Please refer to 8 C.F.R. § 103.5 for the specific requirements. All motions must be submitted to the office that originally decided your case by filing a Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, with a fee of $585. Any motion must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider or reopen, as required by 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i).

John F. Grissom
Acting Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Texas Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a construction firm of quality homes and renovations. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a drywall installer. As required by statute, a Form ETA 750 Application for Alien Employment Certification approved by the Department of Labor (DOL), accompanied the petition. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage and denied the petition accordingly.

On appeal, counsel contends that the petitioner's 2004-2007 federal tax returns demonstrate the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage and that copies will be provided within thirty days.

Nothing further has been received to the record in the last sixteen months since the appeal was filed. Therefore, this decision will be rendered on the record as it currently stands.

The AAO maintains plenary power to review each appeal on a de novo basis. 5 U.S.C. § 557(b) ("On appeal from or review of the initial decision, the agency has all the powers which it would have in making the initial decision except as it may limit the issues on notice or by rule."); see also, Janka v. U.S. Dept. of Transp., NTSB, 925 F.2d 1147, 1149 (9th Cir. 1991). The AAO's de novo authority has been long recognized by the federal courts. See, e.g. Dor v. INS, 891 F.2d 997, 1002 n. 9 (2d Cir. 1989).

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g) (2) states, in pertinent part:

Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate that it has the continuing financial ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, the day the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by any office within DOL's employment system. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d); Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). Here, the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing on October 3, 2003.<sup>1</sup> The proffered wage is stated as $24.60 per hour, which amounts to $51,168 per year.

The visa preference petition was filed on June 22, 2007. Part 5 of the petition indicates that the petitioner was established on April 28, 1983 and employs only one person. Part B of the Form ETA 750, signed by the beneficiary on September 4, 2003 does not indicate that he has worked for the petitioner.<sup>2</sup>

In support of its continuing financial ability to pay the certified wage $51,168 per year, the petitioner provided copies of its 2003, Form 1120, U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return. It reflects that the petitioner was incorporated on April 28, 1983. For 1983, the petitioner's fiscal year is indicated as beginning on April 1, 2003 and ending on March 31, 2004. The tax return contains the following information:

Year	April 1, 2003 to March 31, 2004
Net Income <sup>3</sup>	$ 1,113
Current Assets	$13,210
Current Liabilities	$42,248
Net Current Assets	-$29,038

<sup>1</sup> If the petition is approved, the priority date is also used in conjunction with the Visa Bulletin issued by the Department of State to determine when a beneficiary can apply for adjustment of status or for an immigrant visa abroad. Thus, the importance of reviewing the bona fides of a job opportunity as of the priority date, including a prospective U.S. employer's ability to pay the proffered wage is clear.

<sup>2</sup>Part H of the Form ETA 750 indicates that the position of drywall installer requires no education, no training and 2 years of experience in the job offered or two years of experience in a related job. The related job is not specified.

<sup>3</sup> The petitioner is a C corporation. For the purpose of this review of the petitioner's Form 1120 corporate tax returns, the petitioner's net income is found on line 28 (taxable income before net operating loss deduction and special deductions). U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) uses a corporate petitioner's taxable income before the net operating loss deduction as a basis to evaluate its ability to pay the proffered wage in the year of filing the tax return because it represents the net total after consideration of both the petitioner's total income (including gross profit and gross receipts or sales), as well as the expenses and other deductions taken on line(s) 12 through 27 of page 1 of the corporate tax return. Because corporate petitioners may claim a loss in a year other than the year in which it was incurred as a net operating loss, USCIS examines a petitioner's taxable income before the net operating loss deduction in order to determine whether the petitioner had sufficient taxable income in the year of filing the tax return to pay the proffered wage.

Besides net income and as an alternative method of reviewing a petitioner's ability to pay a proposed wage, USCIS will examine a petitioner's net current assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.<sup>4</sup> It represents a measure of liquidity during a given period and a possible resource out of which the proffered wage may be paid for that period. In this case, the corporate petitioner's year-end current assets and current liabilities are shown on Schedule L of its federal tax returns. Here, current assets are shown on line(s) 1 through 6 and current liabilities are shown on line(s) 16 through 18. If a corporation's end-of-year net current assets are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the corporate petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage out of those net current assets.<sup>5</sup>

The director denied the petition on April 17, 2008, concluding that the petitioner's 2003 federal tax return failed to establish its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage of $51,168. Additionally, the director noted that the petitioner failed to submit its tax returns for 2004, 2005, 2006, or 2007.

On appeal, counsel asserts that the petitioner's 2004, 2005, 2006, and 2007 federal tax returns had been extended but will be filed with the Internal Revenue Service and copies provided within thirty days. He maintains that these returns will establish that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage.

