IN RE: Petitioner:
Beneficiary:

PETITION: Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker Pursuant to Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

Mari Johnson

to Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The service center director denied the nonimmigrant visa petition and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed. The petition will be denied.

The petitioner is a recess lighting manufacturer. It seeks to employ the beneficiary as an advertising and promotions representative, and endeavors to classify her as a nonimmigrant worker in a specialty occupation pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b).

The director denied the petition because the proffered position is not a specialty occupation. On appeal, counsel submits a brief and additional information.

The issue to be discussed in this proceeding is whether the position offered to the beneficiary qualifies as a specialty occupation.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b), provides, in part, for the classification of qualified nonimmigrant aliens who are coming temporarily to the United States to perform services in a specialty occupation.

Section 214(i)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1), defines the term "specialty occupation" as an occupation that requires:

- (A) theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and
- (B) attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

The term "specialty occupation" is further defined at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(ii) as:

[A]n occupation which requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge in field of human endeavor including, but not limited to, architecture, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business specialties, accounting, law, theology, and the arts, and which requires the attainment of a bachelor's degree or higher in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), to qualify as a specialty occupation, the position must meet one of the following criteria:

- (1) A baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position;
- (2) The degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations or, in the alternative, an employer may show that its particular position is so complex or unique that it can be performed only by an individual with a degree;
- (3) The employer normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position; or

- (4) The nature of the specific duties are so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS) interprets the term "degree" in the criteria at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A) to mean not just any baccalaureate or higher degree, but one in a specific specialty that is directly related to the proffered position.

The record of proceeding before the AAO contains: (1) Form I-129 and supporting documentation; (2) the director's request for additional evidence; (3) the petitioner's response to the director's request; (4) the director's denial letter; and (5) the Form I-290B with supporting documentation. The AAO reviewed the record in its entirety before issuing its decision.

The petitioner is seeking the beneficiary's services as an advertising and promotion representative. Evidence of the beneficiary's duties was included with the I-129 petition, and in response to the director's request for evidence. According to this evidence the beneficiary would: learn the company's operation, products, prices, terms/conditions, warranties, and designs in order to give customers' accurate information; monitor international light fair showcase/exhibition dates in order to reserve booths for the company; sign contracts and pay necessary exhibition fees; prepare and choose products to be displayed with corresponding brochures; attend exhibits/shows to answer questions and explain/promote products; respond to customer inquiries; and provide ideas/creativity in producing, composing, and designing brochures for shows, exhibits, or press releases. The petitioner requires a minimum of a bachelor's degree in communications, journalism, public relations, marketing, sociology, or economics for entry into the offered position.

The director found that the offered position did not qualify as a specialty occupation and failed to meet any of the criteria of 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A). On appeal, counsel indicates that the offered position qualifies as a specialty occupation Upon review of the record, the petitioner has failed to establish that a baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the offered position, or that a degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations, as asserted by counsel. Factors often considered by CIS when determining these criteria include: whether the Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Handbook, (Handbook), reports that the industry requires a degree; whether an industry professional association has made a degree a minimum entry requirement; and whether letters or affidavits from firms or individuals in the industry attest that such firms "routinely employ and recruit only degreed individuals." See Shanti, Inc. v. Reno, 36 F. Supp. 2d 1151, 1165 (D. Min. 1999) (quoting Hird/Baker Corp. v. Slattery, 764 F. Supp. 872, 1102 (S.D.N.Y. 1991).

The AAO routinely consults the Handbook for information about the duties and educational requirements of particular occupations. The duties of the proffered position are essentially those noted for advertising, marketing, promotions, public relations, and sales managers in the Handbook. The Handbook notes that a wide range of educational backgrounds is suitable for entry into those positions, but that many employers prefer related experience plus a broad liberal arts background. Bachelor's degrees in sociology, psychology, literature, journalism, philosophy, or other subjects are suitable. Requirements will vary, however, depending on the duties of a particular position. For example, marketing, sales, and promotion management positions may require a bachelor's or master's degree in business administration with an emphasis in marketing. In highly technical industries, such as computer and electronics manufacturing, a degree in engineering or science combined with a business degree may be preferred. In public relations management positions some employers prefer a bachelor's or master's degree in public relations or journalism. The Handbook further notes that most advertising, marketing, promotions, public relations, and sales management positions are filled by promoting experienced staff or related professional or technical personnel. Many managers are former sales representatives, purchasing agents, or promotions specialists. A baccalaureate or higher degree in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, is not, therefore, the minimum requirement for entry into the position. A degree in any number of disciplines will suffice. The petitioner has not established the first criterion of 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A).

The petitioner has failed to establish that a degree requirement in a specific specialty is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(2). In support of this assertion the petitioner submitted numerous job advertisements. The advertisements, however, confirm the findings noted in the Handbook concerning educational requirements for the offered position, that any number of degrees will qualify potential employees for the position. For example, the advertisements indicate that the following degrees are acceptable for entry into similar positions: journalism, communications, public relations, business, marketing, English literature, engineering, law, planning, public administration, and economics. Some of the advertisements did not specify any particular degree discipline, only that a degree was required. Others required only job experience with no degree requirement. A degree requirement in a specific specialty is not an industry standard for parallel positions.

The petitioner does not assert that it normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the offered position as the position is new in the organization. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(3).

Finally, the petitioner has not established that the nature of the specific duties is so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform them is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree in a specific specialty. Nor has it established that the duties of the offered position are so complex or unique that they can only be performed by an individual with a degree in a specific specialty. The duties of the offered position are routine in the industry for advertising, marketing, promotions, public relations, and sales managers. The petitioner has, therefore, failed to satisfy the requirements of 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(2) and (4).

It should further be noted that counsel's assertions regarding the Dictionary of Occupational Titles SVP rating for the offered position are also unpersuasive. An SVP rating is meant to indicate only the total number of years of vocational preparation required for a particular position. The SVP classification does not describe how those years are to be divided among training, formal education, and experience, nor does it specify the particular type of degree, if any, that a position would require.

As related in the discussion above, the petitioner has failed to establish that the proffered position is a specialty occupation. Accordingly, the AAO shall not disturb the director's denial of the petition.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not sustained that burden and the appeal shall accordingly be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. The petition is denied.
