director. In its Occupational Outlook Handbook the Department of Labor finds:

Musicians need extensive and prolonged training to acquire the necessary skills, knowledge, and ability to interpret music. . . . Formal training may be obtained through private study with an accomplished musician, in a college or university music program, or in a music conservatory. . . . Courses typically include musical theory, music interpretation, composition, conducting, and performance in their particular instrument or voice. Music directors, composers, conductors, and arrangers need considerable related work experience or advanced training in these subjects.

It is noted that not all music director positions may be considered specialty occupations. Each position must be evaluated based upon the nature and complexity of the actual duties. In this instance, the duties are of such complexity as to require a baccalaureate degree in a specialized and related area. In view of the foregoing, it is concluded that the petitioner has demonstrated that the proffered position is a specialty occupation within the meaning of regulations.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has sustained that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained. The director's order is withdrawn and the petition is approved.
