Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The applicant's Temporary Protected Status was withdrawn by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and the case is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Honduras who indicated on his application that he entered the United States without a lawful admission or parole on February 25, 1996. The director approved the application for Temporary Protected Status (TPS) on March 30, 2000. The director subsequently withdrew the applicant's Temporary Protected Status on December 20, 2002, when it was determined that the applicant had failed to submit his required annual re-registration.

Persons applying for TPS offered to Hondurans must demonstrate that they have continuously resided in the United States since December 30, 1998, and that they have been continuously physically present in the United States since January 5, 1999. On May 11, 2000, the Attorney General announced an extension of the TPS designation until July 5, 2001. Subsequent extensions of the TPS designation have been granted, with the latest extension valid until January 5, 2005, upon the applicant's re-registration during the requisite time period.

An alien who has been granted Temporary Protected Status must register annually with the district office or service center having jurisdiction over the alien's place of residence 8 C.F.R. § 244.17(a). Failure to register without good cause will result in the withdrawal of the alien's Temporary Protected Status. 8 C.F.R. § 244.17(c).

The record reveals that on March 30, 2000, the director granted the application for Temporary Protected Status. However, the record does not reflect an attempt by the applicant to re-register in 2001.

On October 23, 2002, the director notified the applicant that his Temporary Protected Status would be "withdrawn unless you can submit additional evidence to show that you had registered on time or that you had a good reason for not registering." The applicant did not respond to this notice and the director withdrew the applicant's TPS on December 20, 2002.

On appeal, the applicant indicated that he had recently moved and was not aware that "this Service intended to withdraw my TPS." The applicant provided no explanation for his failure to submit his annual re-registration in 2001. The applicant has not submitted any evidence to indicate that he provided CIS with notification of his change of address.

An alien applying for temporary protected status has the burden of proving that he or she meets the requirements enumerated above and is otherwise eligible under the provisions of section 244 of the Act. The applicant has failed to meet this burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