As noted above, nothing further has been submitted to the record. It is noted that the director had previously requested financial documentation from the petitioner on December 17, 2007, consisting of the petitioner's 2004-2006 federal income tax returns as well as audited financial records covering the first six months of 2007 and evidence of the beneficiary's requisite two years of experience. Although counsel's transmittal letter, which is inexplicably dated September 7, 2007 refers to the enclosure of the petitioner's 2004-2006 tax returns and an employment verification letter, only the letter was provided.

As no further financial documentation has been provided to the record for 2004, 2005, 2006, or 2007, the petitioner has failed to demonstrate its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage during those years pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). The failure to submit requested evidence that precludes a material line of inquiry shall be grounds for denying the petition. 8

<sup>4</sup> According to Barron's Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), "current assets" consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, inventory and prepaid expenses. "Current liabilities" are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

<sup>5</sup> A petitioner's total assets and total liabilities are not considered in this calculation because they include assets and liabilities that, (in most cases) have a life of more than one year and would also include assets that would not be converted to cash during the ordinary course of business and will not, therefore, become funds available to pay the proffered wage.

C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(14). Moreover, the petitioner's 2003 tax return fails to establish the ability to pay the certified salary.

In determining a petitioner's ability to pay a proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner may have employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. To the extent that the petitioner may have paid the beneficiary less than the proffered wage, those amounts will be considered. If the difference between the amount of wages paid and the proffered wage can be covered by the petitioner's net income or net current assets for a given year, then the petitioner's ability to pay the full proffered wage for that period will also be demonstrated. Here, as noted above, Part B of the Form ETA 750 fails to indicate that the petitioner has employed or paid wages to the beneficiary.

If a petitioner does not establish that it has employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during the pertinent period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). Reliance on the petitioner's gross receipts and wage expense is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross receipts exceeded the proffered wage is insufficient. Similarly, showing that the petitioner paid wages in excess of the proffered wage is insufficient.

In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084, the court held that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now USCIS, had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. The court specifically rejected the argument that USCIS should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income.

With respect to depreciation, the court in River Street Donuts noted:

The AAO recognized that a depreciation deduction is a systematic allocation of the cost of a tangible long-term asset and does not represent a specific cash expenditure during the year claimed. Furthermore, the AAO indicated that the allocation of the depreciation of a long-term asset could be spread out over the years or concentrated into a few depending on the petitioner's choice of accounting and depreciation methods. Nonetheless, the AAO explained that depreciation represents an actual cost of doing business, which could represent either the diminution in value of buildings and equipment or the accumulation of funds necessary to replace perishable equipment and buildings. Accordingly, the AAO stressed that even though amounts deducted for depreciation do not represent current use of cash, neither does it represent amounts available to pay wages.

We find that the AAO has a rational explanation for its policy of not adding depreciation back to net income. Namely, that the amount spent on a long term tangible asset is a "real" expense.

River Street Donuts at 116. “[USCIS] and judicial precedent support the use of tax returns and the net income figures in determining petitioner’s ability to pay. Plaintiffs’ argument that these figures should be revised by the court by adding back depreciation is without support.” Chi-Feng Chang at 537 (emphasis added).

In this case, as set forth above, the petitioner’s 2003 federal tax return reflected that neither its net income of $1,113 nor its net current assets of -$29,038 was sufficient to cover the proffered wage of $51,168. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) requires that a petitioner establish a continuing financial ability to pay the proffered wage beginning at the priority date. (Emphasis added.) Upon review of the evidence contained in the record and the failure to submit any evidence on appeal, the AAO concludes that the evidence failed to demonstrate that the petitioner has had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage.<sup>6</sup> Going on record without <sup>6</sup>Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (BIA 1967) is sometimes applicable where other factors such as the expectations of increasing business and profits overcome evidence of small profits. That case, however relates to petitions filed during uncharacteristically unprofitable or difficult years within a framework of profitable or successful years. During the year in which the petition was filed, the Sonogawa petitioner changed business locations, and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and a period of time when business could not be conducted. The Regional Commissioner determined that the prospects for a resumption of successful operations were well established. He noted that the petitioner was a well-known fashion designer who had been featured in Time and Look. Her clients included movie actresses, society matrons and Miss Universe. The petitioner had lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonogawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation, historical growth and outstanding reputation as a couturiere. In this case, the record contains no evidence indicating that the petitioner had operated within a framework of profitable or successful years or that other reputational factors would be applicable that are analogous to the circumstances set forth in Sonogawa. Moreover, as noted above, the single tax return provided failed to demonstrate that either the petitioner’s net income or net current assets were sufficient to demonstrate its ability to pay the proffered wage in 2003. Further, no other tax returns or other evidence, supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972)).

In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.

pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2), was submitted in support the petitioner's ability to pay in the subsequent years.
