Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Director, Texas Service Center (director), denied the employment-based immigrant visa petition. The petitioner appealed the decision to the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The appeal will be dismissed.

The petitioner describes itself as a cement mason business. It seeks to permanently employ the beneficiary in the United States as a cement mason. The petitioner requests classification of the beneficiary as a skilled worker pursuant to section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i).¹

The petition is accompanied by an ETA Form 9089, Application for Permanent Employment Certification (labor certification), certified by the U.S. Department of Labor (DOL). The priority date of the petition, which is the date the DOL accepted the labor certification for processing, is February 14, 2007. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(d).

The director's decision denying the petition concludes that the beneficiary did not possess the minimum experience required to perform the offered position by the priority date. On appeal, the AAO has identified another issue, whether or not the petitioner established it had the continuing ability to pay the proffered wage.

The record shows that the appeal is properly filed and makes a specific allegation of error in law or fact.² The procedural history in this case is documented by the record and incorporated into the decision. Further elaboration of the procedural history will be made only as necessary.

The AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004). The AAO considers all pertinent evidence in the record, including new evidence properly submitted upon appeal.³

Beneficiary Qualifications: Experience

The beneficiary must meet all of the requirements of the offered position set forth on the labor certification by the priority date of the petition. 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(1), (12). See Matter of Wing's

¹ Section 203(b)(3)(A)(i) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1153(b)(3)(A)(i), grants preference classification to qualified immigrants who are capable of performing skilled labor (requiring at least two years training or experience), not of a temporary nature, for which qualified workers are not available in the United States.

² This office is sending a courtesy copy of this decision to the attorney of record at her most current address, although it is noted that her appearance was filed in her capacity as attorney for American Legal Immigrations Services, Inc., which is now a defunct entity.

³ The submission of additional evidence on appeal is allowed by the instructions to the Form I-290B, which are incorporated into the regulations by 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(a)(1). The record in the instant case provides no reason to preclude consideration of any of the documents newly submitted on appeal. See Matter of Soriano, 19 I&N Dec. 764 (BIA 1988).

Tea House, 16 I&N Dec. 158, 159 (Act. Reg. Comm. 1977); see also Matter of Katigbak, 14 I&N Dec. 45, 49 (Reg. Comm. 1971).

In evaluating the labor certification to determine the required qualifications for the position, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) may not ignore a term of the labor certification, nor may it impose additional requirements. See Matter of Silver Dragon Chinese Restaurant, 19 I&N Dec. 401, 406 (Comm. 1986). See also Madany, 696 F.2d at 1008; K.R.K. Irvine, Inc., 699 F.2d at 1006; Stewart Infra-Red Commissary of Massachusetts, Inc. v. Coomey, 661 F.2d 1 (1st Cir. 1981).

Where the job requirements in a labor certification are not otherwise unambiguously prescribed, e.g., by regulation, USCIS must examine “the language of the labor certification job requirements” in order to determine what the petitioner must demonstrate about the beneficiary’s qualifications. Madany, 696 F.2d at 1015. The only rational manner by which USCIS can be expected to interpret the meaning of terms used to describe the requirements of a job in a labor certification is to “examine the certified job offer exactly as it is completed by the prospective employer.” Rosedale Linden Park Company v. Smith, 595 F. Supp. 829, 833 (D.D.C. 1984)(emphasis added). USCIS’s interpretation of the job’s requirements, as stated on the labor certification must involve “reading and applying the plain language of the [labor certification].” Id. at 834 (emphasis added). USCIS cannot and should not reasonably be expected to look beyond the plain language of the labor certification or otherwise attempt to divine the employer’s intentions through some sort of reverse engineering of the labor certification.

In the instant case, the labor certification states that the offered position has the following minimum requirements:

- H.4. Education: None required.
- H.5. Training: None required.
- H.6. Experience in the job offered: 24 months as a cement mason.
- H.7. Alternate field of study: Not Applicable.
- H.8. Alternate combination of education and experience: Not Applicable.
- H.9. Foreign educational equivalent: Not Applicable.
- H.10. Experience in an alternate occupation: None accepted.
- H.14. Specific skills or other requirements: None required.

