Beneficiary:

PETITION: Immigrant petition for Alien Worker as an Other Worker pursuant to section 203(b)(3) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)

ON BEHALF OF PETITIONER:

SELF-REPRESENTED

INSTRUCTIONS:

This is the decision of the Administrative Appeals Office in your case. All documents have been returned to the office that originally decided your case. Any further inquiry must be made to that office.

If you believe the law was inappropriately applied or you have additional information that you wish to have considered, you may file a motion to reconsider or a motion to reopen. Please refer to 8 C.F.R. § 103.5 for the specific requirements. All motions must be submitted to the office that originally decided your case by filing a Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, with a fee of $630. Any motion must be filed within 30 days of the decision that the motion seeks to reconsider, as required by 8 C.F.R. § 103.5(a)(1)(i).

Thank you,

Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The preference visa petition was denied by the Director, Nebraska Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a construction company. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a cement mason and concrete finisher ("construction worker.") As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by a Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). The director determined that the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage beginning on the priority date of the visa petition and that the labor certification did not support the requested category. The director denied the petition accordingly.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's January 16, 2009 denial, the issues in this case are whether or not the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence and whether the petition was filed under the correct classification.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(iii), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing unskilled labor, not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2) states in pertinent part:

> Ability of prospective employer to pay wage. Any petition filed by or for an employment-based immigrant which requires an offer of employment must be accompanied by evidence that the prospective United States employer has the ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner must demonstrate this ability at the time the priority date is established and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. Evidence of this ability shall be either in the form of copies of annual reports, federal tax returns, or audited financial statements.

The petitioner must demonstrate the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage beginning on the priority date, which is the date the Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, was accepted for processing by any office within the employment system of the DOL. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d). The petitioner must also demonstrate that, on the priority date, the beneficiary had the qualifications stated on its Form ETA 750, Application for Alien Employment Certification, as certified by the DOL and submitted with the instant petition. Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977).

Here, the Form ETA 750 was accepted on April 30, 2001. The proffered wage as stated on the Form ETA 750 is $17 per hour ($35,360 per year).[1] The Form ETA 750 states that the position requires three years of experience in a related occupation as a construction worker.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.[2]

The evidence in the record of proceeding shows that the petitioner is structured as a partnership and filed its tax returns on IRS Form 1065. On the petition filed on June 20, 2008, the petitioner claimed to have been established in 2004 and to currently employ three workers. According to the tax returns in the record, the petitioner's fiscal year is based on the calendar year. On the Form ETA 750B, the beneficiary stated that he began working for the petitioner in 1994.[3]

The petitioner must establish that its job offer to the beneficiary is a realistic one. Because the filing of an ETA 750 labor certification application establishes a priority date for any immigrant petition later based on the ETA 750, the petitioner must establish that the job offer was realistic as of the priority date and that the offer remained realistic for each year thereafter, until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. The petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is an essential element in evaluating whether a job offer is realistic. See Matter of Great Wall, 16 I&N Dec. 142 (Acting Reg. Comm. 1977); see also 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2). In evaluating whether a job offer is realistic, United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) requires the petitioner to demonstrate financial resources sufficient to pay the beneficiary's proffered wages, although the totality of the circumstances affecting the petitioning business will be considered if the evidence warrants such consideration. See Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg. Comm. 1967).

[1] The labor certification indicates that time and a half will be paid for any needed overtime, but does not state that overtime would be required for any specific amount of time.

[2] The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

[3] The petitioner's stated 2004 formation date conflicts with the 2001 labor certification priority date and the beneficiary's claim that he began employment with the petitioner in 1994. "It is incumbent on the petitioner to resolve any inconsistencies in the record by independent objective evidence, and attempts to explain or reconcile such inconsistencies, absent competent objective evidence pointing to where the truth, in fact, lies, will not suffice." Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. 582, 591-592 (BIA 1988). Elsewhere, the petitioner states that it has employed the beneficiary since 2001. The petitioner must resolve these inconsistencies in any further filings.

