Robert P. Wiemann, Chief
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The director denied the nonimmigrant visa petition and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be sustained. The petition will be approved.

The petitioner is a law firm that seeks to employ the beneficiary as a law clerk. The petitioner, therefore, endeavors to classify the beneficiary as a nonimmigrant worker in a specialty occupation pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b).

The director denied the petition on the basis of her determination that the petitioner had failed to establish that the proposed position qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation.

The record of proceeding before the AAO contains (1) the Form I-129 and supporting documentation; (2) the director's request for additional evidence; (3) the petitioner's response to the director's request; (4) the director's denial letter; and (5) the Form I-290B and supporting documentation. The AAO reviewed the record in its entirety before issuing its decision.

Section 214(i)(1) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1184(i)(1) defines the term "specialty occupation" as one that requires:

- (A) theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and
- (B) attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

The term "specialty occupation" is further defined at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(ii) as:

An occupation which requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge in fields of human endeavor including, but not limited to, architecture, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business specialties, accounting, law, theology, and the arts, and which requires the attainment of a bachelor's degree or higher in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), to qualify as a specialty occupation, the position must meet one of the following criteria:

- (1) A baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position;
- (2) The degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations or, in the alternative, an employer may show that its particular position is so complex or unique that it can be performed only by an individual with a degree;
- (3) The employer normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position; or

- (4) The nature of the specific duties is so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS) interprets the term "degree" in the criteria at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A) to mean not just any baccalaureate or higher degree, but one in a specific specialty that is directly related to the proposed position.

In its May 24, 2006 letter of support, the petitioner stated that the duties of the proposed position would include researching for and studying legal documents to investigate facts and law of cases in order to determine causes of action and to prepare cases; preparing immigration forms, petitions, complaints, motions, and affidavits; maintaining document files and case correspondence; translating documents from [REDACTED] into English; researching and analyzing law sources to prepare drafts, briefs, or legal arguments for the review, approval, and use by attorneys; drafting correspondence with other attorneys and clients; reviewing and filing pleadings, petitions, and other documents relevant to court actions; delivering or directing the delivery of subpoenas to witnesses and parties to actions; storing, cataloging, and maintaining client files; and writing briefs and responses.

The proposed position qualifies as a specialty occupation under 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A)(4), which requires a showing that the nature of the specific duties of the proposed position is so specialized and complex that the knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

The petitioner has submitted detailed information regarding the duties of its proposed position, and they exceed the occupational scope of those typically performed by paralegals. The description of the duties of the proposed position, in combination with this particular record's information about the petitioner's business, establishes that the duties of the proposed position are so specialized and complex that the knowledge required to perform them is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree in the field of law.

Accordingly, the proposed position qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation.

The record establishes that the beneficiary obtained a master's degree in international business law from Exeter University in 2005. According to an evaluation contained in the record, this degree is equivalent to a master's degree in international business law from a United States institution of higher education. She therefore qualifies to perform the duties of this specialty occupation.

The petitioner has demonstrated that the proposed position qualifies for classification as a specialty occupation and that the beneficiary qualifies to perform the duties of a specialty occupation. Accordingly, the director's decision will be reversed and the petition approved.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has sustained that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained. The petition is approved.
