Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now on appeal before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant, a native of Mauritania, seeks to obtain a refugee travel document pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 223.1(b). The director denied the application after determining that the applicant did not establish his eligibility for issuance of the requested document.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 223.2(b)(2) allows for the approval of a refugee travel document if the application (Form I-131) is filed by a person who is in the United States at the time of application, and either holds valid refugee status under section 207 of the Act, valid asylum status under section 208 of the Act, or is a permanent resident and received such status as a direct result of his or her asylum or refugee status.

In his decision, the director notes that an immigration judge denied the applicant's asylum request on March 6, 1998. On April 1, 1998, he filed an appeal of the immigration judge's decision, and on April 30, 2002, the appeal was denied and an order of removal was issued to the applicant.

The reasons for the applicant's appeal are unclear. In support of the appeal, he submits a translation of a letter from his uncle in Senegal indicating that his presence is required overseas to take care of eight cows and five sheep that he wishes to give to him. However, the applicant also indicates on the Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal, that he must remain in the United States for medical treatment because he receives kidney dialysis three times per week.

The record of proceeding, as it is presently constituted, contains no evidence that the applicant holds valid refugee status, asylum status, or that he is a permanent resident as a direct result of such status. Absent such evidence, the application may not be approved. The appeal will, therefore, be dismissed.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the applicant. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The applicant has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
