Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and the matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is engaged in the business of recycling materials. It seeks to employ the beneficiaries as salvage laborers for ten months. The Department of Labor (DOL) determined that a temporary certification by the Secretary of Labor could not be made. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that a temporary need exists for these positions.

On appeal, the petitioner states that the labor is performed on a seasonal basis.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii), defines an H-2B temporary worker as:

an alien...having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning, who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country, but this clause shall not apply to graduates of medical schools coming to the United States to perform services as members of the medical profession....

Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I&N Dec. 366 (Comm. 1982), codified in current regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii), specified that the test for determining whether an alien is coming "temporarily" to the United States to "perform temporary services or labor" is whether the need of the petitioner for the duties to be performed is temporary. It is the nature of the need, not the nature of the duties, that is controlling. See 55 Fed. Reg. 2616 (1990).

As a general rule, the period of the petitioner's need must be a year or less, although there may be extraordinary circumstances where the temporary services or labor might last longer than one year. The petitioner's need for the services or labor must be a one-time occurrence, a seasonal need, a peakload need, or an intermittent need. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B).

The petition indicates that the employment is seasonal and that the temporary need recurs annually.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B)(2) states that for the nature of the petitioner's need to be seasonal, the petitioner must establish that the services or labor is traditionally tied to a season of the year by an event or pattern and is of a recurring nature. The petitioner shall specify the period(s) of time during each year in which it does not need the services or labor. The employment is not seasonal if the period during which the services or labor is not needed is unpredictable or subject to change or is considered a vacation period for the petitioner's permanent employees.

The nontechnical description of the job on the Application for Alien Employment Certification (Form ETA 750) reads:

Salvages materials at commercial establishment. Collects reusable items and waste materials, such as scrap metal, in scrap barrels and other containers, using handtruck and wheelbarrow. Inspects materials sorts items into piles. Moves reusable material to production department or storage.

The director determined in his decision that the offered positions were not temporary. However, it is the petitioner's need for the services which is controlling. Therefore, it must be shown that the petitioner's need for the beneficiaries' services is temporary.

Upon review, the petitioner states that it does not operate its equipment during the months of January and February, or hire workers. The petitioner also states that the equipment is very large and there are no indoor facilities for this work. However, this reasoning does not demonstrate that the recycling of materials, such as scrap metal, is traditionally tied to a season of the year by an event or pattern. The petitioner operates a recycling business, and therefore, has a permanent need for laborers to collect reusable items and waste materials in order for its business to continue to exist. Consequently, the employment cannot be considered a seasonal need and for only a temporary period.

This petition may not be approved for another reason. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(2)(iii) states in pertinent part that:

Named beneficiaries. Nonagricultural petitions must include the names of beneficiaries and other required information at the time of filing. Under the H-2B classification, exceptions may be granted in emergent situations involving multiple beneficiaries at the discretion of the director, and in special filing situations as determined by the Service's Headquarters.

The decision to allow unnamed beneficiaries on an H-2B petition should be based on evidence from the petitioner clearly describing the "emergent situation." In general, the decision to allow unnamed beneficiaries on an H-2B petition should be based on valid business reasons.

In this case, the petitioner has not justified why the beneficiaries are unnamed on the petition. The petitioner has not presented valid business reasons that would allow the director to waive the names of the temporary nonagricultural workers at the time of filing. For this additional reason, the petition may not be approved.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, the petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
