Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application for permanent resident status under the Legal Immigration Family Equity (LIFE) Act was denied by the Director, Missouri Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The director concluded the applicant had not established that he had applied for class membership in any of the requisite legalization class-action lawsuits prior to October 1, 2000 and, therefore, denied the application.

On appeal, the applicant submits an affidavit acknowledging his having submitted an application for class membership in Catholic Social Services (CSS) v. Thornburgh.

An applicant for permanent resident status under the LIFE Act must establish that before October 1, 2000, he or she filed a written claim with the Attorney General for class membership in any of the following legalization class-action lawsuits: Catholic Social Services, Inc. v. Meese, vacated sub nom. Reno v. Catholic Social Services, Inc., 509 U.S. 43 (1993), League of United Latin American Citizens v. INS, vacated sub nom. Reno v. Catholic Social Services, Inc., 509 U.S. 43 (1993), or Zambrano v. INS, vacated sub nom. Immigration and Naturalization Service v. Zambrano, 509 U.S. 918 (1993). See 8 C.F.R. § 245a.10.

The regulations provide an illustrative list of documents that an applicant may submit to establish that he or she filed a written claim for class membership before October 1, 2000. Those regulations also permit the submission of "[a]ny other relevant document(s)." See 8 C.F.R. § 245a.14.

In an attempt to establish eligibility for class membership, the applicant provided documentation relating to an application he previously filed for temporary resident status as a special agricultural worker (SAW) under section 210 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA). An examination of the record discloses that the applicant timely filed an application for temporary resident status as a special agricultural worker under section 210 of the INA, and this application was subsequently denied. The applicant appealed the denial of his application, and this appeal was dismissed by the AAO. In any case, section 1104 of the LIFE Act contains no provision allowing for the reopening and reconsideration of a timely filed and previously denied application for temporary resident status as a special agricultural worker under section 210 of the INA.

The applicant also submitted a photocopied Questionnaire to Determine Class Membership in Zambrano vs. INS. However, the questionnaire, which was signed by the applicant on October 3, 2002 and received by Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS) on October 8, 2002, was filed subsequent to the October 1, 2000 deadline for filing a written claim for class membership in one of the class-action lawsuits.

Finally, a review of the applicant's G-325A Biographic Information Form discloses that he resided in his native Jalisco, Mexico from 1971 to 1984. Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.11(b), each applicant for permanent resident status under the LIFE Act is required to demonstrate that he or she entered and commenced residing in the United States prior to January 1, 1982. Given the applicant's inability to meet this requirement, along with his failure to establish having filed a timely written claim for class membership, the applicant is ineligible for permanent residence under section 1104 of the LIFE Act.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
