FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER, EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be sustained.

The petitioner is engaged in the business of providing long distance transportation of freight, primarily fresh fruit and produce. It desires to employ the beneficiaries as long distance tractor-trailer drivers for a period of seven months. The Department of Labor determined that a temporary labor certification by the Secretary of Labor could not be made because the employer had not established a temporary need for the workers. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that the need for the services to be performed is temporary.

On appeal, the petitioner states that its business definitely has a peak or seasonal nature.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii), defines an H-2B temporary worker as:

an alien...having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning, who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country, but this clause shall not apply to graduates of medical schools coming to the United States to perform services as members of the medical profession....

Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I&N Dec. 366 (Comm. 1982), as codified in current regulations at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii), specified that the test for determining whether an alien is coming "temporarily" to the United States to "perform temporary services or labor" is whether the need of the petitioner for the duties to be performed is temporary. It is the nature of the need, not the nature of the duties, that is controlling. See 55 Fed. Reg. 2616 (1990).

As a general rule, the period of the petitioner's need must be a year or less, although there may be extraordinary circumstances where the temporary services or labor might last longer than one year. The petitioner's need for the services or labor must be a one-time occurrence, a seasonal need, a peakload need, or an intermittent need. 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B).

On appeal, the petitioner indicates that the dates of intended employment for the beneficiaries are from June-December. The petitioner states that its business definitely has a peak or seasonal increase. The petition also indicates that the employment is a peakload need.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B)(3) states that for the nature of the petitioner's need to be a peakload need, the petitioner must establish that it regularly employs permanent workers to perform the services or labor at the place of employment and that it needs to supplement its permanent staff at the place of employment on a temporary basis due to a seasonal or short-term demand and that the temporary additions to staff will not become a part of the petitioner's regular operation.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B)(2) states that for the nature of the petitioner's need to be a seasonal need, the petitioner must establish that the services or labor is traditionally tied to a season of the year by an event or pattern and is of a recurring nature.

The petition indicates that the petitioner currently employs 75 employees. The petitioner explains that as a refrigerated carrier, it specializes in the hauling of fresh fruit and produce from the west coast back to the midwest and that the majority of produce it hauls is harvested from June-December. The petitioner states that it seeks the services of the beneficiaries in order to supplement its long haul driving staff during these months.

The evidence establishes that the petitioner's need for the services or labor to be performed is seasonal and for only a temporary period. The services or labor to be performed is traditionally tied to a certain time of the year. The seasonal nature of this employment renders it temporary.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. Here, the petitioner has sustained that burden. Accordingly, as eligibility has been established, the petition will be approved.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained. The director's decision is withdrawn and the petition is approved.
