DISCUSSION: The Director, Nebraska Service Center, denied the preference visa petition. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner is a consulting service. It seeks to employ the beneficiary permanently in the United States as a secretary. As required by statute, the petition is accompanied by a labor certification application approved by the United States Department of Labor (DOL). The labor certification requires that an applicant for the proffered position have two years of experience in the proffered job. The director determined that the petitioner had not established that the petition requires less than two years of training or experience. Therefore, the beneficiary cannot be found qualified for classification as an other worker as requested on the petition. The director denied the petition accordingly.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed, timely and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact. The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

As set forth in the director's January 6, 2009 denial, at issue in this case is whether the petitioner has established that the petition requires less than two years of training or experience such that the beneficiary may be found qualified for classification as an other worker.

Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), provides for the granting of preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States. Section 203(b)(3)(A)(iii) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(iii), provides for the granting of preference classification to other qualified immigrants who are capable, at the time of petitioning for classification under this paragraph, of performing unskilled labor, not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(1)(2) defines "other worker" as:

a qualified alien who is capable, at the time of petitioning for this classification, of performing unskilled labor (requiring less than two years training or experience), not of a temporary or seasonal nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

Here, the Form I-140 was filed on January 11, 2008. At Part 2.g. of the Form I-140, the petitioner indicated that it was filing the petition for an unskilled or other worker (requiring less than two years of training or experience.)

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted on appeal.<sup>1</sup>

On appeal, the petitioner's president submitted a statement which indicates that the Form I-140 contains an error and that the petitioner had intended to petition for an unskilled or other worker, not a skilled worker or professional as indicated on the Form I-140. The petitioner also submitted an amended Form I-140 which indicates at Part 2.e. of that form that the petition is for a skilled worker or professional.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(i) provides in pertinent part:

(4) Differentiating between skilled and other workers. The determination of whether a worker is a skilled or other worker will be based on the requirements of training and/or experience placed on the job by the prospective employer, as certified by the Department of Labor.

In this case, the labor certification indicates that the proffered position requires four years of high school and two years of experience in the proffered position. Yet, the petitioner requested the other worker classification on the Form I-140. There is no provision in statute or regulation that compels USCIS to readjudicate a petition under a different visa classification, such as other worker, once the decision has been rendered. No material changes may be made to a petition in an effort to make a deficient petition conform to USCIS requirements. See Matter of Izummi, 22 I&N Dec. 169, 176 (Assoc. Comm. 1988). In this matter, the appropriate remedy would be to file another petition under the visa category which corresponds to the requirements of the Form ETA 750, as certified by the DOL, with the proper fee and required documentation.

The evidence submitted does not establish that the petition requires less than two years of training or experience such that the beneficiary may be found qualified for classification as an other worker.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. The petitioner has not met that burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.

<sup>1</sup> The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations at 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in this case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).
