Robert P. Wiemann, Chief
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The termination of the applicant's temporary resident status by the Director, Vermont Service Center, is before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The director terminated the applicant's temporary resident status because the applicant failed to file the application for adjustment of status from temporary to permanent residence within the 43-month application period.

On appeal, the applicant states that he failed to file his application for adjustment of status from temporary to permanent resident (Form I-698) within the 43-month application period due to unfortunate events in his personal life.

The status of an alien lawfully admitted for temporary residence under section 245A(a)(1) of the Act may be terminated at any time if the alien fails to file for adjustment of status from temporary to permanent resident on Form I-698 within forty-three months of the date he/she was granted status as a temporary resident under § 245a.1 of this part. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(u)(1)(iv).

The applicant was granted temporary resident status on September 28, 1988. The 43-month eligibility period for filing for adjustment expired on April 27, 1991. The Application for Adjustment of Status from Temporary to Permanent Resident (Form I-698) was first received by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, now Citizenship and Immigration Services, on October 27, 1997. The director therefore denied the untimely I-698 application, and subsequently terminated the applicant's temporary resident status.

On appeal, the applicant explains that he failed to file his adjustment application during the 43-month application period because he was distracted by the fact that his daughter was seriously ill with spinal meningitis and his apartment caught on fire during the 43-month application period.

The applicant's statements on appeal have been considered. Nevertheless, the fact remains that the applicant failed to file his Form I-698 within the 43-month application period. There is no waiver available, even for humanitarian reasons, of the requirement to file a timely adjustment application. The burden to file the adjustment application in a timely manner remains with the applicant. See 8 C.F.R. § 245a.3(d). As the applicant has not overcome the basis for the termination of his temporary resident status, the appeal must be dismissed.

The applicant is ineligible for temporary residence for the above stated reasons, with each considered as an independent and alternative basis for denial.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
