Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Application for Permission to Reapply for Admission into the United States after Deportation or Removal (Form I-212) was denied by the Director, California Service Center and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Guatemala who married a U.S. citizen on September 30, 2000. On September 16, 2002 he was ordered removed from the United States. In January 2003 he then reentered the United States without inspection. The applicant is inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii)(II) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(A)(i). He seeks permission to reapply for admission into the United States under section 212(a)(9)(A)(iii) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(A)(iii) in order to remain in the United States and reside with his U.S. citizen spouse and child.

The director determined that the applicant was subject to reinstatement of removal. He also determined that the evidence submitted does not warrant the favorable discretion of the Secretary. The director then denied the Form I-212 accordingly. See Director's Decision dated February 16, 2005.

On appeal, counsel submits new evidence to show that the applicant's wife and child will suffer hardship if the applicant is not granted permission to reapply for admission. Counsel's Brief, March 17, 2005.

Before the AAO can weigh the discretionary factors in this case, it must first determine whether the applicant is eligible to apply for the relief requested. As noted previously, the applicant was removed from the United States on September 16, 2002. The applicant reentered the United States after his removal without a lawful admission or parole and without permission to reapply for admission. The record indicates that reinstatement removal proceedings have begun in the applicant's case and a notice to appear in Immigration Court was issued on March 11, 2005.

Section 241(a) detention, release, and removal or aliens ordered removed.-

(5) reinstatement of removal orders against aliens illegally reentering.- if the Attorney General finds that an alien has reentered the United States illegally after having been removed or having departed voluntarily, under an order of removal, the prior order of removal is reinstated from its original date and is not subject to being reopened or reviewed, the alien is not eligible and may not apply for any relief under this Act, and the alien shall be removed under the prior order at any time after the reentry.

Although the applicant is subject to reinstatement of removal, his Form I-212 was filed before the reinstatement of removal proceedings began and because this case arises within the jurisdiction of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, Section 241(a)(5) of the Act does not apply to his Form I-212 application.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that a Mexican national who returned to the United States following a deportation and had his deportation order reinstated may nonetheless obtain adjustment of status if his Form I-212 is granted. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals stated in Perez-Gonzalez v. Ashcroft, 379 F.3d 783 (9th Cir. 2004) that: "Given the fact that Perez-Gonzalez applied for the waiver before his deportation order was reinstated, he was not yet subject to its terms and, therefore, was not barred from applying for relief." The Court further states: "Prior administrative decisions of the Bureau of Immigration Appeals confirm the fact that permission to reapply is available on a nunc pro tunc basis, in which the petitioner receives permission to reapply for admission after he or she has already reentered the country.” Finally the Court states: “... if the alien has applied for permission to reapply in the context of an application to adjust status, the INS is required to consider whether to exercise its discretion in the alien’s favor before it can proceed with reinstatement proceedings...”

The record of proceedings does not reveal that the applicant’s prior removal order was reinstated at the time he filed his Form I-212. Since this case arises in the Ninth Circuit, Perez-Gonzalez is controlling. Section 241(a)(5) of the Act does not preclude the applicant from filing a Form I-212.

However, the applicant is also subject to Section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) and Section 212(a)(9)(C)(ii) of the Act.

Section 212(a)(9) of the Act states in pertinent part:

(C) Aliens unlawfully present after previous immigration violations.-

(i) In general.-Any alien who-

(I) has been unlawfully present in the United States for an aggregate period of more than 1 year, or

(II) has been ordered removed under section 235(b)(1), section 240, or any other provision of law, and who enters or attempts to reenter the United States without being admitted is inadmissible.

(ii) Exception.- Clause (i) shall not apply to an alien seeking admission more than 10 years after the date of the alien's last departure from the United States if, prior to the alien's reembarkation at a place outside the United States or attempt to be readmitted from a foreign contiguous territory, the Secretary has consented to the alien's reapplying for admission. The Secretary, in the Secretary's discretion, may waive the provisions of section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) in the case of an alien to whom the Secretary has granted classification under clause (iii), (iv), or (v) of section 204(a)(1)(A), or classification under clause (ii), (iii), or (iv) of section 204(a)(1)(B), in any case in which there is a connection between—

(1) the alien's having been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty; and

(2) the alien's--

(A) removal;

(B) departure from the United States;

(C) reentry or reentries into the United States; or

(D) attempted reentry into the United States.

An alien who is inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(C)(i) of the Act may not apply for consent to reapply unless more than 10 years have elapsed since the date of the alien's last departure from the United States. See Matter of Torres-Garcia, 23 I&N Dec. 866 (BIA 2006). Thus, to avoid inadmissibility under section 212(a)(9)(C) of the Act, it must be the case that the applicant's last departure was at least ten years ago and the Service has granted the applicant permission to reapply for admission. In the present matter, the applicant's last departure from the United States occurred on September 16, 2002, less than ten years ago. He is currently statutorily ineligible to apply for permission to reapply for admission.

Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361, provides that the burden of proof is upon the applicant to establish that the applicant is eligible for the benefit sought. The applicant in the instant case does not qualify for an exception under section 212(a)(9)(C)(ii) of the Act. Thus, as a matter of law, at this time the applicant is not eligible to apply for permission to reapply for admission. Accordingly, the appeal will be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
