FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the District Director, New York, New York, and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant was born on July 4, 1982, in the United Kingdom. The applicant's father, [REDACTED] was born in Tanzania in 1950 and became a naturalized U.S. citizen on September 7, 1990. The applicant's mother [REDACTED] was born in Tanzania in 1950 and never had a claim to United States citizenship. The applicant's parents married each other on February 7, 1975. The applicant was lawfully admitted for permanent residence on April 7, 1984. The applicant is seeking a certificate of citizenship under section 320 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1431.

The district director reviewed the record and concluded that the applicant was over the age of 18 and ineligible for the benefit sought.

On appeal, the applicant states that the application was filed prior to the Child Citizenship Act of 2000 (CCA) and that he was under 18 years at that time. He further asserts that he is eligible under the law existing at the time of the application.

Sections 320 and 322 of the Act were amended by the CCA, and took effect on February 27, 2001. The CCA benefits all persons who have not yet reached their 18th birthdays as of February 27, 2001. The amendments are prospective only. The applicant was 18 years and 7 months old on February 27, 2001. Therefore, he is not eligible for the benefits of the CCA.

Former section 320 of the Act prior to its amendment provided that:

(a) A child born outside of the United States, one of whose parents at the time of the child's birth was an alien and the other of whose parents then was and never thereafter ceased to be a citizen of the United States, shall, if such parent is naturalized, become a citizen of the United States, when

(1) such naturalization takes place while such child is under the age of 18 years; and

(2) such child is residing in the United States pursuant to a lawful admission for permanent residence at the time of naturalization or thereafter and begins to reside permanently in the United States while under the age of 18 years.

The applicant does not qualify for consideration under former section 320 of the Act because neither of his parents was a U.S. citizen at the time of his birth.

8 C.F.R. 341.2(c) provides that the burden of proof shall be on the claimant to establish the claimed citizenship by a preponderance of the evidence. Therefore, the appeal will be dismissed.

This decision is without prejudice to the applicant's seeking U.S. citizenship through normal naturalization procedures by filing an Application for Naturalization on Form N-400 with a Service office having jurisdiction over his place of residence.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
