Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The Director, Vermont Service Center, denied the immigrant visa petition. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed. The petition will remain denied.

The petitioner seeks immigrant classification pursuant to section 204(a)(1)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (“the Act”), 8 U.S.C. § 1154(a)(1)(A)(iii), as an alien battered or subjected to extreme cruelty by a United States citizen.

The director determined that the petitioner had not established she had entered into the marriage in good faith. On appeal, counsel for the petitioner submits a Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal or Motion, a brief, and one additional statement. The AAO reviews these proceedings de novo. See Soltane v. DOJ, 381 F.3d 143, 145 (3d Cir. 2004).

Applicable Law and Regulations

Section 204(a)(1)(A)(iii) of the Act provides that an alien who is the spouse of a United States citizen may self-petition for immigrant classification if the alien demonstrates that he or she entered into the marriage with the United States citizen spouse in good faith and that during the marriage, the alien or a child of the alien was battered or subjected to extreme cruelty perpetrated by the alien’s spouse. In addition, the alien must show that he or she is eligible to be classified as an immediate relative under section 201(b)(2)(A)(i) of the Act based on his or her relationship to the abusive spouse, resided with the abusive spouse, and is a person of good moral character. Section 204(a)(1)(A)(iii)(II) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1154(a)(1)(A)(iii)(II).

Section 204(a)(1)(J) of the Act states, in pertinent part:

In acting on petitions filed under clause (iii) or (iv) of subparagraph (A) . . . , or in making determinations under subparagraphs (C) and (D), the [Secretary of Homeland Security] shall consider any credible evidence relevant to the petition. The determination of what evidence is credible and the weight to be given that evidence shall be within the sole discretion of the [Secretary of Homeland Security].

The eligibility requirements are explained in the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.2(c)(1), which states, in pertinent part:

(ix) Good faith marriage. A spousal self-petition cannot be approved if the self-petitioner entered into the marriage to the abuser for the primary purpose of circumventing the immigration laws. A self-petition will not be denied, however, solely because the spouses are not living together and the marriage is no longer viable.

The evidentiary guidelines for a self-petition under section 204(a)(1)(A)(iii) of the Act are set forth in the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 204.2(c)(2), which states, in pertinent part:

Evidence for a spousal self-petition – responsibilities. The director found that the petitioner's assertion of a good faith marriage was insufficient to establish her intent when entering into the marriage.

On appeal, counsel provides an affidavit from J-M-'s aunt who declares that the couple met through a friend with whom they worked. She notes that she attended the marriage ceremony and that she has known the petitioner since she started dating J-M-. She indicates that the couple was happy when they started dating and for several months after they were married and that J-M- brought the petitioner to family functions. She adds that after J-M- was jailed the petitioner visited J-M- and took care of their house. Counsel asserts that great weight should be given to J-M-'s aunt's affidavit.

As observed above, the director discussed the deficiencies of the evidence previously submitted and we concur with his determination that the testimony and documentary evidence presented did not establish that the petitioner entered into the marriage in good faith. Upon review of the evidence submitted on appeal, the affiant speaks generally of attending the wedding and believing that the couple married for love and was happy together. The affiant, however, does not provide detailed, probative testimony of her observations of the couple or other evidence that assists in establishing the intent of the petitioner when entering into the marriage. The petitioner does not provide further testimony on appeal regarding her intent when entering into the marriage and her previous statement does not describe the couple's interactions during the courtship, their decision to marry, or the couple's shared experiences except as it relates to her claim of abuse. The petitioner's testimony in the record lacks probative detail that provides insight into her intentions when entering into the marriage. General statements by the petitioner and those who submit testimony on her behalf are insufficient to establish intent in this regard. Considered in the aggregate, the relevant evidence fails to demonstrate that the petitioner entered into marriage with her spouse in good faith, as required by section 204(a)(1)(A)(iii)(I)(aa) of the Act.

Conclusion

The petitioner has not established that she entered into the marriage in good faith. As always, the burden of proof in visa petition proceedings remains entirely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here that burden has not been met.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. The petition remains denied.
