Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Missouri Service Center, and is before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a native of China and naturalized citizen of the United States. The beneficiary is a native and citizen of China and the child of the petitioner. The petitioner seeks to have the beneficiary classified as a K-4 child of a U.S. citizen. The director denied the petition after determining that the beneficiary is not eligible for such classification because he is not the derivative beneficiary of an approved K-3 nonimmigrant visa petition.

On appeal, the petitioner submits an excerpt from the Legal Immigration Family Equity (LIFE) Act which provides nonimmigrant "K" classification for spouses and children of United States citizens who wish to enter the United States as nonimmigrants.

To be eligible for the "K-4" nonimmigrant visa classification, an alien must be the unmarried child of a K-3 alien who is accompanying or following to join him or her. A K-4 nonimmigrant visa may only be issued to a derivative dependent of a K-3 nonimmigrant.

The record indicates that the beneficiary's parents were married in January 1988 in China, and the beneficiary was born in China on September 5, 2000. The record also indicates that the beneficiary's mother became a naturalized U.S. citizen on June 14, 2001, and his father is a lawful permanent resident. The record is silent as to when the beneficiary's father immigrated or his immigrant visa classification. A Petition for Alien Relative (Form I-130) was filed on behalf of the beneficiary on January 9, 2002. Approval of the Form I-130 would be sufficient for the beneficiary to apply for an immigrant visa abroad from the Department of State.

In the matter at hand, the child of a K-3 visa holder derives K-4 status from the K-3 parent and a separate Form I-129F fiancé(e) visa petition is not required. An eligible K-4 alien has only to report to the appropriate consular office having jurisdiction over their residence abroad. Since a separate Form I-129F is not required, the appeal will be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