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage during a given period, USCIS will first examine whether the petitioner employed and paid the beneficiary during that period. If the petitioner establishes by documentary evidence that it employed the beneficiary at a salary equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the evidence will be considered prima facie proof of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. The petitioner submitted the following evidence:

- In 2004, the petitioner issued checks to the beneficiary in the amount of $2,700.[4]

[4] The petitioner also submitted checks written from [redacted] to the beneficiary for $4,352. [redacted] is not the petitioner in this case. Because a corporation is a separate and distinct legal entity from its owners and shareholders, the assets of its shareholders or of other enterprises or corporations cannot be considered in determining the petitioning corporation's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Aphrodite Investments, Ltd., 17 I&N Dec. 530 (Comm. 1980). In a similar case, the court in Sitar v. Ashcroft, 2003 WL 22203713 (D.Mass. Sept. 18, 2003) stated, "nothing in the governing regulation, 8 C.F.R. § 204.5, permits [USCIS] to consider the financial resources of individuals or entities who have no legal obligation to pay the wage." In response to the director's RFE, the petitioner's owner stated that the petitioner operated as [redacted], however, he submitted no evidence to show that the companies operated under the same tax identification number. Both the labor certification and Form I-140 were filed by [redacted] Only the assets of [redacted] can be used to establish the petitioner's ability to pay. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972)).

Matter of Dial Auto, 19 I & N Dec. 481 (1986), is an AAO decision designated as precedent by the Commissioner. The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 103.3(c) provides that precedent decisions are binding on all USCIS employees in the administration of the Act. Precedent decisions must be designated and published in bound volumes or as interim decisions. 8 C.F.R. § 103.9(a).

By way of background, Matter of Dial Auto involved a petition filed by Dial Auto Repair Shop, Inc. (Dial Auto) on behalf of an alien beneficiary for the position of automotive technician. The beneficiary's former employer, Elvira Auto Body, filed the underlying labor certification. On the petition, Dial Auto claimed to be a successor-in-interest to Elvira Auto Body. The part of the Commissioner's decision relating to successor-in-interest issue is set forth below:

> Additionally, the representations made by the petitioner concerning the relationship between [redacted] and itself are issues which have not been resolved. On order to determine whether the petitioner was a true successor to [redacted] counsel was instructed on appeal to fully explain the manner by which the petitioner took over the business of [redacted] and to provide the Service with a copy of the contract or agreement between the two entities; however, no response was submitted. If the petitioner's claim of having assumed all of [redacted] > rights, duties, obligations, etc., is found to be untrue, then grounds would exist for invalidation of the labor certification under 20 C.F.R. § 656.30 (1987). Conversely, if the claim is found to be true, and it is determined that an actual successorship exists, the petition could be approved if eligibility is otherwise shown, including ability of the predecessor enterprise to have paid the certified wage at the time of filing.

(All emphasis added). The legacy INS and USCIS has, at times, strictly interpreted Matter of Dial Auto to limit a successor-in-interest finding to cases where the petitioner could show that it assumed all of the original entity's rights, duties, obligations and assets. However, a close reading of the Commissioner's decision reveals that it does not explicitly require a successor-in-interest to establish that it is assuming all of the original employer's rights, duties, and obligations. Instead, in Matter of Dial Auto, the petitioner had represented that it had assumed all of the original employer's rights, duties, and obligations, but had failed to submit requested evidence to establish that this was, in fact, true. And, if the petitioner's claim was untrue, the Commissioner stated that the underlying labor certification could be invalidated for fraud or willful misrepresentation pursuant to 20 C.F.R. § 656.30 (1987).[4] This is why the Commissioner said "[i]f the petitioner's claim is found to be true, and it is determined that an actual successorship exists, the petition could be approved." (Emphasis added.) The Commissioner was explicitly stating that the petitioner's claim that it assumed all of the original employer's rights, duties, and obligations is a separate inquiry from whether or not the petitioner is a successor-in-interest. The Commissioner was most interested in receiving a full explanation as to the "manner by which the petitioner took over the business of [the alleged predecessor] and seeing a copy of "the contract or agreement between the two entities."

In view of the above, Matter of Dial Auto did not state that a valid successor relationship could only be established through the assumption of all of a predecessor entity's rights, duties, and obligations. Instead, based on this precedent and the regulations pertaining to this visa classification, a valid successor relationship may be established if the job opportunity is the same as originally offered on the labor certification; if the purported successor establishes eligibility in all respects, including the provision of evidence from the predecessor entity, such as evidence of the predecessor's ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date; and if the petition fully describes and documents the transfer and assumption of the ownership of the predecessor by the claimed successor.

