Dear Mrs. Wormley,

Mrs. Cheng is scheduled for her naturalization interview on July 26th at 8:00 a.m. It might be useful to you to know something about her in advance.

I am enclosing copies of the front page and index of a 1987 issue of TIME magazine, the cover and cover flap of her book, a recent statement about her entered into the Congressional Record. Her book is now available in paperback everywhere.

Thank you for your attention to these enclosures.

Yours truly,

Dear Mrs. Cheng:

I want you to know that it was such an honor to meet you the other evening and I was so taken by the force of your book, personality, and inner strength, that I was compelled to write my feelings down on paper and enter them into the "official" records of this nation.

Enclosed, you will find a copy of what was published in the "Congressional Record," for June 16, 1988. I wanted you to have this, without delay, and very shortly, I will send you a more permanent "Record," which you can display.

Your story is a story of human trial that shows us that man's spirit is stronger and nobler than any ideology and that it will prevail above all else. May God bless you with His abundant grace and protect you from all future harm.

Most Respectfully,

BEN BLAZ
Member of Congress

I certify that I have compared

SALUTE TO A COURAGEOUS LADY

HON. BEN BLAZ

OF GUAM

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 16, 1988

Mr. BLAZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise to tell you and my Colleagues about an extraordinary experience. Last evening I had one of those "once-in-a-lifetime" opportunities to meet and talk to a great woman of boundless courage, integrity, bravery, and beauty of inner spirit, so self evident and over-powering as to be seldom seen in any individual, at any time.

Nien Cheng was held in solitary confinement in a Shanghai jail for six-and-a-half years. During this time she was tortured, starved, beaten, and deprived of news of her family, all the while living in a bare cell under the most exhausting conditions imaginable. Throughout her long ordeal, she was repeatedly and harshly interrogated and pushed to denounce her friends and confess "anti-revolutionary crimes," neither of which could she nor did she do, as in truth, no crimes had been committed.

How can such a person survive? Some say it was because of her education, intellect, and strong understanding of Chinese life and culture. "Not true," replies Nien Cheng, "it was only because I prayed constantly for God to give me the strength to face the next day without betraying myself, my friends, and the truth. I did not pray that God would unlock the door...only that I could withstand the torture and adversity in the name of the truth." She maintained that intellect and knowledge were simply not enough to guarantee survival, only a belief in God gave her the inner strength to face one more day...times 2000!

When her tormentors finally relented and sought to release her, this indomitable spirit sat down in her cell and refused to leave until she had received a written apology for the wrongs committed upon her. This woman, who was forcefully put into jail had to be forcefully removed by her same embarrassed keepers. Never did she waiver, never did she betray the truth, and never did she give in to her plight. From whence does such strength come?

She paid an enormous price for her convictions and through her example has shown us all that life is our most precious gift and it must not only be lived to its fullest, but must be lived with dignity, truth, and compassion. I commend to you and all the Members a recent article from the April 1988 issue of RICE magazine, entitled "Bittersweet - Life After Shanghai," by Mei-Mei Chan, which I am entering into the Record. This article will only whet your appetite to learn more about this astounding woman...truly one of the most unforgettable people I have ever met.

Mr. Speaker, as you know, I spent over 30 years in the United States Marine Corps; saw action in World War II, Korea, and Vietnam...I have searched my soul and wish that I could be comforted by the fact that had I been in her place, I would have had half the courage of Nien Cheng.

September 8th, 1986.

Officer in Charge,
U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service,
Washington D.C.

Dear Sir,

I am writing to apply for an extension of my "Permit to Reenter the United States" which will expire on October 14th, 1986.

Since my immigration to the U.S. and after taking up residence in beautiful and free Washington D.C., I have written a book about the political persecution I suffered in Communist China. This book "Life and Death in Shanghai" was published in England on July 24th of this year and will be published by Grove Press of New York next March. The Washington Post has published an article on my book on July 15th. I have pleasure to enclose a copy of this article.

