DISCUSSION: The Application for Certificate of Citizenship (Form N-600) was denied by the Field Office Director, Hialeah, Florida (“the director”) and the applicant appealed the director’s decision to the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO). The AAO withdrew the director’s decision and remanded the matter for further action. The matter is again before the AAO upon certification of the director’s subsequent, adverse decision. The decision of the director will be affirmed and the application will remain denied.

The record reflects that the applicant is a citizen of Jordan born in Saudi Arabia on May 29, 1992 to married parents, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED]. Neither parent was a U.S. citizen at the time of the applicant’s birth. On November 24, 2001, after divorcing the applicant’s father, the applicant’s mother married [REDACTED] (the applicant’s step-father) in Jordan. On August 8, 2006, the applicant’s step-father became a naturalized U.S. citizen. On December 16, 2008, the applicant’s mother was admitted to the United States as a lawful permanent resident; however, she has not since naturalized. On the same day, the applicant was admitted to the United States as a lawful permanent resident based on a Petition for Alien Relative (Form I-130) filed on her behalf by the applicant’s step-father. The applicant contends that she derived U.S. citizenship through her step-father who adopted her and she seeks a Certificate of Citizenship pursuant to section 320 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1431.

The director determined that the applicant did not meet the requirements for issuance of a certificate of citizenship under section 320 of the Act because the applicant failed to provide evidence that she had been legally adopted by her step-father. The application was denied accordingly. See Director’s Decision, dated September 29, 2011. On appeal, the applicant contended that her step-father filed documents with the court for adoption proceedings under U.S. law. See Form I-290B.

The AAO found that the applicant did not meet the definition of a “child” set forth in subsections 101(b)(1)(E)(i) and (ii) of the Act, and could not derive citizenship through her step-father under section 320(a) of the Act, as provided for at section 320(b) of the Act as an adopted child; however the applicant had been issued a U.S. passport by the U.S. passport office on January 14, 2010. Accordingly, the AAO remanded the matter to the director to request that the Passport Office review and decide whether to revoke the applicant’s U.S. passport. See AAO’s Decision, dated January 30, 2012.

On March 27, 2012, the U.S. Department of State revoked the applicant’s passport. On certification, the director determined that the applicant did not meet the requirements for issuance of a certificate of citizenship under section 320 of the Act because the applicant failed to provide evidence that she had been legally adopted by her step-father prior to her reaching the age of eighteen or her sibling reaching the age of sixteen. See Field Office Director’s Notice of Certification, dated April 9, 2012. The applicant failed to respond to the director’s certification.¹

Section 320(a) of the Act applies to children born outside of the United States who are residing permanently in the United States, and provides that:

¹ The certification was returned to the director even though it was issued to the last known address.

(a) A child born outside of the United States automatically becomes a citizen of the United States when all of the following conditions have been fulfilled:

- (1) At least one parent of the child is a citizen of the United States, whether by birth or naturalization.
- (2) The child is under the age of eighteen years.
- (3) The child is residing in the United States in the legal and physical custody of the citizen parent pursuant to a lawful admission for permanent residence.

Additionally, section 320(a) of the Act “shall apply to a child adopted by a United States citizen parent if the child satisfies the requirements applicable to adopted children under section 101(b)(1).” Section 320(b) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1431(b).

Section 101(b)(1) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1101(b)(1), defines the term “child” in relevant part as:

- (E)(i) a child adopted while under the age of sixteen years if the child has been in the legal custody of, and has resided with, the adopting parent or parents for at least two years; or
- (ii) subject to the same proviso as in clause (i), a child who: (I) is a natural sibling of a child described in clause (i) . . . ; (II) was adopted by the adoptive parent or parents of the sibling described in such clause or subparagraph; and (III) is otherwise described in clause (i), except that the child was adopted while under the age of 18 years[.]

Here, the applicant does not meet the definition of a child at either section 101(b)(1)(E)(i) or 101(b)(1)(E)(ii) of the Act because she was over the age of eighteen at the time of adoption. The term adopted as used in section 320(b) of the Act refers to a full, final and complete adoption. 8 C.F.R. § 320.1.

While there are Jordanian documents in the record pertaining to the applicant’s biological father’s consent to adopt and relating to physical custody of the applicant, such documentation does not reflect that the applicant had been legally adopted by her step-father because adoption is not legal in Jordan. See Intercountry Adoption, U.S. Bureau of Consular Affairs, U.S. Department of State, Country Information-Jordan.

On November 30, 2011, the Family Division of the Eleventh Judicial Circuit Court of Miami-Dade County, Florida granted a joint petition for adoption in which the court terminated the applicant’s birth father’s parental rights and declared the applicant and her sibling to be the legal children of the applicant’s step-father. See Final Judgment of Stepparent Adoption, ordered November 30, 2011. The record reflects that the applicant was over the age of eighteen and the applicant’s sibling was over the age of sixteen at the time the adoption was completed.² Accordingly, the applicant does not meet the definition of a “child” set forth in subsections 101(b)(1)(E)(i) and (ii) of the Act, and she cannot derive citizenship through her step-father under section 320(a) of the Act, as provided for at section 320(b) of the Act as an adopted child.

The applicant must meet her burden of proof by establishing the claimed citizenship by a preponderance of the evidence. 8 C.F.R. § 320.3. Here, the applicant has not met this burden. Accordingly, the applicant is not eligible for a certificate of citizenship under section 320 of the Act.

ORDER: The field office director's decision is affirmed. The application remains denied.

² The applicant's sibling was born on March 26, 1994.
