Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and certified to the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) for review. The decision of the director will be affirmed.

The petitioner operates an Indian restaurant. It desires to employ the beneficiary as a sous chef for one year. The Department of Labor (DOL) determined that a temporary certification by the Secretary of Labor could not be made because the petitioner had not established a temporary need. The director concurred with the findings of the Department of Labor.

On notice of certification, neither counsel nor the petitioner submitted additional evidence. Therefore, the record is considered complete.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(b), defines an H-2B temporary worker as:

an alien having a residence in a foreign country which he has no intention of abandoning, who is coming temporarily to the United States to perform other temporary service or labor if unemployed persons capable of performing such service or labor cannot be found in this country

The test for determining whether an alien is coming "temporarily" to the United States to "perform temporary services or labor" is whether the need of the petitioner for the duties to be performed is temporary. It is the nature of the need, not the nature of the duties, that is controlling. Matter of Artee Corp., 18 I&N Dec. 366 (Comm. 1982).

As a general rule, the period of the petitioner's need must be a year or less, although there may be extraordinary circumstances where the temporary services or labor might last longer than one year. The petitioner's need for the services or labor must be a one-time occurrence, a seasonal need, a peakload need, or an intermittent need. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B). The petition indicates that the employment is a one-time occurrence and that the temporary need is unpredictable.

To establish that the nature of the need is a "one-time occurrence," the petitioner must demonstrate that it has not employed workers to perform the services or labor in the past and that it will not need workers to perform the services or labor in the future, or that it has an employment situation that is otherwise permanent, but a temporary event of short duration has created the need for a temporary worker. 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(h)(6)(ii)(B)(1).

The nontechnical description of the job on the Application for Alien Employment Certification (Form ETA 750) reads:

Supervise and coordinate activities of cooks and other kitchen workers engaged in preparing and cooking Indian specialty foods; Give instructions to cooking personnel in fine points of cooking; Observe workers engaged in preparing, portioning, and garnishing foods to ensure that methods of cooking and garnishing, and sizes of portions are as prescribed; Prepare dishes, including sauces and soups, during rush periods; Create special desserts, sweets and pastries, and develop recipes; Manage catering activities for both corporate and private events.

The record of proceeding contains the DOL's final determination notification, dated May 6, 2002. The DOL determined that a certification could not be made because the employer had not established a temporary need for the beneficiary. The employer's stated period of need is from March 1, 2002 through February 28, 2003. The DOL determined that the job is for permanent employment and must be advertised and offered to United States workers. The DOL also determined that a bona fide job opportunity does not exist because the restaurant is still reported to be under construction with an undetermined opening date.

In a letter, dated May 16, 2002, the petitioner states that its need would be a one-time occurrence because the sous chef will train junior chefs to take over his position. The petitioner goes on to state that it should take no more than a year to plan menus, devise certain types of specialty dishes and recipes to attract prospective customers.

Upon review, the evidence submitted does not establish that the petitioner's need for the services to be performed can be classified as a one-time occurrence. The petitioner has not shown that it will not need a worker to perform the services or labor in the future. The petitioner has not demonstrated that a temporary event of short duration has created the need for a sous chef.

Further, the petitioner has not established that the restaurant is operational. The petitioner states that it has already acquired the location, obtained the kitchen equipment, and ordered the furniture and furnishings. However, simply going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. See Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972).

Furthermore, a training program has not been outlined in the record of proceeding providing details of the training. Absent a training program, the petitioner has not established that the beneficiary will not be engaged in productive full-time employment. Matter of Golden Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 238 (Comm. 1984). The petitioner has not shown that the nature of its need for a sous chef is a one-time occurrence and temporary.

As always, the burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361.

ORDER: The decision of the director is affirmed.
The petition is denied.