The English edition of my book is going to be on sale in Canada in November. I have been asked by the publisher's Canadian office to go over for four days to promote the book beginning on November 2nd. (Enclosed is a copy of this letter.) In order to travel to Canada and come back afterwards, I shall need this "Permit to Reenter the United States." I would be most grateful to you, if you could give me special consideration and let me have the extension before the end of October.

I remain, Sir,

Yours faithfully,

Nien Yuan Yao Cheng

Dear Ms. Cheng:

Just a note to confirm our telephone conversation of August 27 about your tour of Toronto and Ottawa.

First, I want to thank you for offering to cover the costs of your airline tickets for the tour. When you arrive in Toronto on November 2, I will pick you up at the airport and take you to your hotel (which Collins will cover). I will be setting up media appointments over a two-day period (November 3 and 4). I am very certain that our Canadian media will find your story both important and fascinating.

On the evening of November 4 you will fly to Ottawa, where our publicist, Joan Smith, will meet you at the airport and take you to your hotel (again, Collins will cover this). She will escort you to your various media appointments over the next two days (November 5 and 6). You will probably have the afternoon of November 6 free to see your friends.

If you have any questions about the tour, please don't hesitate to contact me collect. (416-445-8224) Also, since I spoke to you this week we have increased our order for LIFE AND DEATH IN SHANGHAI to make sure we're ready for the consumer response to your appearances in the media.

I look forward to working with you on, what is sure to be, a successful project.

Cordially,

Please be advised that approval of the petition confers upon the beneficiary an appropriate classification. The approval constitutes no assurance that the beneficiary will be found eligible for visa issuance, admission to the United States or adjustment to lawful permanent resident status. Eligibility for visa issuance is determined only when application therefor is made to a consular officer; eligibility for admission or adjustment is determined only when application therefor is made to an immigration officer. Also, please note the items below which are indicated by "X" marks concerning this petition:

1. YOUR PETITION TO CLASSIFY THE BENEFICIARY AS AN IMMEDIATE RELATIVE OF A UNITED STATES CITIZEN HAS BEEN FORWARDED TO THE UNITED STATES CONSULATE AT _____ THIS COMPLETES ALL ACTION BY THIS SERVICE ON THE PETITION. THE UNITED STATES CONSULATE, WHICH IS UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WILL ADVISE THE BENEFICIARY CONCERNING VISA ISSUANCE. Inquiry concerning visa issuance should be addressed to the Consul. This Service will be unable to answer any inquiry concerning visa issuance.
2. IF YOU BECOME NATURALIZED AS A CITIZEN OF THE UNITED STATES AND AN IMMIGRANT VISA HAS NOT YET BEEN ISSUED TO THE BENEFICIARY, NOTIFY THIS OFFICE IMMEDIATELY, GIVING THE DATE OF YOUR NATURALIZATION. LIFE & DEATH
IN SHANGHAI

$19.95

In August 1966, at the beginning of the upheaval known as the Cultural Revolution, a group of fanatical young Red Guards invaded and ransacked the comfortable, elegant Shanghai home of the fifty-one-year-old widow of a former Kuomintang diplomat. A few weeks later, Nien Cheng was arrested and taken to the No. 1 Detention House, where she would remain imprisoned, in solitary confinement, for nearly seven years. Life and Death in Shanghai is her own powerful and inspiring account of those harrowing years and their aftermath.

Nien Cheng and her husband—they had met as students in London in the thirties—chose to remain in China when the Communists took over in 1949. With the approval of the new government, Mr. Cheng became general manager of an international oil company's Shanghai office; after his death in 1957, Nien Cheng in turn went to work there. They had a daughter, Meiping, twenty-four and an actress at the Shanghai Film Studio when the Cultural Revolution began.

