Perry Rhew

Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Sri Lanka who seeks to obtain a travel document (reentry permit) under section 223 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1203. The director denied the application after determining that it was filed after the applicant had departed from the United States.

Section 223 of the Act provides, in pertinent part, that an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence who intends to visit abroad and return to the United States to resume that status may make an application for a permit to reenter the United States.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 223.2 states in pertinent part:

(b) Eligibility.

(1) Reentry permit. Except as otherwise provided in this section, an application may be approved if filed by a person who is in the United States at the time of application and is a lawful permanent resident or conditional permanent resident.

A review of the record reveals the following facts and procedural history: The applicant was admitted into the United States as a lawful permanent resident on March 6, 2007. On February 25, 2008, the applicant filed the instant Form I-131. On August 28, 2008, the director requested that the applicant submit evidence to document that she was in the United States at the time the Form I-131 was filed. In her September 23, 2008 response, the applicant indicated that she had departed the United States on March 20, 2007, as she is a full-time student in Sri Lanka. The applicant submitted supporting documentation, including copies of her passport pages with stamps from Sri Lanka Immigration, dated March 6, 2007 and March 22, 2007.

The director denied the Form I-131 because the applicant was not present in the United States when the application was filed. On appeal, the applicant does not dispute that she was outside of the United States when she filed the Form I-131. She states that she left the United States on March 20, 2007, and filed the Form I-131 within 12 months of her departure.

As stated by the director, a lawful permanent resident is not required to obtain a reentry permit if he or she remains outside of the United States for less than one year. Nevertheless, because the applicant did apply for a reentry permit, she must meet the eligibility criteria set forth at 8 C.F.R. § 223.2, which requires the applicant's physical presence in the United States at the time an application is made to U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS). Here, the applicant filed the Form I-131 while she was outside of the United States.

The Act provides no exception regarding the physical presence requirement at the time of filing a Form I-131 for a reentry permit. Since the application was not filed until after the applicant had departed from the United States, the application may not be approved as a matter of law.

If a lawful permanent resident seeks to reenter after an absence of one year or more, and does not possess a reentry permit, he or she should contact a United States consulate abroad for further information regarding possible options for return to the United States.

Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361, provides that the burden of proof is upon the applicant to establish eligibility for the benefit sought. Here, the applicant has not met that burden. Accordingly, the appeal will be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
