Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the Acting Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now on appeal before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a citizen of the United States who seeks to classify the beneficiary, a native and citizen of the Philippines, as the fiancée of a United States citizen pursuant to section 101(a)(15)(K) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(K).

The acting director denied the petition after determining that the petitioner and the beneficiary had not personally met within the two-year period immediately preceding the date of filing of the petition, as required by section 214(d) of the Act. Decision of the Acting Director, dated April 28, 2004.

Section 101(a)(15)(K) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(K), provides nonimmigrant classification to an alien who:

- (i) is the fiancé(e) of a U.S. citizen and who seeks to enter the United States solely to conclude a valid marriage with that citizen within 90 days after admission;
- (ii) has concluded a valid marriage with a citizen of the United States who is the petitioner, is the beneficiary of a petition to accord a status under section 201(b)(2)(A)(i) that was filed under section 204 by the petitioner, and seeks to enter the United States to await the approval of such petition and the availability to the alien of an immigrant visa; or
- (iii) is the minor child of an alien described in clause (i) or (ii) and is accompanying, or following to join, the alien.

Section 214(d) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1184(d), states, in pertinent part, that a fiancé(e) petition:

. . . shall be approved only after satisfactory evidence is submitted by the petitioner to establish that the parties have previously met in person within two years before the date of filing the petition, have a bona fide intention to marry, and are legally able and actually willing to conclude a valid marriage in the United States within a period of ninety days after the alien's arrival. . . .

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 214.2(k)(2), the petitioner may be exempted from this requirement for a meeting if it is established that compliance would:

- (1) result in extreme hardship to the petitioner; or
- (2) that compliance would violate strict and long-established customs of the beneficiary's foreign culture or social practice, as where marriages are traditionally arranged by the parents of the contracting parties and the prospective bride and groom are prohibited from meeting subsequent to the arrangement and prior to the wedding day. In addition to establishing that the required meeting would be a violation of custom or practice, the petitioner must also establish that any and all other aspects of the traditional arrangements have been or will be met in accordance with the custom or practice.

The regulation at section 214.2 does not define what may constitute extreme hardship to the petitioner. Therefore, each claim of extreme hardship must be judged on a case-by-case basis taking into account the totality of the petitioner's circumstances. Generally, a director looks at whether the petitioner can demonstrate the existence of circumstances that are (1) not within the power of the petitioner to control or change, and (2) likely to last for a considerable duration or the duration cannot be determined with any degree of certainty.

The petitioner filed the Petition for Alien Fiancé(e) (Form I-129F) with Citizenship and Immigration Services on July 11, 2003. Therefore, the petitioner and the beneficiary were required to have met during the period that began on July 11, 2001 and ended on July 11, 2003.

At the time of filing, the petitioner stated he had not previously met the beneficiary. In response to the director's request for evidence, he submitted a statement contending that, as he was the primary custodial parent for his 12-year-old daughter, he was unable to travel to meet the beneficiary during the specified time period. He further indicated that he would not make a decision whether to marry the beneficiary until after her arrival in the United States, promising that if no marriage occurred she would return to the Philippines. Therefore, the evidence of record does not establish that the petitioner has met all the requirements of section 214(d) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1184(d) -- he did not meet with the beneficiary during the two-year period immediately preceding his filing of the Form I-129 and he has no "bona fide intention" to marry the beneficiary within 90 days of her arrival in the United States.

On appeal, the petitioner submits a statement reiterating his inability to travel because of his childcare responsibilities and asserting that the beneficiary's responsibilities also precluded her from traveling to meet him.

In the instant case, the petitioner has stated only that he is the primary custodial parent for his daughter and that his childcare responsibilities precluded his traveling to meet the beneficiary during the stipulated time period. He has, however, submitted no evidence to establish himself as the person responsible for the care of his daughter, nor has he provided an explanation as to why his responsibilities precluded his travel during the entire two-year period. Further, his statement that the beneficiary's responsibilities did not allow her to travel does not identify the responsibilities to which he refers, nor how they prevented the beneficiary from meeting him in the United States. Taking into account the totality of the circumstances, as presented by the petitioner, the AAO does not find the record to establish that compliance with the meeting requirement would have resulted in extreme hardship to the petitioner or would have violated any strict and long-established customs of the beneficiary's foreign culture or social practice, the circumstances that exempt a petitioner from the meeting requirement of section 214(d) of the Act.

The AAO also finds that the petitioner's statements in response to the director's request for evidence indicate no firm intention on his part to marry the beneficiary within 90 days of her arrival in the United States, as required for the approval of a fiancée petition under section 214(d) of the Act.

For both these reasons, the appeal will be dismissed.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