Nien Cheng was an all too obvious target for the paranoid, xenophobic, and culture-hating Cultural Revolution. Her lonely, deprived years in prison were punctuated by relentless interrogations designed to extract the false confession that she had been a "spy of the imperialists." To the sometimes devious, sometimes brutal tactics of her inquisitors, Nien Cheng opposed her indomitable will and uncommon qualities of mind and character. Under great psychological and physical duress—her wrists were at one period painfully and damagingly manacled, and she suffered from a number of inadequately treated ailments—she withstood her persecutors by adamantly insisting on her innocence.

Unable to break her, the authorities finally released Nien Cheng in 1973. During her

Memoirs of China

CHENG, From C1

She lived well in Shanghai. She was allowed to retain a big house and servants; she had jewelry, furs, a much-prized collection of porcelain and an occasional food hamper from Harrods. And she was an irresistible target for Chairman Mao's youthful Red Guards bent on destroying "class enemies."

The Red Guards, backed by Mao Tse-tung, had a mission to destroy the "Four Olds"—old culture, old customs, old habits and old ways of thinking. Cheng became increasingly apprehensive as they paraded through the streets, wearing red armbands, beating drums and gongs and carrying portraits of Mao.

"Sitting in the evening with the window open, I heard a truck pull up," she says. "I wondered which house was to be the target. My bell began to ring and there was a pounding of fists on the front gate." She let them in. Her house was torn apart, her clothes cut up, some of her porcelain smashed and many valuables stolen. "They burned books, including my English versions of the collected works of Marx and Engels and Lenin. They did not know what they were."

She was put under house arrest and a month later was taken to the Number One Detention Center in Shanghai, the main prison for political prisoners—"never in my life had I been in or even imagined a place that was so primitive and filthy." Throughout her time in prison, she was often interrogated, urged to confess that she was a British spy. But she refused.

She fought her interrogators with Maoism. "I found Mao's 'Essay on Guerrilla Warfare' was very useful. He always talks about how a small band of guerrillas, if they seize the initiative, can defeat an enemy bigger than itself. So I took his advice." She learned thoroughly the Little Red Book and used the quotations in argument with her interrogators.

Her beliefs are mainly Confucian but she is also a Christian. "I think all Chinese are Confucian," she says. "Some are Christian, some are Buddhist, but all are Confucian."

And she says, "I became a Christian when I married my husband. His mother was very devout. To please her, I became a Christian without knowing what I was getting into. Later I read about it and became interested. It was important when I was in prison. I sometimes recited the 23rd Psalm and it helped me calm down. 'Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I shall fear no evil. It was so fitting.'"

Her health worsened. Her gums deteriorated because of poor food and she eventually lost her teeth. Her cell was so cold that she caught pneumonia. She had hemorrhages. She was beaten. And for two weeks, handcuffs were put on her so tightly she thought she would lose her hands. She also underwent many "struggle sessions," psychological pressure applied by putting a victim in front of an audience. Sometimes the accusations and denunciations become so intense that the outcome is fatal. But Cheng says she defused the tension by laughing at her accusers.

The worst period, she says, came toward the end of her stay in prison when she asked for new clothes. She was surprised to be given a set left by the Red Guards for her daughter, Meiping, when the house was ransacked. Cheng was also given her daughter's bedding and cutlery. She began to fear that her daughter was dead.

"I had that feeling, as I touched the clothes. I was not sure. I wished I were wrong. You see the mug she drank from had tea stains. And the square face towel she liked, a dark rose color. When the Red Guards came to loot our home, she was using that towel. How could it be that the towel was just the same? It meant that she had not used it. The Red Guards had left her only the bare essentials and there was no reason for her to put it aside and buy another towel. And the clothes did not look worn. So even apart from the intuitive feeling, I had this evidence to suggest that she had died. But I was not sure and still clung to the hope that I was wrong."

When she was released, she saw a young woman waiting for her beside a taxi, outside the prison gates. But it was her goddaughter. She was told by the authorities that her daughter, then 24, had committed suicide by jumping from a ninth-story window. But Cheng carried out her own investigation and discovered that Meiping had been killed by the Red Guards.

