Chief, Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The applicant's Temporary Protected Status was withdrawn by the Director, Vermont Service Center, and is now before the Administrative Appeals Office (AAO) on appeal. The appeal will be dismissed.

The applicant is a citizen of Honduras who is seeking Temporary Protected Status (TPS) under section 244 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. § 1254.

The record reveals that the applicant filed a TPS application during the initial registration period on August 12, 1999. The Director, Nebraska Service Center, approved that application on June 21, 2000.

The director may withdraw the status of an alien granted TPS under section 244 of the Act at any time if it is determined that the alien was not in fact eligible at the time such status was granted, or at any time thereafter becomes ineligible for such status. 8.C.F.R. § 244.14(a)(1).

The director withdrew the applicant's TPS because the applicant had been convicted of a felony.

On appeal, counsel for the applicant states that the criminal action should not be considered a conviction for immigration purposes. Counsel provides copies of court documents relating to the applicant's plea agreement and discharge from probation.

An alien shall not be eligible for TPS under this section if the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security finds that the alien has been convicted of any felony or two or more misdemeanors committed in the United States. See Section 244(c)(2)(B)(i) of the Act and 8 C.F.R. § 244.4(a).

"Felony" means a crime committed in the United States punishable by imprisonment for a term of more than one year, regardless of the term actually served, if any. There is an exception when the offense is defined by the state as a misdemeanor and the sentence actually imposed is one year or less, regardless of the term actually served. Under this exception, for purposes of 8 C.F.R. § 244 of the Act, the crime shall be treated as a misdemeanor. 8 C.F.R. § 244.1.

The record reveals that on September 12, 2006, the applicant was arrested by the Worthington, Minnesota Police Department for wrongfully obtaining assistance-theft, a violation of MS section 256.98, a felony.

Pursuant to a notice dated April 8, 2009, the applicant was requested to submit the final court disposition of the charge detailed above. The applicant submitted court documents from the Fifth Judicial Court in Nobles County, which indicated that the applicant had been placed on probation for the above offense under a stay of adjudication for a period of three years. The court record indicates that on October 28, 2008, the applicant was discharged from probation without an adjudication of guilt and the case was dismissed.

The director withdrew the applicant's TPS because the applicant had been convicted of a felony in the United States.

On appeal, counsel claims that that the criminal action should not be considered a conviction for immigration purpose as the applicant was sentenced to zero days in jail. Counsel asserts that consequently, it appears that the intent was to classify the offense as a misdemeanor instead of a felony. The assertion of counsel, however, does not constitute evidence. Matter of Laureano, 19 I&N Dec. 1, 3 (BIA 1983); Matter of Obaigbena, 19 I&N Dec. 533, 534 (BIA 1988); Matter of Ramirez-Sanchez, 17 I&N Dec. 503, 506 (BIA 1980).

The term 'conviction' means, with respect to an alien, a formal judgment of guilt of the alien entered by a court or, adjudication of guilt has been withheld, where - (i) a judge or jury has found the alien guilty or the alien has entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendere or has admitted sufficient facts to warrant a finding of guilt, and (ii) the judge has ordered some form of punishment, penalty, or restraint on the alien's liberty to be imposed. Section 101(a)(48)(A) of the Act.

Section 322(c) of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (IIRAIRA), specifically states that the amendment of the definition of conviction "shall apply to convictions and sentences entered before, on, or after the date of enactment of this Act. As the Supreme Court stated in Landgraf v. USI Film Prods., 511 U.S. 244, 114 S. Ct. 1483 (1994), the principle of applying the law in effect at the time of the decision does not conflict with the "presumption against retroactivity when the statute in question is unambiguous." Concerning the definition of conviction, the unambiguous language of section 322(c) leaves no doubt that Congress intended for the amendment in section 322(a) to be applied retroactively. Moose v. INS, 171 F.3d 994, 1007 (5th Cir. 1999).

The court disposition submitted reflects that the applicant pled guilty to the felony offense and the judge ordered some form of punishment to the charge above. Therefore, the applicant has been "convicted" of this offense for immigration purposes.

The applicant is, therefore, ineligible for TPS because of her felony conviction. 8 C.F.R. § 244.4(a). Accordingly, the director's decision to withdraw TPS is affirmed.

An alien applying for TPS has the burden of proving that he or she meets the requirements enumerated above and is otherwise eligible under the provisions of section 244 of the Act. The applicant has failed to meet this burden.

ORDER: The appeal is dismissed.
