FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER, EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner engages in the business of shipbuilding. It desires to employ the beneficiaries as first class shipfitters for a period of one year. The Department of Labor determined that a temporary certification by the Secretary of Labor could not be made. The director determined that a temporary need for the beneficiaries' services had not been established.

On appeal, counsel states that the director abused his discretion by finding that the petitioner's need is permanent and not temporary.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii), defines an H-2B temporary worker as:

an alien...having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning, who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country, but this clause shall not apply to graduates of medical schools coming to the United States to perform services as members of the medical profession....

Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I&N Dec. 366 (Comm. 1982), codified in current regulations at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii), specified that the test for determining whether an alien is coming "temporarily" to the United States to "perform temporary services or labor" is whether the need of the petitioner for the duties to be performed is temporary. It is the nature of the need, not the nature of the duties, that is controlling. See 55 Fed. Reg. 2616 (1990).

As a general rule, the period of the petitioner's need must be a year or less, although there may be extraordinary circumstances where the temporary services or labor might last longer than one year. The petitioner's need for the services or labor must be a one-time occurrence, a seasonal need, a peakload need, or an intermittent need. 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B).

The Petition for a Nonimmigrant Worker (Form I-129) indicates that the dates of intended employment for the beneficiaries are from April 1, 2001 until March 31, 2002. The petition also indicates that the employment is peakload and that the temporary need is unpredictable. Further, in a letter dated March 7, 2001, the petitioner states that the first class shipfitters positions it is petitioning for are to satisfy a peakload need.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B)(3) states that for the nature of the petitioner's need to be a peak-load need, the petitioner must establish that it regularly employs permanent workers to perform the services or labor at the place of employment and that it needs to supplement its permanent staff at the place of employment on a temporary basis due to a seasonal or short-term demand and that the temporary additions to staff will not become a part of the petitioner's regular operation.

The Application for Alien Employment Certification (Form ETA 750) indicates that the beneficiaries will be employed full-time with 10 hours over-time and paid a salary of $13.64 per hour, which calculates to an annual salary of $28,371. The nontechnical description of the job in the newspaper and on Form ETA 750 reads:

Lay out and fabricate metal structural parts, such as plates, bulkheads, frame and brace structural parts in the hull of the ship for welding. Lay out position of parts on metal working from blue prints or templates and using scribe and handballs. Locate and mark reference lines such as center, buttock and frame lines. Mark location of holes to be drilled, install temporary fasteners to hold in place for welding. May tack/weld clips and brackets in place prior to permanent welding. A significant portion of the duties will involve training of U.S. workers to work as full time shipfitters. Duties may include demonstration, classroom, on-the-job, and supervisory training; as well as mentoring and development of training curriculum.

The petitioner also explains in its letter dated March 7, 2001 that its peakload need is due to its alliance partner's recent announcement of a $350 million short-term new vessel construction program and a $4.3 billion dollar overall new vessel construction program.

The petitioner's stated need for welders does not show that the petitioner supplements its permanent staff on a temporary basis due to a short-term demand. The petitioner's need for welders for an entire year cannot be considered a short-term demand as there is no indication when the petitioner operates with only its permanent employees. Further, the need to lay out and fabricate metal structural parts and brace structural parts in the hull of the ship for welding, which is the nature of the petitioner's business, will always exist. The petitioner has not shown that its need for the beneficiaries' services is a peakload need.

In the petitioner's "Employer Plan for Shipfitters" it is stated that the peakload, temporary one-time need is based on the new vessel construction programs.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B)(1) states that for the nature of the petitioner's need to be a one-time occurrence, the petitioner must establish that it will not need workers to perform the services or labor in the future.

In the "Employer Plan for Shipfitters" the petitioner states that "to date we have turned down in excess of $20 million worth of business due to the shortage of skilled workers, more particularly first class shipfitters and welders." The petitioner has not shown that the increase in production is a one-time occurrence. The petitioner has not demonstrated that the nature of its need for first class shipfitters is temporary in nature.

Further, the beneficiaries' job description states that "a significant portion of the duties will involve training of U.S. workers to work as full time shipfitters." Petitions pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii) of the Act for a class or type of employee for which the petitioner has a permanent need where the petitioner makes attempts to establish the temporariness of its need for the beneficiary's services by stipulating that the beneficiary will function as a trainer or instructor rather than in a productive capacity must be accompanied by evidence of the existence of a training program, by evidence that the petitioner has recruited or hired trainees, and by evidence that the petitioner can viably employ a full-time instructor and can viably simultaneously operate a training program and a commercial or other enterprise. Matter of Golden Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 238 (Comm. 1984).

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. Here, the petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