Evidence of transfer of ownership must show that the successor not only purchased the predecessor's assets but also that the successor acquired the essential rights and obligations of the predecessor necessary to carry on the business in the same manner as the predecessor. The successor must continue to operate the same type of business as the predecessor, and the manner in which the business is controlled must remain substantially the same as it was before the ownership transfer. The successor must also establish its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage from the date of business transfer until the beneficiary adjusts status to lawful permanent resident.

Here, successorship is not an issue as both the labor certification and Form I-140 were filed by [redacted]

- In 2005, the petitioner issued checks to the beneficiary in the amount of $9,956.
- In 2006, the petitioner issued checks to the beneficiary in the amount of $13,157.
- In 2007, the petitioner issued one check to the beneficiary in the amount of $1,683.

These amounts are less than the proffered wage. As a result, the petitioner must establish its ability to pay the difference between the actual wage paid and the proffered wage, which in 2004 is $32,660; in 2005 is $25,404; in 2006 is $22,203; and in 2007 is $33,677. For 2001 through 2003, the petitioner must establish that it can pay the full proffered wage.

If the petitioner does not establish that it employed and paid the beneficiary an amount at least equal to the proffered wage during that period, USCIS will next examine the net income figure reflected on the petitioner's federal income tax return, without consideration of depreciation or other expenses. River Street Donuts, LLC v. Napolitano, 558 F.3d 111 (1st Cir. 2009); Taco Especial v. Napolitano, 696 F. Supp. 2d 873, 881 (E.D. Mich. 2010). Reliance on federal income tax returns as a basis for determining a petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage is well established by judicial precedent. Elatos Restaurant Corp. v. Sava, 632 F. Supp. 1049, 1054 (S.D.N.Y. 1986) (citing Tongatapu Woodcraft Hawaii, Ltd. v. Feldman, 736 F.2d 1305 (9th Cir. 1984)); see also Chi-Feng Chang v. Thornburgh, 719 F. Supp. 532 (N.D. Texas 1989); K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. 1080 (S.D.N.Y. 1985); Ubeda v. Palmer, 539 F. Supp. 647 (N.D. Ill. 1982), aff'd, 703 F.2d 571 (7th Cir. 1983). Reliance on the petitioner's gross receipts and wage expense is misplaced. Showing that the petitioner's gross receipts exceeded the proffered wage is insufficient. Similarly, showing that the petitioner paid wages in excess of the proffered wage is insufficient.

In K.C.P. Food Co., Inc. v. Sava, 623 F. Supp. at 1084, the court held that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now USCIS, had properly relied on the petitioner's net income figure, as stated on the petitioner's corporate income tax returns, rather than the petitioner's gross income. The court specifically rejected the argument that USCIS should have considered income before expenses were paid rather than net income. See Taco Especial, 696 F. Supp. at 881 (gross profits overstate an employer's ability to pay because it ignores other necessary expenses).

With respect to depreciation, the court in River Street Donuts noted:

> The AAO recognized that a depreciation deduction is a systematic allocation of the cost of a tangible long-term asset and does not represent a specific cash expenditure during the year claimed. Furthermore, the AAO indicated that the allocation of the depreciation of a long-term asset could be spread out over the years or concentrated into a few depending on the petitioner's choice of accounting and depreciation methods. Nonetheless, the AAO explained that depreciation represents an actual cost of doing business, which could represent either the diminution in value of buildings and equipment or the accumulation of funds necessary to replace perishable equipment and buildings. Accordingly, the AAO stressed that even though amounts deducted for depreciation do not represent current use of cash, neither does it represent amounts available to pay wages.

> We find that the AAO has a rational explanation for its policy of not adding depreciation back to net income. Namely, that the amount spent on a long term tangible asset is a "real" expense.

River Street Donuts, 558 F.3d at 116. "[USCIS] and judicial precedent support the use of tax returns and the net income figures in determining petitioner's ability to pay. Plaintiffs' argument that these figures should be revised by the court by adding back depreciation is without support." Chi-Feng Chang, 719 F.Supp. at 537 (emphasis added).

The record before the director closed on December 20, 2008 with the receipt by the director of the petitioner's submissions in response to the director's request for evidence. As of that date, the petitioner's 2007 federal income tax return is the most recent return available. The petitioner's tax returns stated its net income as detailed in the table below.

- In 2001, the petitioner did not submit its tax return.
- In 2002, the petitioner did not submit its tax return.
- In 2003, the petitioner did not submit its tax return.
- In 2004, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net income of $4,229.[5]
- In 2005, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net income of $6,772.
- In 2006, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net income of $0.
- In 2007, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net income of -$2,125.

