DISCUSSION: The application was denied by the Director, California Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Honduras who is applying for Temporary Protected Status (TPS) under section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1254. The director denied the application because the applicant failed to establish that she was eligible for late registration.

On appeal, the applicant submits a statement and additional evidence.

Section 244(c) of the Act, and the related regulations in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2, provide that an applicant who is a national of a foreign state designated by the Attorney General is eligible for temporary protected status only if such alien establishes that he or she:

- (a) Is a national, as defined in section 101(a)(21) of the Act, of a foreign state designated under section 244(b) of the Act;
- (b) Has been continuously physically present in the United States since the effective date of the most recent designation of that foreign state;
- (c) Has continuously resided in the United States since such date as the Attorney General may designate;
- (d) Is admissible as an immigrant except as provided under section 244.3;
- (e) Is not ineligible under 8 C.F.R. § 244.4; and
- (f)
  - (1) Registers for TPS during the initial registration period announced by public notice in the Federal Register, or
  - (2) During any subsequent extension of such designation if at the time of the initial registration period:
    - (i) The applicant is a nonimmigrant or has been granted voluntary departure status or any relief from removal;
    - (ii) The applicant has an application for change of status, adjustment of status, asylum, voluntary departure, or any relief from removal which is pending or subject to further review or appeal;
    - (iii) The applicant is a parolee or has a pending request for reparole; or
    - (iv) The applicant is a spouse or child of an alien currently eligible to be a TPS registrant.

- (g) Has filed an application for late registration with the appropriate Service director within a 60-day period immediately following the expiration or termination of conditions described in paragraph (f)(2) of this section.

Persons applying for TPS offered to Hondurans must demonstrate that they have continuously resided in the United States since December 30, 1998, and that they have been continuously physically present since January 5, 1999. The initial registration period for Hondurans was from January 5, 1999, through August 20, 1999. The record reveals that the applicant filed her initial application with the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS), on June 28, 2002. She subsequently filed a second application on July 11, 2003.

To qualify for late registration, the applicant must provide evidence that during the initial registration period, she was either in a valid immigration status, had an application pending for relief from removal, was a parolee, or was the spouse or child of an alien currently eligible to be a TPS registrant, and she had filed an application for late registration within 60 days of the expiration or termination of the conditions described in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2).

The burden of proof is upon the applicant to establish that she meets the above requirements. Applicants shall submit all documentation as required in the instructions or requested by CIS. 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(a). The sufficiency of all evidence will be judged according to its relevancy, consistency, credibility, and probative value. To meet her burden of proof the applicant must provide supporting documentary evidence of eligibility apart from her own statements. 8 C.F.R. § 244.9(b).

The director determined that the applicant had failed to establish she was eligible for late registration and denied both applications on October 20, 2003.

On appeal, the applicant's mother, [REDACTED] states that the applicant is eligible for late registration as the daughter of an alien who is currently eligible for TPS registration. The record contains photocopies of two Employment Authorization Cards issued to the applicant's mother, [REDACTED]. One card indicates that as of February 25, 1997, the applicant's mother had an asylum application pending before CIS. The other indicates that the applicant's mother had a TPS application pending before CIS as of December 12, 2002.

The record contains a memorandum from the director of the California Service Center indicating that the applicant's mother never applied for Temporary Protected Status and was incorrectly issued an Employment Authorization Card as a TPS applicant on December 11, 2002. The memo further indicates that that approval of employment authorization was withdrawn on July 15, 2003, because [REDACTED] had not applied for TPS. Since the applicant's mother has never applied for, or been granted, Temporary Protected Status, the applicant is not eligible for late registration as the daughter of an alien currently eligible to be a TPS registrant.

CIS records confirm that the applicant's mother requested asylum on January 12, 1994. CIS records further indicate that her request for asylum was denied in a hearing before an immigration judge on December 8, 1998, and she was ordered removed from the United States. There is no indication that the applicant ever filed an asylum application. In order to qualify for late registration, the applicant herself must have been an asylum applicant. Since she did not have a pending asylum application during the initial registration period, the applicant is not eligible for late registration as an alien who has an asylum application pending or subject to further review or appeal before CIS. The applicant has not submitted any evidence to establish that she has met any of the other criteria for late registration described in 8 C.F.R. § 244.2(f)(2). Consequently, the director's decision to deny the application for temporary protected status will be affirmed.

Beyond the decision of the director, the applicant has not submitted sufficient evidence to establish continuous residence and physical presence in the United States during the requisite periods, and the application also may not be approved for these reasons.

An alien applying for temporary protected status has the burden of proving that he or she meets the requirements enumerated above and is otherwise eligible under the provisions of section 244 of the Act. The applicant has failed to meet this burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
