Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The application for temporary resident status pursuant to the terms of the settlement agreements reached in Catholic Social Services, Inc., et al., v. Ridge, et al., CIV. NO. S-86-1343-LKK (E.D. Cal) January 23, 2004, and Felicity Mary Newman, et al., v. United States Immigration and Citizenship Services, et al., CIV. NO. 87-4757-WDK (C.D. Cal) February 17, 2004 (CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements), was denied by the Director, Los Angeles. The decision is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant submitted a Form I-687, Application for Status as a Temporary Resident under Section 245A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (Act), and a Form I-687 Supplement, CSS/Newman Class Membership Worksheet. The director denied the application, finding that the applicant disrupted any period of required continuous residence and physical presence in the United States during the statutory period of November 6, 1986 to May 4, 1988.

On appeal, counsel states that the applicant is eligible for temporary residence under section 245A of the Act and that he was not outside the United States for over 180 days. Counsel also states that the applicant was not in Mexico from May, 1986, to May, 1988.

On the Form I-694, counsel indicated that a written brief would be submitted within 30 days. To date, no further evidence or brief has been received. Accordingly, a decision will be rendered based on the evidence of record.

The United States Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) adjudication officer's notes reveal that the applicant first entered the United States in May, 1981. The applicant claimed during his Form I-687 interview that he went to visit family four times as shown on his Form I-687 at part 32. His Form I-687 shows that he departed the United States to visit family in Mexico from December, 1982, to February, 1983; December, 1984 to March, 1985; and May, 1986 to May, 1988. Accordingly, the applicant disrupted his period of required continuous residence and physical presence in the United States during the requisite period.

An applicant shall be regarded as having resided continuously in the United States if, at the time of filing the application for temporary resident status, no single absence from the United States has exceeded 45 days, and the aggregate of all absences has not exceeded 180 days between January 1, 1982, through the date the application is filed, unless the alien can establish that due to emergent reasons the return to the United States could not be accomplished within the time period allowed, the alien was maintaining residence in the United States, and the departure was not based on an order of deportation. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.1(c)(1)(i).

Absent an explanation or other evidence, the applicant has not established that he did not remain outside the United States for over 180 days. No explanation and evidence was provided with the Form I-687 application and during the interview to show that the applicant's absence from the United States was due to emergent reasons. Therefore, by his own admission, the applicant has disrupted any period of continuous residence in the United States during the statutory period of January 1, 1982 to May 4, 1988 and has not shown emergent reasons for the length of the absence.

A legalization applicant must show continuous physical presence in the United States from November 6, 1986 through May 4, 1988. See Section 245A(a)(3)(A) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3)(A). An absence during this period which is found to be brief, casual and innocent shall not break a legalization applicant's continuous physical presence. Section 245A(a)(3)(B) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3)(B). See e.g. Espinoza-Gutierrez v. Smith, INS, et al., 94 F.3d 1270 (9th Cir. 1996). The Espinoza-Gutierrez court held that a legalization applicant's absence would not represent a break in continuous physical presence if it was found that the absence was brief, casual and innocent as defined by the court in Rosenburg v. Fleuti, 374 U.S. 449 (1963) See also Assa 'ad v. U.S. Attorney General, INS, 332 F.3d 1321 (11th Cir. 2003)(which affirmed the portion of the holding in Espinoza-Gutierrez relied upon here, but disagreed with a different aspect of that holding.) The AAO finds that the applicant's absence from the United States in this case was not brief, casual and innocent in that the record indicates: that he was absent from the United States for over 45 days.¹ See Rosenberg, supra (where the court looked to (1) the duration of the alien's absence; (2) the purpose of the absence; and (3) the need for special documentation to make the trip abroad to determine whether the absence was a brief, innocent and casual or meaningfully disruptive of the alien's residence in the United States.)

The AAO also finds that the applicant had not provided credible evidence to establish that he had entered the United States prior to January 1, 1982, and thereafter continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the duration of the requisite period.

An applicant for temporary resident status must establish entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the date the application is filed. Section 245A(a)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(2). The applicant must also establish that he or she has been continuously physically present in the United States since November 6, 1986. Section 245(a)(3) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. § 1255a(a)(3). The regulations clarify that the applicant must have been physically present in the United States from November 6, 1986 until the date of filing the application. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1).

For purposes of establishing residence and physical presence under the CSS/Newman Settlement Agreements, the term "until the date of filing" in 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(b)(1) means until the date the applicant attempted to file a completed Form I-687 application and fee or was caused not to timely file during the original legalization application period of May 5, 1987 to May 4, 1988. CSS Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 6; Newman Settlement Agreement paragraph 11 at page 10. The applicant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has resided in the United States for the requisite period, is admissible to the United States under the provisions of section 245A of the Act, and is otherwise eligible for adjustment of status. The inference to be drawn from the documentation provided shall depend on the extent of the documentation, its credibility and amenability to verification. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5). To meet his or her burden of proof, an applicant must provide evidence of eligibility apart from his or her own testimony, and the sufficiency of all evidence produced by the applicant will be judged according to its probative value and credibility. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(6).

