Robert P. Wiemann, Chief
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Application for Permission to Reapply for Admission into the United States after Deportation or Removal (Form I-212) was denied by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Mexico who entered the United States without a lawful admission or parole on or about November 8, 1997. On April 1, 1998, the Immigration and Naturalization Service (now Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS)) apprehended the applicant and a Notice to Appear (NTA) for a removal hearing before an immigration judge was served on him. On April 28, 1998, an immigration judge ordered the applicant removed from the United States pursuant to section 212(a)(6)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1182 (a)(6)(A)(i) for having been present in the United States without being admitted or paroled. Consequently, on May 5, 1998, the applicant was removed from the United States. The record reflects that the applicant reentered the United States on an unknown date, but sometime in 1999, without a lawful admission or parole and without permission to reapply for admission, in violation of section 276 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1326 (a felony). The record further reflects that the applicant departed the United States in November of 2004, and is residing in Mexico. The applicant is the beneficiary of an approved Immigrant Petition for Alien Relative (Form I-130) filed by his U.S. citizen spouse. The applicant is inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(A)(ii). He seeks permission to reapply for admission into the United States under section 212(a)(9)(A)(iii) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(A)(iii) in order to travel to the United States and reside with his U.S. citizen spouse and children.

The Director determined that the unfavorable factors in the applicant's case outweighed the favorable ones and denied the Form I-212 accordingly. See Director's Decision dated May 19, 2005.

The AAO notes that the record contains a Notice of Entry of Appearance as Attorney or Representative (Form G-28) that is signed by the applicant's spouse and not the applicant himself. Therefore, the AAO will not be sending a copy of the decision to the attorney mentioned on the Form G-28, but this office will accept the submitted information.

Section 212(a)(9). Aliens previously removed.-

(A) Certain alien previously removed.-

(ii) Other aliens. - Any alien not described in clause (i) who-

(I) has been ordered removed under section 240 or any other provision of law, or

(II) departed the United States while an order of removal was outstanding, and seeks admission within 10 years of the date of such alien's departure or removal (or within 20 years of such date in the case of a second or subsequent removal or at any time in the case of an aliens convicted of an aggravated felony) is inadmissible.

(iii) Exception.- Clauses (i) and (ii) shall not apply to an alien seeking admission within a period if, prior to the date of the alien's reembarkation at a place outside the United States or attempt to be admitted from foreign contiguous territory, the Attorney General [now Secretary, Homeland Security, "Secretary"] has consented to the alien's reapplying for admission.

A review of the 1996 Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act (IIRIRA) amendments to the Act and prior statutes and case law regarding permission to reapply for admission reflects that Congress has, (1) increased the bar to admissibility and the waiting period from 5 to 10 years in most instances and to 20 years in others, (2) has added a bar to admissibility for aliens who are unlawfully present in the United States, and (3) has imposed a permanent bar to admission for aliens who have been ordered removed and who subsequently enter or attempt to enter the United States without being lawfully admitted. It is concluded that Congress has placed a high priority on reducing and/or stopping aliens from overstaying their authorized period of stay and from being present in the United States without lawful admission or parole.

On appeal, counsel submits a psychological evaluation, an affidavit by the applicant's spouse and copies of the applicant's spouse's monthly utility bills and her income tax return for the year 2004. Counsel states that the Director erroneously determined that the applicant is in the United States and asserts that he has departed. The psychological evaluation states that the applicant's spouse suffers from severe anxiety, depression and severe psoriasis. The psychologist recommends that the applicant's spouse obtain a second opinion regarding her medication, she should be meeting with her therapist on a weekly basis and she and her children would benefit from family therapy. In her affidavit, the applicant's spouse states that due to her anxiety she is having problems at work and she and her children will be facing financial hardship if the applicant is not permitted to enter the United States. In addition, she states that she and her children joined the applicant in Mexico in December of 2004 and that her two daughters have been affected by the applicant's absence from the United States.

Before the AAO can weigh the discretionary factors in this case, it must first determine whether the applicant is eligible to apply for the relief requested. To recapitulate, the applicant was ordered removed April 28, 1998, and was subsequently removed from the United States on May 5, 1998. The applicant reentered the United States after his removal without a lawful admission or parole and without permission to reapply for admission and departed in November 2004. Because the applicant illegally reentered the United States after his removal, the AAO finds that the applicant is inadmissible pursuant to section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(II) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(C)(i)(II).

Section 212(a)(9)(C) of the Act states in pertinent part:

(C) Aliens unlawfully present after previous immigration violations.-

(i) In general.-Any alien who-

(II) has been ordered removed under section 235(b)(1), section 240, or any other provision of law, and who enters or attempts to reenter the United States without being admitted is inadmissible.

(ii) Exception.- Clause (i) shall not apply to an alien seeking admission more than 10 years after the date of the alien's last departure from the United States if, prior to the alien's reembarkation at a place outside the United States or attempt to be readmitted from a foreign contiguous territory, the Secretary has consented to the alien's reapplying for admission. The Secretary, in the Secretary's discretion, may waive the provisions of section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) in the case of an alien to whom the Secretary has granted classification under clause (iii), (iv), or (v) of section 204(a)(1)(A), or classification under clause (ii), (iii), or (iv) of section 204(a)(1)(B), in any case in which there is a connection between—

- (1) the alien's having been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty; and
- (2) the alien's--
  - (A) removal;
  - (B) departure from the United States;
  - (C) reentry or reentries into the United States; or
  - (D) attempted reentry into the United States.

An alien who is inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(II) of the Act may not apply for consent to reapply unless more than ten years have elapsed since the date of the alien's last departure from the United States. See Matter of Torres-Garcia, 23 I&N Dec. 866 (BIA 2006). Thus, to avoid inadmissibility under section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(II) of the Act, it must be the case that the applicant's last departure was at least ten years ago and that CIS has consented to the applicant's reapplying for admission. In the present matter, the applicant's last departure from the United States occurred in November 2004, less than ten years ago. The applicant is currently statutorily ineligible to apply for permission to reapply for admission.

Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361, provides that the burden of proof is upon the applicant to establish that the applicant is eligible for the benefit sought. The applicant in the instant case does not qualify for an exception under section 212(a)(9)(C)(ii) of the Act. Thus, as a matter of law, the applicant is not eligible for approval of a Form I-212. Accordingly, the appeal will be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