"They wanted her to say she knew I was a spy. And they would have confronted me with that to persuade me to make a false confession. This is what they hoped and, of course, she refused. They beat her up but did not intend to kill her. They beat her too hard and then threw her out of a window." A man was convicted of the murder after Cheng left China but was given a suspended death sentence. Cheng says he is now free.

Does she feel her stubbornness contributed to her daughter's death? "I assumed she was still alive. If I had confessed and they sentenced me, then I would have become a counter-revolutionary, my daughter would have been a member of a counterrevolutionary's family and her children forever and ever. I could not do that."

In the more liberal era following Mao's death in 1976, Cheng was "rehabilitated" and declared a victim of wrongful arrest. She went to one of the most peculiar government offices anywhere: the Bureau for Sorting Looted Goods. There she recovered some of her porcelain, but nothing else. Her bank account was unfrozen, and, knowing she was wealthy, relatives who had ignored her during the Cultural Revolution began to call.

Cheng applied to leave as soon as she could. She has two sisters in California and Hawaii and was given a passport to visit them. She went to Ottawa in 1980 and to Washington two years later. She hopes to become a U.S. citizen in 1988, and has been taking courses in American history and literature at American University.

"When I lived in China after being 'rehabilitated,' I used to walk in the streets and it would remind me of my daughter. It was so painful. Here I see European faces and girls with blond hair and I am not reminded of her all the time." She adds: "Writing the book, I would often have terrible dreams and wake up not knowing where I was. But I no longer suffer from that. Since the book was finished last summer, it has been like another liberation. I no longer have wild dreams."

She keeps fit by doing tai chi, Chinese shadowboxing, early each morning in the garden outside her apartment. She dresses smartly in silk dresses made by a tailor in Shanghai. The only outwards sign of her ordeal are the scars on her wrists, the results of those two weeks in handcuffs. She seems cheerful, but when talking about her experiences she becomes detached, as if discussing a third person.

She says she will send a copy of her book to the son of Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping. Deng's son was also a victim of the Cultural Revolution, she says. According to some press accounts, he was paralyzed after being thrown out of a window by the Red Guard.

She is not optimistic about China's future. "The problem is overwhelming. Deng Xiaoping realized the country could not go on in the old way and gave some concessions, a little economic freedom. But he is not ready to go a step further and trust the people politically."

There is much cynicism about the Communist Party in China today, she says, which she believes is a result of Mao's elimination of old comrades, such as President Liu Shao-qi, during the Cultural Revolution. The accusations and counteraccusations, she says, not only strained credibility but revealed much about the luxurious way in which many leaders lived.

"The Chinese have a saying, 'Don't hit the mouse because he is standing on a valuable utensil.' They hit at Liu Shao-qi but did not realize that by smashing him, they were also smashing the Communist Party. One after another was denounced and the whole of the Communist Party was exposed."

She says, "The Kuomintang is also very bad but at least they do not kill people who support them. They kill people who oppose them. But the Communists even kill people who support them. This is something senseless."

A Second Reagan-Morris Literary Offering?

By Donnie Radcliffe
Washington Post Staff Writer

Is the Morris family going to keep the Reagan family all in the family? With Edmund Morris already signed on to do President Reagan's official

C. Miller III, Interior Department Undersecretary Ann D. McLaughlin, Office of Personnel Management Director Connie Horner and political consultant Lyn Nofziger.

When one recruit, Lynne Cheney, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, told her husband, Rep. Richard Cheney (R-Wyo.), that someone from Capitol Hill was going to tell the group how to get along with Congress, he said he already knew. He's that someone.

Chairman Cheney later told a friend: "We've both been so busy lately, it'll be perfectly pleasant to spend a half hour listening to Dick."

Stargazers at the Reagans' White House dinner for Pakistani Prime Minister Mohammad Khan Junejo tomorrow night will see: Bruce Boxleitner (of "Scarecrow and Mrs. King"), Jane Seymour, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Alan Ladd Jr., George Peppard, Olympic swimming gold medalist Mary Meagher, violinist Eugene Fodor and screen writer Horton Foote, whose credits include "To Kill a Mockingbird," "Tender Mercies" and "The Trip to Bountiful."