Although the regulation at 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3) provides an illustrative list of contemporaneous documents that an applicant may submit in support of his or her claim of continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since prior to January 1, 1982, the submission of any other relevant document is permitted pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(3)(vi)(L).

The “preponderance of the evidence” standard requires that the evidence demonstrate that the applicant’s claim is “probably true,” where the determination of “truth” is made based on the factual circumstances of each individual case. Matter of E-M-, 20 I&N Dec. 77, 79-80 (Comm. 1989). In evaluating the evidence, Matter of E-M- also stated that “[t]ruth is to be determined not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality.” Id. at 80. Thus, in adjudicating the application pursuant to the preponderance of the evidence standard, the director must examine each piece of evidence for relevance, probative value, and credibility, both individually and within the context of the totality of the evidence, to determine whether the fact to be proven is probably true.

Even if the director has some doubt as to the truth, if the petitioner submits relevant, probative, and credible evidence that leads the director to believe that the claim is “probably true” or “more likely than not,” the applicant or petitioner has satisfied the standard of proof. See U.S. v. Cardozo-Fonseca, 480 U.S. 421, 431 (1987) (defining “more likely than not” as a greater than 50 percent probability of something occurring). If the director can articulate a material doubt, it is appropriate for the director to either request additional evidence or, if that doubt leads the director to believe that the claim is probably not true, deny the application or petition.

At issue in this proceeding is whether the applicant submitted sufficient credible evidence to meet his burden of establishing that he (1) entered the United States before January 1, 1982, and (2) has continuously resided in the United States in an unlawful status for the requisite period of time. The documentation that the applicant submits in support of his claim to have arrived in the United States before January 1, 1982 and lived in an unlawful status during the requisite period consists of affidavits of relationship written by family members and other evidence. The AAO will consider all of the evidence relevant to the requisite period to determine the applicant’s eligibility; however, the AAO will not quote each witness statement in this decision.

The applicant submitted affidavits from his brothers, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] to establish his initial entry and residence in the United States during the requisite period.

The affidavits from his brothers state that they have known the applicant since birth and that the applicant came to live with them in Culver City, California, when he first entered the United States. They do not state when the applicant entered the United States and when they resided together in the United States. They provide no other information about the applicant.

[REDACTED] states that he met the applicant in 1983 at his home where the applicant would help his father mow the lawn. The affiant states that he does not know how the applicant entered the United States and does not state whether the applicant entered the United States before 1982. [REDACTED] provides no other information about the applicant.

The affidavits submitted do not contain sufficiently detailed descriptions to establish the reliability of their assertions. As stated previously, the evidence must be evaluated not by the quantity of evidence alone but by its quality. The absence of sufficiently detailed affidavits to corroborate the applicant's claim of continuous residence for the entire requisite period seriously detracts from the credibility of his claim. For instance, none of the witnesses supplies any details about the applicant's life, such as, knowledge about his education, employment, hobbies, shared activities and the manner he entered the United States.

The affiants do not provide concrete information, specific to the applicant and generated by the asserted associations with him, which would reflect and corroborate the extent of those associations and demonstrate that they were a sufficient basis for reliable knowledge about the applicant's residence during the time addressed in the affidavits. To be considered probative and credible, witness affidavits must do more than simply state that an affiant knows an applicant and that the applicant has lived in the United States for a specific time period. Their content must include sufficient detail from a claimed relationship to indicate that the relationship probably did exist and that the witness does, by virtue of that relationship, have knowledge of the facts alleged. Therefore, the affidavits have little probative value.

The remaining evidence consists of copies of five stamped envelopes. However, the probative value of the envelopes is limited because the postmarks are not legible.

An applicant applying for adjustment of status under this part has the burden of proving by a preponderance of evidence that he or she is eligible for adjustment of status under section 245a of the Act. 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5). The insufficiency of the evidence calls into question the credibility of the applicant's claim to have entered the United States illegally before January 1, 1982 and his continuous unlawful residence in the United States throughout the requisite period. The evidence submitted is insufficient to establish the applicant's entry into the United States before January 1, 1982, and continuous residence in the United States in an unlawful status since such date and through the requisite period.

Therefore, based upon the foregoing, the applicant has failed to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that he entered the United States before January 1, 1982 and continuously resided in an unlawful status in the United States for the requisite period as required under both 8 C.F.R. § 245a.2(d)(5) and Matter of E- M--, supra. Further, the applicant disrupted his period of required continuous residence and physical presence in the United States during the statutory period of November 6, 1986 to May 4, 1988. The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for temporary resident status under section 245A of the Act

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed. This decision constitutes a final notice of ineligibility.
