Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreements reached in Catholic Social Services, Inc., et al., v. Ridge, et al., CIV. NO. S-86-1343-LKK (E.D. Cal) January 23, 2004, and Felicity Mary Newman, et al., v. United States Immigration and Citizenship Services, et al., CIV. NO. 87-4757-WDK (C.D. Cal) February 17, 2004, (CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements) was denied by the District Director, Los Angeles and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant appears to be represented; however, the record does not contain Form G-28, Notice of Entry of Appearance as Attorney or Representative. Therefore, the applicant shall be considered as self-represented and the decision will be furnished only to the applicant.

The applicant submitted a Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident under Section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), and a Form I-687 Supplement, CSS/Newman Class Membership Worksheet. The director noted that the applicant had been absent from the United States for over 45 days. The director therefore concluded that the applicant had not resided continuously in the United States and was, therefore, not eligible to adjust to temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements.

On appeal, the applicant asserts that he has established continuous residence in the United States during the requisite period, and that each absence from the country was not for more than 2 and one half months.

An applicant for temporary resident status must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2). The applicant must also establish that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States since November 6, 1986. Section 245A(a)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3).

For purposes of establishing residence and presence in accordance with the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b), "until the date of filing" shall mean until the date the alien attempted to file a completed Form I-687 application and fee or was caused not to timely file, consistent with the class member definitions set forth in the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements. CSS Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 6; Newman Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 10.

The applicant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has resided in the United States for the requisite period, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. The inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5).

An alien shall be regarded as having resided continuously in the United States if at the time of filing an application for temporary resident status, no single absence from the United States has exceeded forty-five (45) days, and the aggregate of all absences has not exceeded one hundred and eighty (180) days between January 1, 1982, through the date the application is filed, unless the alien can establish that due to emergent reasons the return to the United States could not be accomplished within the time period allowed, the alien was maintaining residence in the United States, and the departure was not based on an order of deportation. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.15(c)(1).

If the applicant's absence exceeded the 45-day period allowed for a single absence, it must be determined if the untimely return of the applicant to the United States was due to an "emergent reason." Although this term is not defined in the regulations, Matter of C-, 19 I&N Dec. 808 (Comm. 1988), holds that emergent means "coming unexpectedly into being."

On his Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident, the applicant indicated that he established a residence in the United States in 1976, and that he continuously resided in the United States since then. At part #32 where the applicant is instructed to list all absences from the United States, he indicated that he was absent from the United States from October of 1982 to January of 1983, from January of 1984 to April of 1984, from January of 1985 to April of 1985, from January of 1986 to March of 1986, and from December of 1986 to January of 1987. The applicant also stated under oath during his immigration interview on November 9, 2006 that he has been absent from the United States four to five times, and that during each occasion he would be absent from the country for two, three or four months.

In denying the application, the director noted that based upon the applicant's absences from the United States, he had failed to meet his burden of proof to establish that he resided continuously in the United States for the requisite periods.

On appeal, the applicant states that he traveled outside the United States on several occasions and that he would travel at the end of the month and return at the beginning of another month, thus making each stay outside the country 2 to 2 and one half months long, not three or four months. The applicant does not submit a declaration on appeal.

In the instant case, the applicant has failed to overcome the director's denial. While the applicant asserts on appeal that he was absent from the United States on six separate occasions during the requisite period, and that each absence was for only 2 to 2 and one half months, he has failed to submit any independent documentary evidence to substantiate his claim. Therefore, it cannot be concluded that the applicant resided continuously in the United States for the requisite period. It is noted by the AAO that based upon the information contained in the record the applicant's aggregate number of days absent from the United States appears to have exceeded the statutory limit of 180 days, thus rendering him ineligible for the immigration benefit sought.

An alien applying for adjustment of status has the burden of proving by a preponderance of evidence that he or she has continuously resided in an unlawful status in the United States from prior to January 1, 1982 through the date of filing, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5). Based upon the applicant's prolonged absences, the AAO concludes that he did not continuously reside in the United States for the requisite period.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