The labor certification also states that the beneficiary qualifies for the offered position based on self-employment as a cement mason from January 2, 2002 until March 31, 2004. No other experience is listed. The beneficiary signed the labor certification under a declaration that the contents are true and correct under penalty of perjury.

The regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(l)(3)(ii)(A) states:

Any requirements of training or experience for skilled workers, professionals, or other workers must be supported by letters from trainers or employers giving the name, address, and title of the trainer or employer, and a description of the training received or the experience of the alien.

The record contains no evidence supporting the beneficiary's claim of self-employment.

The record contains an experience letter from [REDACTED] General Manager, on [REDACTED] letterhead stating that the company employed the beneficiary as a personnel manager from January 2, 1998 until February 9, 2000. However, the letter does not state whether the beneficiary's employment was full- or part-time. Further, this experience is not in the required field of cement mason, nor is the claimed experience listed on the labor certification.⁴ The director's denial discussed the inconsistency of this experience not being listed on the labor certification, but on appeal, the petitioner provided no explanation addressing the inconsistency,⁵ and the record does not contain independent, objective evidence of this claimed employment.

On appeal, the petitioner submitted another experience letter. This letter is from [REDACTED] Civil Engineer, on what appears to be personal letterhead stating that the beneficiary labored with him as a cement mason from May 1995 to November 1997. However, it is not clear whether [REDACTED] employed the beneficiary or was a co-worker of the beneficiary and the letter does not state whether the beneficiary's employment was full- or part-time. This claimed experience is also not listed on the labor certification.⁶ Furthermore, the record contains no explanation addressing the inconsistency of why this claimed employment is not listed on the labor certification,⁷ and the record does not contain independent, objective evidence of this claimed employment.

Therefore, the petitioner has not established that the beneficiary possessed the minimum experience required to perform the proffered position by the priority date.

Continuing Ability to Pay the Proffered Wage

Beyond the decision of the director,⁸ the petitioner has also failed to establish its ability to pay the proffered wage as of the priority date and continuing until the beneficiary obtains lawful permanent residence. See 8 C.F.R. § 204.5(g)(2).

⁴In Matter of Leung, 16 I&N Dec. 2530 (BIA 1976), the Board's dicta notes that the beneficiary's experience, without such fact certified by DOL on the beneficiary's Form ETA [9089], lessens the credibility of the evidence and facts asserted.

⁵It is incumbent on the petitioner to resolve any inconsistencies in the record by independent objective evidence, and attempts to explain or reconcile such inconsistencies, absent competent objective evidence pointing to where the truth, in fact, lies, will not suffice. See Matter of Ho, 19 I&N Dec. 582, 591-592 (BIA 1988).

⁷ See Matter of Ho.

⁸ An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the

In determining the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS first examines whether the petitioner has paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage each year from the priority date. If the petitioner has not paid the beneficiary the full proffered wage each year, USCIS will next examine whether the petitioner had sufficient net income or net current assets to pay the difference between the wage paid, if any, and the proffered wage.⁹ If the petitioner's net income or net current assets is not sufficient to demonstrate the petitioner's ability to pay the proffered wage, USCIS may also consider the overall magnitude of the petitioner's business activities. See Matter of Sonogawa, 12 I&N Dec. 612 (Reg'l Comm'r 1967).

In the instant case, the petitioner did not employ the beneficiary, and it has not submitted any of its tax returns for the years 2007 through 2011.¹⁰ Further, the petitioner failed to establish that factors similar to Sonogawa existed in the instant case, which would permit a conclusion that the petitioner had the ability to pay the proffered wage despite its shortfalls in wages paid to the beneficiary, net income and net current assets.

Accordingly, after considering the totality of the circumstances, the petitioner has also failed to establish its continuing ability to pay the proffered wage to the beneficiary since the priority date.

An application or petition that fails to comply with the technical requirements of the law may be denied by the AAO even if the Service Center does not identify all of the grounds for denial in the initial decision. See Spencer Enterprises, Inc. v. United States, 229 F. Supp. 2d 1025, 1043 (E.D. Cal. 2001), aff'd, 345 F.3d 683 (9th Cir. 2003); see also Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004) (noting that the AAO conducts appellate review on a de novo basis).

The petition will be denied for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial. In visa petition proceedings, the burden of proving eligibility for the benefit sought remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