As noted above, the petitioner submitted no tax returns for 2001, 2002, or 2003. The petitioner's net income for 2004 through 2007 is less than the proffered wage, so the petitioner did not have sufficient net income to pay the proffered wage in any of the relevant years.

If the net income the petitioner demonstrates it had available during that period, if any, added to the wages paid to the beneficiary during the period, if any, do not equal the amount of the proffered wage or more, USCIS will review the petitioner's assets. Net current assets are the difference between the petitioner's current assets and current liabilities.[6] A partnership's year-end current

[5] For a partnership, where a partnership's income is exclusively from a trade or business, USCIS considers net income to be the figure shown on Line 22 of the Form 1065, U.S. Partnership Income Tax Return. However, where a partnership has income, credits, deductions or other adjustments from sources other than a trade or business, they are reported on Schedule K. If the Schedule K has relevant entries for additional income or additional credits, deductions or other adjustments, net income is found on page 4 of IRS Form 1065 at line 1 of the Analysis of Net Income (Loss) of Schedule K. In the instant case, the petitioner's Schedules K have no relevant entries for additional deductions in any of the years in question and, therefore, its net income is found on line 22.

[6] According to Barron's Dictionary of Accounting Terms 117 (3rd ed. 2000), "current assets" consist of items having (in most cases) a life of one year or less, such as cash, marketable securities, assets are shown on Schedule L, lines 1(d) through 6(d) and include cash-on-hand, inventories, and receivables expected to be converted to cash within one year. Its year-end current liabilities are shown on lines 15(d) through 17(d). If the total of a partnership's end-of-year net current assets and the wages paid to the beneficiary (if any) are equal to or greater than the proffered wage, the petitioner is expected to be able to pay the proffered wage using those net current assets. The petitioner's tax returns stated its net current assets as detailed in the table below.

- In 2001, the petitioner did not submit its tax return.
- In 2002, the petitioner did not submit its tax return.
- In 2003, the petitioner did not submit its tax return.
- In 2004, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net current assets of $4,229.
- In 2005, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net current assets of $11,001.
- In 2006, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net current assets of $14,107.
- In 2007, the petitioner's Form 1065 stated net current assets of $1,606.

None of these amounts are sufficient to show the ability to pay the difference between the proffered wage and the actual wage paid. Again, the petitioner submitted no tax returns for 2001, 2002, or 2003. Therefore, the petitioner did not demonstrate sufficient net current assets to pay the proffered wage in any of the relevant years.

Therefore, from the date the Form ETA 750 was accepted for processing by the DOL, the petitioner had not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the beneficiary the proffered wage as of the priority date through its net income or net current assets.

In response to the director's RFE, the petitioner's owner submitted a statement where he claimed to have issued 1099s to the beneficiary for every year that he worked for the petitioner, however, the petitioner did not submit copies of those 1099s so they cannot be considered. Going on record without supporting documentary evidence is not sufficient for purposes of meeting the burden of proof in these proceedings. Matter of Soffici, 22 I&N Dec. 158, 165 (Comm. 1998) (citing Matter of Treasure Craft of California, 14 I&N Dec. 190 (Reg. Comm. 1972)). The owner also estimated that the petitioner paid the beneficiary about $7,000 in total wages between 2001 and 2003. This amount is less than the proffered wage for even one year. The petitioner provided no evidence of actual pay or that it had the ability to pay the difference between this amount and the proffered wage from 2001 to 2003. The petitioner submitted no regulatory proscribed evidence in accordance with 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(a)(2) concerning its income or net current assets for 2001, 2002, or 2003, so we are unable to conclude that the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage for those years.

USCIS may consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities in its determination of the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage. See Matter of Sonegawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 inventory and prepaid expenses. "Current liabilities" are obligations payable (in most cases) within one year, such accounts payable, short-term notes payable, and accrued expenses (such as taxes and salaries). Id. at 118.

