FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER, EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann
Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a naturalized citizen of the United States who seeks to classify the beneficiary, a native and citizen of the Philippines, as the fiance(e) of a United States citizen pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(K) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(K).

The director denied the petition after determining that the petitioner and the beneficiary had not personally met within two years before the date of filing the petition, as required by section 214(d) of the Act. In reaching this conclusion, the director found that the petitioner's failure to comply with the statutory requirement was not the result of extreme hardship to the petitioner or unique circumstances.

Section 101(a)(15)(K) of the Act defines "fiance(e)" as:

An alien who is the fiancée or fiance of a citizen of the United States and who seeks to enter the United States solely to conclude a valid marriage with the petitioner within ninety days after entry. . . .

Section 214(d) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1184(d), states in pertinent part that a fiance(e) petition:

shall be approved only after satisfactory evidence is submitted by the petitioner to establish that the parties have previously met in person within two years before the date of filing the petition, have a bona fide intention to marry, and are legally able and actually willing to conclude a valid marriage in the United States within a period of ninety days after the alien's arrival. . . .

The petitioner filed the Petition for Alien Fiance(e) (Form I-129F) with the Service on December 19, 2001. Therefore, the petitioner and the beneficiary were required to have met during the period that began on December 19, 1999 and ended on December 19, 2001.

In response to Question #19 on the Form I-129F, the petitioner indicated that he and the beneficiary had personally met in 1980. In response to the director's request for additional information and evidence concerning the parties' last meeting, the petitioner submitted a letter stating that he had not met the beneficiary during the requisite time period because he was trying to buy a house and because he did not want travel to the Philippines to effect his application for naturalization.

On appeal, the petitioner submits documentation including a letter stating that the denial of his petition was a "grave abuse of discretion and erroneous appreciation of the facts particular" to the case. He states that he met the beneficiary in 1980, they lived together as husband and wife, and had four children together. He explains that they did not marry because he was awaiting immigration to the United States as the unmarried son of a United States citizen father. In 1994, the petitioner and his children immigrated to the United States as lawful permanent residents and in March 2001, the petitioner naturalized as a United States citizen of the United States. In support of the appeal, the petitioner also submits letters of support from the couple's three eldest children and the senior pastor of the family's church.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 214.2(k)(2), a director may exercise discretion and waive the requirement of a personal meeting between the two parties if it is established that compliance would:

- (1) Result in extreme hardship to the petitioner; or
- (2) Violate strict and long-established customs of the beneficiary's foreign culture or social practice.

The regulation at section 214.2(k)(2) does not define what may constitute extreme hardship to a petitioner. Therefore, each claim of extreme hardship must be judged on a case-by-case basis taking into account the totality of the petitioner's circumstances. Generally, a director looks at whether the petitioner can demonstrate the existence of circumstances that are (1) not within the power of the petitioner to control or change, and (2) likely to last for a considerable duration or the duration cannot be determined with any degree of certainty. Examples of such circumstances may include, but are not limited to, serious medical conditions or hazards to U.S. citizens to travel to certain countries.

In the instant case, the petitioner has not established that he warrants a favorable exercise of discretion to waive the requirement of a personal meeting with the beneficiary on the basis of extreme hardship to the petitioner. The regulatory requirements have not been met and the record does not establish that unique circumstances exist which would have prevented the meeting of the petitioner and beneficiary during the requisite time period. Therefore, the appeal will be dismissed.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 214.2(k)(2), the denial of the petition is without prejudice. Once the petitioner and the beneficiary have met again in person, the petitioner may file a new I-129F petition in the beneficiary's behalf so that the two-year period in which the parties are required to have met will apply. The petitioner should submit evidence that he and the beneficiary have met within the two-year period that immediately precedes the filing of a new petition. Without the submission of documentary evidence that clearly establishes that the petitioner and the beneficiary have met in person during the requisite two-year period, the petition may not be approved unless the director grants a waiver of such requirement.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
