DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreements reached in Catholic Social Services, Inc., et al., v. Ridge, et al., CIV. NO. S-86-1343-LKK (E.D. Cal) January 23, 2004, and Felicity Mary Newman, et al., v. United States Immigration and Citizenship Services, et al., CIV. NO. 87-4757-WDK (C.D. Cal) February 17, 2004 (CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements), was denied by the District Director, Los Angeles. The decision is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant submitted a Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident under Section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), and a Form I-687 Supplement, CSS/Newman Class Membership Worksheet. The director determined that the applicant had not established, by a preponderance of the evidence, that she had continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the duration of the requisite period. Specifically, the director found that the applicant had resided outside the United States during the requisite period for one year, which interrupted the applicant's continuous residence in the United States. The director, therefore, denied the application finding that the applicant had not met her burden of proof and was not eligible to adjust to temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements.

On appeal, the applicant asserts that she has established her unlawful residence for the requisite time period, that she is qualified under Section 245A of the Act and the CSS/Newman settlement agreements, and that her application for temporary resident status should be granted. The applicant asserts that her absence from the United States was due to a family emergency. In support of that assertion, the applicant submitted, on appeal, a medical statement from a physician, and copies of the death certificates of her parents.

An applicant for temporary resident status must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2). The applicant must also establish that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States since November 6, 1986. Section 245(a)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3). The regulations clarify that the applicant must have been physically present in the United States from November 6, 1986 until the date of filing the application. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1).

For purposes of establishing residence and physical presence under the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements, the term "until the date of filing" in 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1) means until the date the applicant attempted to file a completed Form I-687 application and fee or was caused not to timely file during the original legalization application period of May 5, 1987 to May 4, 1988. CSS Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 6; Newman Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 10.

The applicant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has resided in the United States for the requisite period, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. The inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5). To meet his or her burden of proof, an applicant must provide evidence of eligibility apart from his or her own testimony, and the sufficiency of all evidence produced by the applicant will be judged according to its probative value and credibility. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(6).

Although the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3) provides an illustrative list of contemporaneous documents that an applicant may submit in support of his or her claim of continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since prior to January 1, 1982, the submission of any other relevant document is permitted pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3)(vi)(L).

The “preponderance of the evidence” standard requires that the evidence demonstrate that the applicant's claim is “probably true,” where the determination of “truth” is made based on the factual circumstances of each individual case. Matter of E-M-, 20 I&N Dec. 77, 79-80 (Comm. 1989). In evaluating the evidence, Matter of E-M- also stated that “[t]ruth is to be determined not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality.” Id. at 80. Thus, in adjudicating the application pursuant to the preponderance of the evidence standard, the director must examine each piece of evidence for relevance, probative value, and credibility, both individually and within the context of the totality of the evidence, to determine whether the fact to be proven is probably true.

Even if the director has some doubt as to the truth, if the petitioner submits relevant, probative, and credible evidence that leads the director to believe that the claim is “probably true” or “more likely than not,” the applicant or petitioner has satisfied the standard of proof. See U.S. v. Cardozo-Fonseca, 480 U.S. 421, 431 (1987) (defining “more likely than not” as a greater than 50 percent probability of something occurring). If the director can articulate a material doubt, it is appropriate for the director to either request additional evidence or, if that doubt leads the director to believe that the claim is probably not true, deny the application or petition.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(6)(h)(i) states as follows:

- (h) Continuous residence. (1) For the purpose of this Act, an applicant for temporary resident status shall be regarded as having resided continuously in the United States if, at the time of filing of the application:
  - (i) No single absence from the United States has exceeded forty-five (45) days, and the aggregate of all absences has not exceeded one hundred and eighty (180) days between January 1, 1982 through the date the application for temporary resident status is filed, unless the alien can establish that due to emergent reasons, his or her return to the United States could not be accomplished within the time period allowed;

As noted above, the director denied the application finding that the applicant had resided outside the United States for a period of one year during the requisite period. The director found that this absence disrupted the applicant's continuous residence in the United States and accordingly denied the application.

The record reflects that the applicant issued a sworn statement to a United States immigration officer on October 18, 2006 stating that she left the United States in April of 1985 and returned in April of 1986. The reason given by the applicant for this absence was that both of her parents were ill, and that they died during that time. In view of the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(6)(h)(i), the applicant has failed to establish continuous residence during the requisite period because her absence from the United States exceeded 45 days for a single absence, and 180 days total absence between January 1, 1982 and the date the application for temporary resident status was filed.

The applicant submitted a sworn statement from [REDACTED] which stated that the applicant's mother [REDACTED] was hospitalized for anemia and a gastric ulcer on April 16, 1985. The applicant submitted a translated copy of her mother's death certificate which indicates that the applicant's mother died on December 16, 1985 in Mexico. The applicant submitted a translated copy of her father's [REDACTED] death certificate which indicates that he died on April 4, 1986 in Mexico. The record establishes the hospitalization and subsequent death of the applicant's mother, and the death of the applicant's father. The record does not establish, however, that the unexpected health condition of the applicant's mother and father prevented her return to the United States within the time permitted by regulation to prevent the interruption of the applicant's continuous residence. The record does not establish the length of hospitalization for the applicant's mother, or the cause of death. The record is silent as to the length of illness, if any, of the applicant's father, or his cause of death. Although the term "emergent reasons" is not defined by regulation, Matter of C-, 19 I. & N. Dec. 808 (Comm. 1988), holds that emergent means "coming unexpectedly into being." The record does not establish that the applicant's return to the United States within the time permitted for "continuous residence" absences could not be accomplished due to emergent reasons.

Therefore, based upon the foregoing, the applicant has failed to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that she has continuously resided in an unlawful status in the United States for the requisite period as required under both 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5) and Matter of E- M--, supra. The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for temporary resident status under section 245A of the Act on this basis.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