If Foote runs out of things to say about Pakistan, he can always talk to the Reagans about China. The two-time Academy Award winner has just completed the screenplay for "Spring Moon," the bestselling novel by Bette Bao Lord, whose husband is U.S. Ambassador to China Winston Lord. Filmmaker Alan Pakula plans to shoot the story in China.

become a home away from home for the Wrights. The ambassador has accepted a visiting professorship at the University of South Carolina.

And from the now-it-can-be told department, Lady Wright finally admitted to one guest that she started the ball rolling in the university's upcoming $2.8 million, five-year cultural and education program at the Shakespeare Theatre at the Folger.

Now that she's established herself as an actress, at least in these parts, Lady Wright indicated at a luncheon given for her by Gray and Co.'s Mary Petrus last week that she just may try her hand at writing.

After a four-year succession of royal visitors, topped by Queen Elizabeth II, Lady Wright probably knows more about how the other half lives than anybody else in town. She's the first to admit that she certainly knows "how to raise the flag on a shoestring."

Which, come to think of it, isn't such a bad title for a book.

The Jefferson Hotel held a ribbon-cutting the other night for what's unofficially known as "The William French Smith Suite," even though "home" apparently was never like that when the former attorney general and his wife Jean lived there for four years.

At a nightcap suite-warming tossed by the Jefferson's indefatigable Rose Narva, the Smiths saw a completely revamped layout and the luxurious trappings that $650 a day buys ($400 if you only need one bedroom.)

Looking it over with the Smiths were Ed and Ursula Meese, FBI Director William Webster, Susan Baker, Midge Baldrige, former agriculture secretary John Block and his wife Sue, Italian Ambassador Rinaldo Ossola and his wife Anne Merete, and Canadian Ambassador Allan Gottlieb and his wife Sandra.

Coffey To Join L.A. Times

By Eleanor Randolph
Washington Post Staff Writer

Shelby Coffey III, who became editor of the Dallas Times Herald in January after resigning as editor of U.S. News & World Report, has agreed to become deputy associate editor for most of the feature sections of the Los Angeles Times, according to Times Editor William F. Thomas.

According to sources at the Times, Coffey's move would put him in the "sweepstakes," as it is sometimes called in Los Angeles, with other key editors considered possible successors to Thomas. Thomas has said that he plans to retire in 1989 at age 65.

Coffey, 39, who worked for The Washington Post for 17 years, has become something of an editorial nomad in the past 16 months—buffeted by reported disagreements with U.S. News owner Mortimer B. Zuckerman, who named himself editor in chief shortly after Coffey arrived in March 1985, and by economic problems in Dallas where the Times Herald is No. 2 in a bitter race with The Dallas Morning News.

Just as Coffey seemed to be "taking hold" in Dallas, as one Times Herald reporter put it, the Times Mirror Corp., which owns both the Times Herald and the Los Angeles Times, announced plans to sell its Dallas paper to newspaper entrepreneur William Dean Singleton.

Singleton, who said he wanted to make Dallas the flagship of his small media chain, said at the time that he'd asked Coffey to stay on as editor. Coffey said then that he wanted to talk with his family about whether to remain with Singleton, investigate other jobs within the Times Mirror Corp. or look into offers with other media companies.

A key source at the Times in Los Angeles said the new position, which is very much like the job Coffey held at The Washington Post for many years, is "virtually equivalent" to the title of deputy managing editor. At that level are two of the other chief contenders for Thomas' job, according to a number of sources at the paper. They are Dennis Britton, deputy managing editor in charge of foreign, national and financial news, and Noel Greenwood, who runs the paper's large metropolitan staff.

Other names sometimes listed as contenders for the job of Los Angeles Times editor are Managing Editor George Cotliar and Foreign Editor Alvin Lustig.

