ON BEHALF OF APPLICANT:

to the office that decided and certified your case.

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status (legalization) was denied by the Director, California Service Center. An appeal of that decision has been dismissed.

The Director, Nebraska Service Center granted a motion to reopen that was filed by the applicant pursuant to a class action lawsuit entitled Proyecto San Pablo v. INS, No. Civ 89-456-TUC-WDB (D. Ariz.). The decision in that case allows an alien whose application was denied because she had been outside of the United States after January 1, 1982 under an order of deportation to have her application reopened. The Director, Nebraska Service Center has now denied the application, and certified his decision to the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The decision will be affirmed.

The applicant was deported on May 18, 1983. Both directors noted that the applicant was outside of the United States under an order of deportation after January 1, 1982, and therefore did not reside continuously in the United States since such date.

Counsel requests that the applicant be granted a waiver of her inadmissibility for having been deported, and maintains that approval of the waiver would also cure the lack of continuous residence stemming from the deportation.

An applicant for temporary residence must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2). An alien shall not be considered to have resided continuously in the United States, if, during any period for which continuous residence is required, the alien was outside of the United States under an order of deportation. Section 245A(g)(2)(B)(i) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255(g)(2)(b)(i).

As a result of the deportation, the applicant did not reside continuously in the United States for the requisite period. She is therefore statutorily ineligible for temporary residence on that basis.

Counsel notes Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS) has been unable to produce the audiotape of the deportation hearing, and points out that she therefore has no way to challenge the validity of the deportation order. For that reason, she asserts that CIS cannot rely on the deportation to deny the applicant a benefit. However, the fact of the deportation is well documented in the record. Furthermore, it is not within the authority of CIS to make determinations on deportation orders issued by immigration judges. The claim that the order of deportation itself may now be reviewed or essentially appealed in this proceeding cannot be accepted. The deportation order of the immigration judge was appealable at the time to the Board of Immigration Appeals. The applicant waived her right to appeal.

Counsel's assertion that a lack of continuous residence in such circumstances may be waived is unpersuasive. Congress set forth, at section 245A(d)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(d)(2), a provision to waive certain grounds of inadmissibility under section 212(a) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a). Section 245A(g)(2) of the Act, concerning continuous residence, is a separate section unrelated to the waiver provisions. Congress provided no relief in the legalization program for failure to maintain continuous residence due to a departure under an order of deportation. Relief is provided in the Act for absences based on factors other than deportation, namely absences that were prolonged because of emergencies and absences approved under the advance parole provisions. Clearly, with respect to maintenance of continuous residence, it was not congressional intent to provide relief for absences under an order of deportation. While the applicant's failure to maintain continuous residence, and her inadmissibility for having been deported and having returned without authorization, are both predicated on the deportation, a waiver is possible only for the inadmissibility under section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii)(II) of the Act.

Counsel maintains that it is not logical to conclude that the law allows for a waiver of inadmissibility in the case of a deported alien, and yet provides no waiver for a lack of continuous residence, also based on the same deportation. Counsel argues that such an interpretation renders a waiver of inadmissibility meaningless. However, there is a logical basis for making the distinction between inadmissibility and continuous residence, as the two issues are separate, and not all aliens who were deported fail to meet the continuous residence requirement. An alien who was deported in 1978 and reentered the United States before January 1, 1982 would be inadmissible because of the deportation, and yet would not be ineligible for legalization on the continuous residence issue. A waiver of inadmissibility in such case would therefore serve a useful purpose, as the alien would then be eligible for legalization.

In summary, the applicant was out of the United States after January 1, 1982 under an order of deportation, and cannot be granted temporary residence for two reasons. First and foremost, she failed to maintain continuous residence, and there is no waiver available. Therefore, she is ineligible for temporary residence. Secondly, she is inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii)(II) of the Act as an alien who was deported and returned without permission. That ground of inadmissibility may be waived. The applicant filed a waiver application in an effort to overcome such inadmissibility. That waiver application was denied by the director, and the decision was affirmed by the AAO in a separate decision.

The applicant was deported on May 18, 1983, and therefore did not maintain continuous residence as required by section 245A(a)(2) of the Act. She remains ineligible for temporary residence, and inadmissible under section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii)(II) of the Act.

ORDER: The director's decision is affirmed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
