Perry Rhew
Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The waiver application was denied by the District Director, Mexico City, Mexico. The matter is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Mexico who was found to be inadmissible to the United States under section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(9)(B)(i)(II), for having been unlawfully present in the United States for more than one year and seeking readmission within ten years of his last departure from the United States. The applicant is married to a naturalized United States citizen. He seeks a waiver of inadmissibility in order to reside in the United States with his spouse.

The District Director found that, based on the evidence in the record, the applicant had failed to establish extreme hardship to his qualifying relative. The application was denied accordingly. Decision of the District Director, dated January 17, 2007.

On appeal, the applicant's spouse asserts that the reason for the appeal is to work, start a better life and that she needs the applicant's support. Form I-290B, Notice of Appeal to the Administrative Appeals Office.

In support of these assertions, the record includes a bank statement; a telephone bill; collection statements; a car title; and a customer receipt for a Western Union money transfer. The entire record was reviewed and considered in rendering a decision on the appeal. The AAO notes that the record includes several documents in the Spanish language unaccompanied by certified translations. As such, the AAO will not review these documents. See 8 C.F.R. § 103.2(b)(3).

Section 212(a)(9)(B) of the Act provides, in pertinent part:

(B) Aliens Unlawfully Present.-

(i) In general. - Any alien (other than an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence) who-

(II) has been unlawfully present in the United States for one year or more, and who again seeks admission within 10 years of the date of such alien's departure or removal from the United States, is inadmissible.

(v) Waiver. - The Attorney General [now the Secretary of Homeland Security (Secretary)] has sole discretion to waive clause (i) in the case of an immigrant who is the spouse or son or daughter of a United States citizen or of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence, if it is established to the satisfaction of the Attorney General [Secretary] that the refusal of admission to such immigrant alien would result in extreme hardship to the citizen or lawfully resident spouse or parent of such alien.

In the present case, the record indicates that the applicant entered the United States without inspection in May 2000 and voluntarily departed in June 2005, returning to Mexico. Consular Memorandum, American Consulate General, Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, dated February 10, 2006. The applicant, therefore, accrued unlawful presence from May 2000 until he departed the United States in June 2005. In applying for an immigrant visa, the applicant is seeking admission within ten years of his June 2005 departure from the United States. The applicant is, therefore, inadmissible to the United States under section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act for being unlawfully present in the United States for a period of more than one year.

A section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) waiver of the bar to admission resulting from a violation of section 212(a)(9)(B)(i)(II) of the Act are dependent first upon a showing that the bar imposes an extreme hardship to the citizen or lawfully resident spouse or parent of the applicant. The plain language of the statute indicates that hardship that the applicant would experience as a result of his inadmissibility is not directly relevant to the determination as to whether he is eligible for a waiver. The only directly relevant hardship in the present case is hardship suffered by the applicant's spouse if the applicant is found to be inadmissible. Hardship to a non-qualifying relative will be considered to the extent that it affects the applicant's spouse. If extreme hardship is established, it is but one favorable factor to be considered in the determination of whether the Secretary should exercise discretion. See Matter of Mendez, 21 I&N Dec. 296 (BIA 1996).

Matter of Cervantes-Gonzalez, 22 I&N Dec. 560 (BIA 1999) provides a list of factors the Board of Immigration Appeals deems relevant in determining whether an alien has established extreme hardship pursuant to section 212(i) of the Act. These factors include the presence of a lawful permanent resident or United States citizen family ties to this country; the qualifying relative's family ties outside the United States; the conditions in the country or countries to which the qualifying relative would relocate and the extent of the qualifying relative's ties in such countries; the financial impact of departure from this country; and significant conditions of health, particularly when tied to an unavailability of suitable medical care in the country to which the qualifying relative would relocate.

The AAO notes that extreme hardship to the applicant's spouse must be established whether she resides in Mexico or the United States, as she is not required to reside outside the United States based on the denial of the applicant's waiver request. The AAO will consider the relevant factors in adjudication of this case.

If the applicant's spouse joins the applicant in Mexico, the applicant needs to establish that his spouse will suffer extreme hardship. The applicant's spouse was born Mexico. Form I-130, Petition for Alien Relative. The record does not address how the applicant's spouse would be affected if she resides in Mexico. The record fails to indicate whether the applicant's spouse has familial and cultural ties to Mexico. The record does not address employment opportunities for the applicant's spouse in Mexico, nor does the record document, through published country conditions reports, the economic situation in Mexico and the cost of living. The record makes no mention of whether the applicant's spouse suffers from any type of health condition, physical or mental, that would require treatment in Mexico and if so, whether she would be able to receive adequate care. When looking at the record before it, the AAO does not find that the applicant has demonstrated extreme hardship to his spouse if she were to reside in Mexico.

If the applicant's spouse resides in the United States, the applicant needs to establish that his spouse will suffer extreme hardship. As previously noted, the applicant's spouse was born in Mexico. Form I-130, Petition for Alien Relative. The applicant's spouse, on appeal, states that the reason for the appeal is "to work, start a better life, need his support, and etc." Neither she nor the applicant assert that she would experience extreme hardship if she remains in the United States. As the record does not address this aspect of the hardship claim, the AAO is unable to find that the applicant has demonstrated extreme hardship to his spouse if she were to remain in the United States.

In proceedings for application for waiver of grounds of inadmissibility under section 212(a)(9)(B) of the Act, the burden of proving eligibility remains entirely with the applicant. See section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1361. Here, the applicant has not met that burden. Accordingly, the appeal will be dismissed.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