Nien Cheng And the Flames Of Revolution

The Survivor of Prison and a Daughter's
Death Writes a Memoir of Life in China

By Ewen MacAskill
Washington Post Staff Writer

A Chinese restaurant in Bethesda, on the outskirts of Washington. Seated among the painted screens, vases and dragons is Nien Cheng, a regular customer. The chatter at the next table is of cheerful, trivial things but Cheng's conversation is of Red Guards, suffering and brutality.

Cheng, a 71-year-old widow, was a victim of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution, the Chinese Communist Party's power struggle that led to a decade of turmoil and violence. In 1966, she was accused of being a British spy, arrested and, for 6½ years, put in solitary confinement. Worse was to come: On her release, she discovered that her only daughter, an actress, had been beaten to death.

Now living in Washington, she has written a 492-page book about her experiences, "Life and Death in Shanghai," which is being published in Britain next week and in the United States in March. Critics are calling it the most powerful account yet of the Cultural Revolution.

"The book is for my daughter," Cheng says, "and not only for her but for all the people I know—and don't know—who died."

Cheng was born in Peking, her father a vice minister in the navy. She went to Britain in 1935 to study at the London School of Economics, where she met her husband, who was studying international relations and law.

When the couple returned to China three years later, much of it had fallen to the Japanese. Her husband joined the ministry of foreign affairs and they were sent to Australia, where they spent seven years helping to establish an embassy. On their return, her husband worked for the ministry in Shanghai, the job he held when the Communists came to power in 1949.

They could have left but they were hopeful that the Communist regime could deal with some of the social injustices. "My husband could have gone anywhere in 1949," she says. "He had a Ph.D. He could have gone to America. He did not do it because we loved our country and wanted to share the fate of China."

With the government's approval, her husband became general manager of Shell in Shanghai. When he died of cancer in 1957, she joined the oil company as an adviser and remained there until the office closed shortly before the Cultural Revolution.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

EFFECT OF ABSENCE FROM UNITED STATES UPON NATURALIZATION ELIGIBILITY: A permit to reenter does not relieve the person to whom issued from meeting the requirements of the naturalization laws. Notwithstanding the possession of a reentry permit, absence from the United States by an applicant for naturalization for a continuous period of one year or more during the period for which continuous residence in the United States is required for admission to citizenship will break the continuity of such residence, except where, prior thereto, the Attorney General has approved an absence in the employment of, or under contract with, the United States Government or an American institution of research recognized as such by the Attorney General, or in the employment of an American firm or corporation engaged in whole or part in the development of foreign trade and commerce of the United States or a subsidiary thereof, more than 50 percent of whose stock is owned by an American firm or corporation, or in the employment of a public international organization of which the United States is a member by treaty or statute and by which the alien was not employed until after being lawfully admitted for permanent residence. In order to qualify for such approval the applicant must have been physically present and residing in the United States, after being lawfully admitted for permanent residence, for an uninterrupted period of at least one year. The granting of such approval does not exempt the applicant from the requirement that he be physically present in the United States for at least one-half of the period of residence required for naturalization except in the case of those persons who are employed by, or under contract with, the Government of the United States; those persons who are authorized to perform the ministerial or priestly functions of a religious denomination having a bona fide organization within the United States, and those persons who are engaged solely by a religious denomination or by an interdenominational mission organization having a bona fide organization within the United States as a missionary, brother, nun, or sister. Such approval should be applied for on Form N-470, "Application to Preserve Residence for Naturalization Purposes (under section 316 (b) or 317, Immigration and Nationality Act)" available at any office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Aliens who are absent in connection with or for the purpose of performing the ministerial or priestly functions of a religious denomination having a bona fide organization in the United States, or who are engaged by such a denomination or an interdenominational mission organization having a bona fide organization within the United States, as a missionary, brother, nun, or sister, are also eligible to make such application. Such aliens may acquire the required one year of uninterrupted physical presence after the absence.

