Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now on appeal before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant, a native of Albania, seeks to obtain a refugee travel document pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 223.1(b). The director denied the application after determining that the applicant is not eligible for issuance of the requested document.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 223.2(b)(2) allows for the approval of a refugee travel document if the application (Form I-131) is filed by a person who is in the United States at the time of application, and either holds valid refugee status under section 207 of the Act, valid asylum status under section 208 of the Act, or is a permanent resident and received such status as a direct result of his or her asylum or refugee status.

On appeal, the applicant states that he must meet his wife, has not seen her in three years, and wants to see her in Macedonia because he cannot travel to Albania.

The record of proceeding, as it is presently constituted, indicates that an immigration judge granted the applicant's asylum request on a conditional basis only on August 5, 1999. However, pursuant to numerical limitations, the applicant has not yet received final asylee status.

It is concluded that the applicant has failed to submit any evidence of his having been admitted to the United States as a refugee or asylee, or of his having received permanent residence as a result of his refugee or asylee status. Absent such evidence, the application may not be approved. The appeal will, therefore, be dismissed.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the applicant. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The applicant has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