(BIA 1967). The petitioning entity in Sonegawa had been in business for over 11 years and routinely earned a gross annual income of about $100,000. During the year in which the petition was filed in that case, the petitioner changed business locations and paid rent on both the old and new locations for five months. There were large moving costs and also a period of time when the petitioner was unable to do regular business. The Regional Commissioner determined that the petitioner's prospects for a resumption of successful business operations were well established. The petitioner was a fashion designer whose work had been featured in Time and Look magazines. Her clients included Miss Universe, movie actresses, and society matrons. The petitioner's clients had been included in the lists of the best-dressed California women. The petitioner lectured on fashion design at design and fashion shows throughout the United States and at colleges and universities in California. The Regional Commissioner's determination in Sonegawa was based in part on the petitioner's sound business reputation and outstanding reputation as a couturiere. As in Sonegawa, USCIS may, at its discretion, consider evidence relevant to the petitioner's financial ability that falls outside of a petitioner's net income and net current assets. USCIS may consider such factors as the number of years the petitioner has been doing business, the established historical growth of the petitioner's business, the overall number of employees, the occurrence of any uncharacteristic business expenditures or losses, the petitioner's reputation within its industry, whether the beneficiary is replacing a former employee or an outsourced service, or any other evidence that USCIS deems relevant to the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage.

In the instant case, the petitioner submitted no evidence as to its reputation or any evidence showing that one year was off or otherwise not representative of the petitioner's overall financial picture. Instead, the petitioner demonstrated consistent loss or minimal net income and its net current assets were also consistently liabilities or low. In addition, the petitioner submitted no regulatory proscribed evidence in accordance with 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(a)(2) concerning its income or net current assets for 2001, 2002, or 2003, nor did it submit any evidence of wages paid to the beneficiary during the period from the time Form ETA 750 was accepted onwards. The petitioner's tax returns show a substantial decline in gross receipts from 2005 to 2007. Thus, assessing the totality of the circumstances in this individual case, it is concluded that the petitioner has not established that it had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage.

Additionally, the petitioner filed the application for an other worker, requiring less than two years of experience, when the labor certification requires three years of experience to be qualified for the position.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(iii), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing unskilled labor, not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States. Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

On Part 2.g. of the Form I-140, the petitioner indicated that it was filing the petition for an other worker.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(i) provides in pertinent part:

> (4) Differentiating between skilled and other workers. The determination of whether a worker is a skilled or other worker will be based on the requirements of training and/or experience placed on the job by the prospective employer, as certified by the Department of Labor.

In this case, the labor certification indicates that three years of experience as a construction worker is required for the proffered position. However, the petitioner requested the other worker classification on the Form I-140, which requires less than two years of experience. There is no provision in statute or regulation that compels United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) to readjudicate a petition under a different visa classification in response to a petitioner's request to change it, once the decision has been rendered.

USCIS must look to the job offer portion of the labor certification to determine the required qualifications for the position. USCIS may not ignore a term of the labor certification, nor may it impose additional requirements. See Matter of Silver Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 401, 406 (Comm. 1986). See also Mandany v. Smith, 696 F.2d 1008, (D.C. Cir. 1983); K.R.K. Irvine, Inc. v. Landon, 699 F.2d 1006 (9th Cir. 1983); Stewart Infra-Red Commissary of Massachusetts, Inc. v. Coomey, 661 F.2d 1 (1st Cir. 1981). In this matter, the appropriate remedy would be to file another petition, request the proper classification, submit the proper fee, and required documentation.

In addition to the issue as to whether the petitioner has the ability to pay the proffered wage, the petitioner failed to adequately document that the beneficiary has the required training and experience for the position offered. An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 229 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff'd. 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004) (noting that the AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis).To be eligible for approval, a beneficiary must have the education and experience specified on the labor certification as of the petition's filing date. See Matter of Wing's Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977). The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii) specifies for the classification of an other worker that:

> (A) General. Any requirements of training or experience for skilled workers, professionals, or other workers must be supported by letters from trainers or employers giving the name, address, and title of the trainer or employer, and a description of the training received.

> (D) Other workers. If the petition is for an unskilled (other) worker, it must be accompanied by evidence that the alien meets any educational, training and experience, and other requirements of the labor certification.

Block 14 of the ETA 750A states that the minimum experience required for the position is three years of experience as a construction worker. Although the beneficiary stated on the Form ETA 750B that he began working for the petitioner in 1994, the letter submitted from the petitioner's President states that the beneficiary began working for the company in 2001. The priority date for the labor certification is 2001, so the beneficiary must demonstrate that he had the requisite three years of experience before that date. The petitioner submitted no evidence that the beneficiary had the required three years of experience as of the priority date.

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