EFFECT OF CLAIM TO NONRESIDENT ALIEN STATUS FOR FEDERAL INCOME TAX PURPOSES: An alien who has actually established residence in the United States after having been admitted as an immigrant or after having adjusted status to that of an immigrant, and who is considering the filing of a nonresident alien tax return or the non-filing of a tax return on the ground that he is a nonresident alien, should consider carefully the consequences under the immigration and naturalization laws if he does so.

If an alien takes such action, he may be regarded as having abandoned his residence in the United States and as having lost his immigrant status under the immigration and naturalization laws. As a consequence he may be ineligible for a visa or other document for which lawful permanent resident aliens are eligible; he may be inadmissible to the United States if he seeks admission as a returning resident; and he may become ineligible for naturalization on the basis of his original entry or adjustment as an immigrant.

15. The validity of a permit shown, be extended for a period not exceeding one year from the date

Application for Extension of Period of Stay should be submitted to the nearest office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service as to be received by the alien before the expiration of the validity of the permit.

Application must be made on Form N-316, Application for Extension of Period of Stay, and must be accompanied by the fee specified in Section 1-131.

Application may be obtained from the office shown on Page 2 of this manual. Immigration and Naturalization Service over the place of temporary sojourning abroad of some United States citizens. The validity of the permit, if extended, expires, the alien must depart from an American Consulate in the United States.

aged solely by a religious denomination or by an interdenominational mission organization having a bona fide organization within the United States as a missionary, brother, nun, or sister. Such approval should be applied for on Form N-470, "Application to Preserve Residence for Naturalization Purposes (under section 316 (b) of 47, Immigration and Nationality Act)" available at any office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Aliens who are absent in connection with or for the purpose of performing the ministerial or primary functions of a religious denomination having a bona fide organization in the United States, or who are employed by such a denomination or an interdenominational mission organization having a bona fide organization within the United States, as a missionary, brother, nun, or sister, are also eligible to make such application. Such aliens may secure the required one year of uninterrupted physical presence after the absence.

TWO CLAIMS TO NONRESIDENT ALIEN STATUS FOR FEDERAL INCOME TAX PURPOSES: An alien who has previously established residence in the United States after having been admitted as an immigrant or after having adjusted status to that of an immigrant, or who is considering the filing of a nonresident alien tax return or the non-filing of a tax return on the ground that he is a nonresident alien, should consider carefully the consequences under the immigration and naturalization laws if he does so.

If an alien takes such action, he may be regarded as having abandoned his residence in the United States and as having lost his immigrant status under the immigration and naturalization laws. As a consequence he may be ineligible for a visa or other document for which lawful permanent resident aliens are eligible; he may be inadmissible to the United States if he seeks admission as a returning resident; and he may become ineligible for naturalization on the basis of his original entry or adjustment as an immigrant.

EXTENSIONS: The validity of a permit may, on good cause shown, be extended for a period or periods not exceeding one year from the original expiration date.

Application for extension must be made prior to the expiration date shown on this permit. The application should be submitted not more than 90 days prior to the expiration date. It must, however, be submitted so as to be received by the officer authorized to act thereon prior to the expiration of the permit's validity.

The application must be made on Form I-131, Application for Extension of Permit to Reenter the United States, and must be accompanied by the permit and by the fee specified in the instructions on Form I-131.

The application may be obtained from the issuing office shown on Page 2 or from the office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service having jurisdiction over the place in which the applicant is temporarily sojourning abroad. It may also be obtained at some United States consular offices.

If validity of the permit or extension thereof has expired, the alien must obtain an immigrant visa from an American Consul before embarking for the United States.

Helen Yao Li

Dear Helen Li:

Reference is made to the Petition for Alien Relative (Form I-130) filed by you in behalf of Yao Nien Yuan Cheng, on February 12, 1982.

On October 5, 1982, this Service approved the relative petition and it was forwarded to the American Consulate at Montreal.

It has now come to the attention of this Service that the Secretary of State has terminated the registration of the beneficiary pursuant to section 203(g) of the Act.

Therefore the approval of your petition is automatically revoked in accordance with 8 CFR 205.1.

Sincerely,

Gilbert C. Tabor
Center Director
